It has not been done by men who have failed three or four times, and ended their career in poverty. There has been a most remarkable uniformity or ancross about this business. It is utterly unlike mercantile purmits in this respect. By far the large majority of mercantile men have failed and ended worse than they begun. On the other worse than they begun. On the other hand, by far the large part of the clearers of the forest and cultivators of the soil here succeeded, and ended their days with a good inheritance. Probably they were compelled by circumstances they were compelled by circumstances to go on. They could not give up if they would. They were bound to be patient. They were pressed into perseverance by the very conditions of their existence, and perseverance brought out these splendid results at last. OUR YOUNG FOLKS.

How, all in one sunny morning, Came the dandelions gay; Gay little happy flowers, That laugh up out of the grass, The merriest, gladdest welcome To the children as they pass, Margery ponders and ponders,

"They are bright, like the stars up high;
Perhaps they are stars, Jenny.
That have drop, ed down from the sky.
O, perhaps this is one of the places
Where they go to love and stav.
When the sky is all blue and cupty,
And the dark night gone away." That night, when the daylight faded,

That ingnt, when the daying trace.
Two little hands stole out
Into the still gray meadow,
And eagerly searched about,
Not, one gay, golden blossom—
But, far up overhead,
The countless stars were shining,
All wonderful, instead

PUZZLES. Who was an ancient friend of mine. Sweet odors, as I reached his gate, Rejoiced my 7,6, 10 and 8, Surely, a 9, 6, 4 and 2 Must 9, 5, 4, 8, to my view; But see, my friends 4, 6, 3, come To welcome me unto their home. A scholar, 9, 5, 1 and 2, I find him to his instinct true, Reading of 2, 9, 6 and 10, Of 5, 6, 7, and of men Of note as 9, 2, 7, 8.

of note as 9, 2, 7, 8, A king who nobly served his state. After some hours of happy talk. Down to my 5, 7, 3, we walk, Exchange our farewell grecting there,
And both unto our homes repair,
All through our happy land my whole you'll find,
Though out of sight, O keep them still in mind.

I am composed of eight letters: My 4, 3, 5, is what photographers have, My 7, 6, 8, 5, is an animal with short norns.
6, 2, 3, is used at regattas.
5, 4, 7, is a game played at school.
1, 6, 5, is a drunkard.

CROSS WORD ENIGMA. My first is in flour, not in bran, My second in lover, not in man, My third is in good, not in bad, My fourth is in angry, not in bad,
My fourth is in angry, not in mad,
My fifth is in rose, not in bud,
My sixth is in rain, not in mud,
My seventh is in can, not in will,
My eighth is in river, not in rill,
My whole is a large city.
