Weather permitting six rinks of the Lindsay club will make the trip to Toronto to-day, where they play against their old opponents, the Granites. Six rinks picked out of the home club here, means twenty four players selected out of a club of not more than thirty-five members. The average strength of the rinks will be somewhat below that of the first two or four, and it will be a close bout if they are able to be at the tiranites. The Lindsay men will return by the night train from Toronto.

On Friday of last week two rinks of the Lindsay curling club played on the ice of the Orillia club against two rinks of that club. The game was a spirited one and was well contested on both sides, the Orillia men showing some line play as a set off to the skillful shots of their opponents. The steady play the Lindsay men have had lately has given them an advantage in playing together. They wen the game after playing 25 ends by 27 shots. The rinks playing and secosa made are given below:

Yes, dear old Post, continue to post your readers and be ever welcome to the home of s.J.c. Drivers of horses should understand that awning posts are not hitching posts, nor to be used as such. A team tied to the awning in front of Mr. J. Kennedy's shop backed out and took the supports of the awning with them. The operation will be repeated at the expense of plate-glass before the lesson is thoroughly learned.

The attention of an expectant community in this vicinity is called to the fact that Wednesday of this week, 21st inst., is legally the first day of spring. The fact is further vouched for by many reliable almanacs. The expectation is that the individual who has been for years past shouting for "a snapping good old-fashioned winter" will give the weather a rest.

A school teacher, presumably living in Ver-ulam, asserts that "scholars who have access to newspapers at home outstrip those in their stu-dies who do not see the papers, becoming better readers and spellers, better grammarians and writing the best compositions, besides learning geography and history quicker." About the heaviest express parcel yet handled in this section was that received here on Monday consigned to the paper mill company. It was a new wrought iron shaft to replace one broken in the mill a short time ago. The shaft weighed (1) the and was made at New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, it being impossible to get the forging at a nearer point unless ordered from the Buffalo shops, and that would, of course, have been a violation of the ethics of the immortal N. Mr. E. R. Horton of Toronto, court reporter and formerly a resident of Kingston, has just received notification from Washington that his patent of an improved type-writer has been allowed for the Thited States. The most noticeable feature of the new machine is that the writer always has before his eves, just as in ordinary penmanship, whatever he is writing, an advantage appreciated more by those who compose their ideas while using the machine than by mere transcribers.

by mere transcribers.

—It will now be plain the reason why the gas lamp posts should be the property of the town instead of a chattel of the gas company. One post has been demolished, and the town stands the shot. Teams may go on running full tilt against and levelling all the posts in town and the replacing of them is merely an item of municipal expense. If they were the property of the company the company would be out just so much per post and this would be a manifest injustice to what our N. P. cotem. would term "an infant industry."

—Gertrude! Who is Gertrude! The ranks

instant industry."

"Gertrude! Who is Gertrude! The reply will come in a week or two, when this charming operetta is placed on the stage by the local amateurs, who have the play in rehearsal. The entertainment will be given in Bradburn's operanouse on the evening of April 13th, and as the proceeds in aid of the funds of the cricket club, will be used to assist in placing the grounds in a thoroughly satisfactory condition the event should be well patronized. At all events a treat may be expected. The Harris orchestra; will give their assistance.

The Ortilia Packet says: "No doubt Mr. Mowat will feel it his duty to provide a snugborth for the defeated of North Ferth, Mr. D.D. Hay. We suggest that the premier pass an act transferring the D. D. to the other end of his name, and appoint him chaplain of the Ortilia asylum. To insure peace it might be stipulated that he bring with him no weapons excepting a brace of corkscrows." Self-interest should have kept the Packet from making this suggestion in any other than the most complimentary form, for any one who could put it in the foregoing shape must soon go to some refuge for weak-minded people.

The matter of forming a cance club is again

w. Howe and others.

On Saturday morning a team belonging to Mr. H. Gunigle, drawing a beavy sieigh used as a stage, dashed along William-st. At the Kentst. crossing an attempt was made to stop the horses. The frantic gesticulations of the would be blockaders succeeded in changing the course of the team from a straight to a diagonal one. The horses dashed off the readway and attempted to gallon along the sidewalk, but were checked by the sleigh coming plump against the lamp post at Dobson's corner. The post was knocked off its base in a twinkling and the lamp shivered into fragments. A support or two of the awning was also carried away. The tongue of the sleigh and hauling gear were badly smashed.

In this connection it may be said that it is an inindicious thing to attempt to stop running horses, on the front street at least, by turning them on to the readside, and after three or four plate-glass fronts have been pulverized by the horse the lesson will be learned. The proper way in which to check a runaway team is to have the chief constable on hand; let him put on steam, make a spurt; catch up with the figers; coolly climb into the rocking vehicle; serenely bring the pasting steeds to a standstill. That is what a chief is for, and his late increase of salary should make him more diligent.

A quantity of statements more or less alarming have reached this office giving the depth of the snow in different parts of the town. We present a few of the most veracious without necessarily becoming responsible for the details: A boy, while trying to catch an owl, tumbled off a shed roof in rear of Makin's foundry. The neighbors collected and went into committee on the hole. His affectionate parents were obliged to rig up a derrick to haul him out.

A curier dropped a stone out of his overcoat pocket near the rink on Sunday—that is on Monday night. Soundings were taken and a buoy marks the supposed whereabouts of the stone. It will be dredged up when the freshet A party piled ten cords of tamarac along side his fence on Durham-st. The pile has been engulphed in a snow drift. At a venture the owner sold a few cords and gave general orders to the buyers where to find the pile. The purchaser came, saw and dug. Found only snow. Couldn't locate the pile thereabouts. Have to await the general thaw

A bag of wheat slipped from a sleigh coming along the Operoad on Monday. The bag passed into oblivion in the beautiful snow. The farmer footed it to the nearest house and borrowed a snow shovel. He dug for thirty-five minutes before striking wheat. In the meantime the snow fell so fast that it took a second team to pull the sleigh out and let other teams pass. A man wheeling a barrow full of snow toppled over the wall in rear of the gas works. The barrow sank in the snow a distance before it touched bottom. The man, of course, fell on the barrow. Allowing two feet for the barrow and oly feet for the man his head was Hinches below the top of the surrounding snow. What was the depth of the snow? The statement is authentic and the barrow can be seen at the gas works.

- The schools closed on Tuesday on account of the teachers' convention and easter holidays, and will open at 1.30 p. m. on Tuesday of next week. March 27th. The customary services will be held to-day (Good Friday) in the different churches and at the usual hours. That held in the school room of the Methodist church will begin at 7.30 p.m.

-The teachers and officers of the Methodist Sunday school have under consideration the re-novation of the school room, putting down of matting, graining of the wood work, and other details. A match game of billiards will be played in the billiard parlors of the Central house this evening between Messrs. C. W. Jewett and J. Bates. The game will probably commence about eight o'clock.

The missionary services held on Sunday last in the Methodist church were only fairly attended, the heavy storm and inclement weather no doubt lessening the attendance. Rev. F. Goff preached in the morning and Rev. T. Cullen in the evening.

-There was no public demonstration on Sat-urday last—St. Patrick's day. Service was held in St. Mary's church in the morning and an ap-propriate sermon preached by Rev. Father Sweeny, curate of the parish. The attendance was very large. An unusually large number partook of communion... Service was also held in St. Mary's yesterday. Mass will be said to-day.

Wrestling seems to be the manly art just at present in favor. "Jack" Smith, who was defeated by Mr. Muldoon in a contest in Toronto, is a brother of our local gas engineer, Mr. Jas. Smith. The athlete Smith will be in Lindsay in the course of a day or two an ! will probably give an exhibition of wrestling and try conclusions with any Lindsay men that may offer. Perhaps the boys could induce a certain strapping farmer to essay the job of downing Mr. Smith. Look out for the bills.

Smith. Look out for the bills.

The juvenile concert in connection with St. Andrew's church, which came off on Tuesday evening in Bell's hall, was a gratifying success, both as regards the large attendance and the excellence of the performance. It was under the direction throughout of Miss Galbraith. All the singers and players were members of Miss Galbraith's music class, and the uniform excellence of each one reflects the highest credit on this lady as a musical instructor. There were also given during the evening two readings by Mr. Dunn of the high school and by Mr. Steele, with that good taste and execution for which these gentlemen are distinguished. The proceeds are given over to the church by the ladies in charge.

Mr. C. Bartlett will show four fine two-year old steers weighing together 5.170 lbs., or about 1,300 lbs. each. The animals were fed by Mr. R. Rich of Mariposa on Mr. Wm.
