WIRE FENCES. W. A. Armstrong says: "I have used a fence of three wires as a line fence between two pastures, cattle and horses running on each side, with great satisfaction and with the least possible amount of trouble and care. The barbed wire has solved the question of fence for the west."

DEEP DRAINING. Farmer Meach, of Knight's farm, says: "I have drained my land in places that I have never saw land that would not pass water to four feet drains, and that he once drained on two depths, two and six feet, the upper pipes never discharged on two or three occasions, when the water was very high and the land full."
