IN THE WHIRLPOOL. CAPTAIN WEBB'S LAST SWIM.

As Attempts to Swim the Whirlpool and With His Life.

Capt. Webb, the famous swimmer, tried to swim the whirlpool near Niagara Falls, on Tuesday last, but did not succeed and was drowned. There was not a very large attendance as the public and the railways did not think the captain would make the attempt.

THE THRILLING DIVE. The captain laughed a pleasant ripple, and made no remark. Arriving at a point opposite the Maid of the Mist landing, he rapidly divested himself of all clothing, leaving only a pair of red cotton swimming drawers and a pair of shoes.

AN IMPETUOUS CURRENT. Down this he sped, and six minutes after his dive he passed under the penion bridge. Here his speed was sensibly accelerated, and the rapids lifted him gently up, and allowed him to pass the bridge with ease.

THE CHOLERA PLAGUE. REPORTS TO CHECK THE PROGRESS OF THE DISEASE-DISEMBARKED. NEGLECT OF SANITARY PRECAUTIONS.

THE RAGING WATERS. The rising currents now seem to meet and strike each other with the force of mighty pugilists, causing the foam to rise, and currents to form, and the waves to swell with resistless energy.

A MOMENTARY STUMBLER. His course veered as he felt the influence of the seemingly attracting point, and now the awful plunge is made.

IN THE WHIRLPOOL. Now he rises on the crest of the highest wave, his face looking to the Canadian shore. He lifts his hands once, in precipitation, as the rushing gulf rises opposite the exit.
