In regard to the trade with Great Heltafn the report says: "In this, as in many other branches of farming industry, the opening of the trade with Great Heltafn has put a new complexion after gother into the hustiness of sheep raising. In the first place the taste of the people there is fasticious, and to command paying prices, the mitton must be first-class in quality. This is a trade worth enlivating, but as yet too little attention has been paid by breeders to its requirements if it is to be profitably maintained. The fact is that farmers have not had too many sheep to sell, their lambs have been shipped to the states, and those that remained have not been of the right kind. These are taken from life, the animals now being in the possession of the firm named. An excellent idea is at taken of the firm named. cellent idea is given of many of the val-uable points of this fine breed. These two stallions were imported from France in 1877 by E.
