Very few inspectors would allow them-selves to be so far earried away by their personal feelings as to exercise their powers tyrannically, but they are as liable to err as other people, and since their good taste does not keep them from interfering a statutory enactment should. The Sangster matter no doubt brought many into action, and it shows the necessity of the legislation we suggest, more especially as these elections will take place every two years. We trust the teachers of this county will not fail to range themselves on the side of morality and independence. The important changes made constitution of the Conneil of Public

Instruction at the last session of the legislature are indicated in the following summary of the Act. "After the third Tuesday in August next the Council shall consist of the following members."
The Chief Superintendent of Education; eight members appointed by the Lieut. Governor, one member elected by the Council of University College, and one by each of the other colleges possessing university powers; one by each of the three following classes, the legally qualified masters and teachers of High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, the Inspectors of Public Schools, and the legally and the legall legally qualified teachers of Public and
