And the door was shut with a bang that shook through the house and Nan was half way down the street before the smile had died from Margaret's face.

The next morning Margaret Fane, well laden with bundles and followed by a boy with numerous parcels, once more wended her way through the narrow by-ways of the lower part of the city; She pushed her way through the narrow by-ways of the lower part of the city; She pushed her way up the dark stairs, and stumbled up the ladder, and once again thrust her head through the aperture in the floor. For a moment she gazed abouther in speechlessamazement. Had there been an inundation or the flood-gates of heaven opened and descended upon that humble loft? Still a third surmise suggested itsel to her mind, and that was that some one had been playing the hose about the apartment and forgotten to wipe up, and in this last she was about right.
