The official investigation that has been made into the affairs of the City of Glasgow Bank has disclosed a shocking amount of rascality. It seems that for years past a systematic course of concealment and falsification of accounts had been carried on, until when the final crash came there was a total deficit of £6,100,983, including the £1,000,000 of capital stock. Money had been advanced on worthless securities and heavy losses had been recklessly incurred, which, instead of being wiped off, were carried forward year after year in order to swell the balance of the assets and to blindfold the confiding shareholders. Nor did the fraud stop there, for large sums were continually the discretors.
