Curry, J. A. Modfurtry, W. S. Cottingham and T. Stephenson. The remarks of all the gentlemen were to the point especially the remarks by Mr. MoMurtry, who gave an interesting and lengthy account of the state of trade, dedinging figures to show that the mercantile interests of Omesmes are in the full flush of presperity, and that any village or any community might feel proud to have such a class of merchants as he now saw before him. Song by Mr. Penton, of Montreal, "Isle of the See," encored, and in response gave." But a Faded Flewer." "Our Ladies," responded to by Mesers. M. MoLaughlin, John Read, I. MoNeely, W. S. Cottingham, John Shaw, J. A. Mo-Murtry and Capt. W. H. Cottingham. One of the young gentlemen, Mr. J. Our Host and Hostess, which drew forth a pleasing speech from Mr. Penton. He on behalf of himself and Mrs. Penton, thanked those assembled for the hearty manner in which the toast was honoured, and he trusted that at his next annual supper not one of those now seated around the board would be missing. After thanking the chairman for the able manner in which he had presided over the assembly to which he responded, the company broke up by singing the "National Anthem," all going home heartily pleased with the night's emjoyment, and will not soon forget the "National Anthem," all going home heartily pleased with the night's emjoyment, and will not soon forget the nome heartily pleased with the night's enjoyment, and will not soon forget the kindness of our worthy Host and Hostoss.

Participation in morning and evening devotions, regular atten-dance at their reopective places of wor-ship, inculcation of right principles and cultivation of good habits at such a 'time of life, can hardly fail to be of lasting benefit to them through all their after years. A very pleasant evening was spent recently at the residence of Capt. Evans, where some 50 young men and maidens assembled for the purpose of having a regular jollification, bringing an abundant supply of oysters and music with them. Feasting, danoing, and singing were the order of the night. After singing "They are jolly good fallows" We most sincerely hope that the in-stitution about to be opened for the education of our young farmers will be eminently successful and useful. It has singing "They are jolly good fellows" in honour of the Host and Hostess, the party broke broke up at 5 o'cleck in the lege, and a net-work of local schools of agriculture, similar to the systems pur-sued in Ireland and on the continent of Europe. We trust that the success attendant on the institution about to be opened will be such as to encourage a speedy enlargement of the plan. The Government having made a beginning, it reets with the people to say whereunto it shall grow. If the opportunity now offered for obtaining an agricultureal education is eagerly embraced by a large number of young men, and it is plainly to be seen that a felt want is being supplied, we have no doubt the institution will soon assume larger proportions. Of course, the establishment of a school of agriculture in this Province is very much the nature of an experiment, and it remains to be seen rergreens and the new maps recently the wall, giving the room a very autiful appearance. The pupils were amined in the different subjects of programme, and in every instance a very satisfactory examination. to the satisfaction of the visitors. At the close of the examination short addresses were delivered by the Rev. J. R. Scott, Cambray, Mr. J. Robinson, music teacher. The school heuse was built a short time ago. Is is of brick and is well supplied with all apparatus necessary for in rural district. It is a cridit to the section; and the efficiency of the pupils is very oreditable to their painstaking teacher. Mr. F. McNabb.

A CANADIAN MILITARY

for their object the establishment of a Military College for the training of Canadian officers. The scheme as indicated in the resolutions is to establish in one of the garrison towns of Canada a Military College for the education of young men in those branches of military and general scientific knowledge which are necessary for qualifying them as officers. The college is to be under the charge of a military officer having special qualifications for this office, as commandant, assisted by two professors, and such other assistants as may be made by the Governor-in-Council from time to time, and the collegiate term of instruction is to be four years. In the selection of pupils, applicants must be between the ages of 16 and 21, and the Board of Examiners will be established in each of the military districts of the Dominion for the examination of those desirons of becoming students; the number to be admitted each year being regulated and limited by law. Provision is also made for the admission of Military Officers holding first-class certificates, for a limited time. A certain fixed sum, to provide uniforms, &c., on admissions, and a limited annual allowance will be granted to each cadet, and cadets or officers entering the college for a course of instruction shall be subject while remaining there for that purpose to the Queen's Orders and regulations and the Military Act, and the rules and articles of war, and to such other orders and regulations as Her Majesty's troops are subjected to. This sollege is intended to be in Canada what Sandhurat is to England and West Point to the United States, with this difference, however, that while the two latter countries have standing armies which absorb the graduates from their colleges absorb the graduates from their colleges as fast as they can pass them through, we have no field at present for utilizing passed cadets, except such as the militia affords. A student after spending four years in a military college will be apt to regard that time as little better than wasted if he finds there is no opening for his services in the profession he has acquired, and he will either have to adopt another line of life on leaving college or seek admission into the army of some other country. Will the Military College Bill be followed by such ary profession !

A SHORT COURTSHIP.

A story is told of a preacher who lived about forty years ago. He was a bachelor, and we could write his real, name, but prefer to call him Smith. He resisted many persuasions to marry, which his friends were constantly making, until he had reached a tolerably advanced age, and he himself began to feel the need, or at least, to have new ideas of the comfort of being nursed with woman's gentle care. Shortly with woman's gentle care. Shortly after entering one of his circuits, a maiden lady also of ripe years, was strongly recommended to him, as his friends again urged that he had better get married, representing that the lady named would probably not refuse to ac-cept him, notwithstanding his reputed eccentricities.

"Do you think the?" responded the dominie, for he very perceptibly lisped;

"then I will go and thee her."

He range He was a man of his word. He rang

"Ith Mith P- within ?" briskly, but calmly asked the lover.
"Yes sir. Will you walk in?" "No, I thank you. Be kind enough to thay to Mith P— that I with to thpeak to her a moment."
"Miss P—appeared, and repeated the invitation to walk in.

"No, thank you; I'll thoon explain my bithneth. I'm the new preacher.
I'm unmarried. My friendth think I'd. better marry. They recommend you for my wife. Have you any objection?" Why, really, Mr. S-" "There: don't anthwer now. Will call thith day week for your reply.

On that day week he reappeared at the door of Miss P——'s residence. It was promptly opened by the lady her-

"Can't, indeed, ma'am. Pleathe anthwer me, yeth or no."
"Well, Mr. Smith, it is a very serious matter. I should not like to get out of the way of Providence-" "I perfectly underthand you, Mith We will be married thith day week. I will call at thith hour. Pleathe be ready, ma'am."

He called on that day week, at that hour. She was ready. They were married, and lived happily several years. THE FUTURE OF FRANCE. The Pall Mall Gazette prints a curious statement to the effect that in the event of certain elections going against the French Government, Marshal McMahon would appeal to the country with this question: "Does the nation confirming will be better abled to give in reason store he will be better abled to give in reason with this question: "Does the nation confirming will be better abled to give in reason will be better abled to give in reason will be the store abled to give in reason will be the store abled to give in reason will be the store abled to give in reason will be the store abled to give in reason will be the store abled to give in reason will be the store abled to give in reason will be the store abled to give in reason will be the store abled to give in reason will be the store abled to give in reason will be better abled to give in reason will be given be given in reason will be given by the given in reason will be given by the given in reason will be given by the given in reason will be given in reason will be given by the given in reason will be given by the given in reason will be given in reason will be given by the given by the given by the given in reason will be given by the given by that the vote would be in the affirmative, and that with such a vote he could afford to summon a new Assembly. Without this support a new Assembly would be a dangerous experiment. If the nations confirms the Marshalate McMahon would only have to amend his Ministry to suit the opinions of the new Legislature. If the vote of the country were to be averse to the present Government, then would come a most interesting question. The Assembly could recall Henry V., or there would be a plebiscitum asking France whether she preferred Bourbon, Boraparte or republican. Without some definite expression from France of her conti-dence in the present Government it is little more than a scandal, and we can well understand the Mashal's uneasiness.

PROHIBITION.

Madame Hyacinthe-Loyson, the American wife of the widely celebrated the New York Herala, encouraging the temperance crusaders and adjuring them not to be "dismayed by insult, "nor discouraged by defeat; but with "charity for the culprit and pity for "the victim, go on, pray on, work on," assured that God will bless them. Though this would seem as if Mme. Loy son was earnest and whole-souled in her desire to banish the curse of intoxicasing drink from the land, we fear that after all she is scarcely more than half won by the cause, for further on in her the surest way to prevent dissipation is to encourage the growth of light wines and a taste for them among the people. This, with a diet of soup, milk and salad, prepared with good oil, are her specifics against drunkenness. It is apparently not so much the liquor that time. Loyson objects to, as the strength of the fiery distillation. Sugar-coating the temperance pill in that style will hardly have the effect of eradicating the evil it is intended to operate against.
