Reginald has been telling me that he left you under my charge and Mark's, and a pretty way I have fulfilled my trust, he says, when he comes home, only to find you outlawed from saciety. Why was not I told! Was this fair to me, Alice!" said Mrs. Mayhew, sinking into a near with an air of being entirely overwhelmed.

"We kept it from you on purpose, suntle and I; we thought there was no use in worrying you and Mark, and all you could have said or done would not have been of the slightest use. All the waters in the sea.

have said or done would not have been of the slightest use. All the waters in the seas would not have washed me white in the estimation of my chartrable neighbors. When first I came here I was too miserable to notice anything; then for a long time I was very ill, as you know. It was fully a year before I became really alive to my position, as you would call it. Then auntic spoke to the rector, and he told her the truth—that Regimnid had separated from me for very good reasons; and he asked her point blank if we were on friendly terms. What could she say?"—with a grature of append—"She told him the truth—that we were not, but that our difference was exrepeat— "She told him the truth—that we were not, but that our difference was estirely a matter between ourselver, and did not concern the world at large.
