SETTLERS WANTED.—There are four or five new settlers wanted at Sadowa, as there are four hundred acres of land in one block lying to commons, each with from twenty to thirty acres cleared on them. It is a good farming locality and a splendid opportunity for persons who want land.

OBITUARY.—The many friends of John and Thomas Gillis will regret to learn of the death of their sister, Mrs. A. Graham, at Rochester, N.Y., after a year's illness. She passed away Wednesday, April 9th.

Then, O my Lord, prepare
My soul for that great day,
O wash me in Thy precious blood
And take my sins away.
RECOVERING.—We are glad to learn that Ars. C. Stroud is recovering from her late severe illness.

Notes.—Farmers busy preparing for spring work....The people around here can't get time to come out to prayer meetings every Wednesday evening. We shall all have to take time to die.

Big Sawing.—Mr. Wm. Read of the Hill Head has accomplished the biggest day's sawing of the season. In the remarkably short space of eight and a half hours Mr. Reid, with his little mill and only three teams of horses cut one hundred cords of stove wood. He also cut eight blocks fourteen inches in diameter in one minute. Mr. Reed, who by the way is a powerfully built man, puts his whole weight on the saw, and the way in which that saw goes through a fourteen inch log would remind; ou of a butcher's cleaver going through a case of green cheese.

Cheese Meeting.—At the annual cheese factory meeting the following officers were appointed: President, Thomas Calvert; secretary-treasurer, I. W. Reid; salesman, D. Moore. The amount of milk brought to the factory this year will be larger than any former season.

KICKED BUT NOT KILLED.—A reply to Pinedale correspondence in THE Post:—

Is splendid at the kickin': He hurts the poor Wick fellow worse Than if I'd got a lickin'. I'm called a south sea islander, Hecause I tell the truth; He can't deny they had a row, These famous Pinedale youths

The way he blows about his friends
Looks bad from one like him;
He ought to leave such babbling
To one who fears no sin.

For since "I'm free from every law," Both "human and divine," I surely have a right to hold

Yet there's some of his young men's tricks,
Which have been brought to view,
That the oatmeal barbarian
Would be ashamed to do.

But then a "babbling fool" like me Can't stain their great morality. When on their side they've got a man Of such superior quality.

Oh, all ye readers of THE Post,
Pay homage when you see him;
It's worth a quarter to behold
This polished European.

And I. "poor savage," when I die,
"Twill make my last hours sweeter,
To know I got an overhaul
From Pinedale's big pork-eater.

NOT THE MAN.—(To the editor of THE POST.)—I have been blamed for being the correspondent of THE POST at Sandringham. I would like them who take that way of saying so to prove it, as I have a receipt that I paid one dollar for THE POST to the first of January, 1885. I would also ask those that started the talk about rae being a correspondent of THE POST if they know that we live in the 19th century or not. I hope no one will be hurt by this remark. I notice by the Sandringham correspondence of last week that he had rather a good joke about THE POST agent visiting Glenarm and giving an address at a temperance meeting there. THE POST agent don't have to get a licence to go to another township, and if the correspondent SANDRINGHAM. agent don't have to get a licence to go to another township, and if the correspondent of last week is jealous of him, it looks a good deal like it. Pity the poor correspondent that is left without a creature to take care of him. I hope there will be no more blaming me hereafter. If I hear another whisper in this locality to that affect I will fatch them over the coals for another whisper in this locality to that effect I will fetch them over the coals for it to prove it. A THRILLING HUNT. —Two young sports. A THRILLING HUNT.—Two young sportsmen started on a hunting expedition along the shores of Lake Simcoe a few days ago, and falling on the track of a coen they had their eyes skinned for the terrible bruta. On looking up a tall cedar their eyes came in contact with a large and vicious coon which wailed and gnashed his teeth at them, so one of the braves raised his gun and fixed upon the little decling and took effect upon his carcass. Then the other brave told his comrade to get a claw-hammer and two shingle nails to make a step so as to climb the tree and release the coon from the crotch of the tree, and while in the operation the dead animal dropped from his high estate to the ground, and coolly trotted to his hole in the earth, so the disappointed hunters looked at each other in amazement and said, "We had better strike for home."

TRAMPS.—There have been an unusual number of tramps in the vicinity during the last week. Some of them rather suspicious-looking characters. "Ananias' must have got loose from Lindsay.

TEMPERANCE MEETING. — Our temperance seciety held their mouthly meeting on Wednesday night, the 7th inst. At the appointed hour the chairment took the appointed hour the chairman took the chair and called the meeting to order. He then called on the following gentlemen, who kindly consented to address or enter-tain the meeting. The first to take the platform was Mr. Wm. Calder, teacher, who gave two short readings, one of them entitled, "This hard lump." Both were very good pieces. Mr. John A. Graham of Palestine followed, taking the "Moderate drinker." It was an eloquent address. J. A. is the right fellow for that, as he is a good speaker. Mr. Andrew McKay gave a short reading taking as his subject, "Prinking in a position of trust." It was a very good subject. He also gave a short speech. Next was Mr. C. N. Mc-Donald of Sandringham, who read an essay on temperance the subject of it is this. on temperance, the subject of it is this: First part, temperance act and actions. Second part, whiskey v. budge. It was a good essay. The following geutlemen have been appointed to address the next meeting: Mr. K. McRae, Glenarm; Mr. D. C. Smith. teacher, Islay; Mr. Colin N. McDenald of Sandringham and others. Come, young ladies, prepare a few dialogues for the next meeting. We expect to hear a the next meeting. We expect to hear a long address from Mr. C. N. McDonald of Sancringham at our next meeting. A special collection was taken up at the close of the meeting, and the proceeds of the collection was handed to Mr. C. N. Mc-Denald, who is agent for the Witness Publishing House. We will have temperance literature galore after this. A WORD IN SEASON. - A few words to the readers of THE Post in this no one has done that, for THE POST is the best local newspaper published in the pro-vince. We think it would be advisable that some of THE Post agents should visit this locality, either Mr. Gillogly, the travel-ling agent, or Mr. Colin N McDonald of Sandringham, the local agent, and have a conversation with those who spoke so hard against THE Post lately. And we believe those remarks were made on account of an article which appeared in last week's cor-respondence from this place in reterence to the Presbyterian congregation. We believe that there was very little ground for any offence and that the writer did not mean to injure any one. We hope there is no one seriously nurt. An Adherent. is a remarkable man. In his last letter he says I rushed to the rescue of Mr. George Calvert. I did not say one word about Mr. Calvert or his letter. Next he says I called on the Christian public to accept the attacks of Mr. Knight and the "Ops Farmer" for what they are worth. I did no such thing. I said they would do so. I presume they have. Next he says: "He seems to be horrified and indignant that the influence of the salvation army should be regarded as detrimental to the progress of education." Is he not just a little mudaled here? I did not say anything about it. Next he says: "The reason Mr. Reid gives for not imparting more light is he could not find the passage of scripture referred to." I did not give any reason. I did not promise him light. With regard to the scripture he quotes I cannot see what that has to do with his first letter. The words scripture he quotes I cannot see what that has to do with his first letter. The words are our Lord's, not those of the "pious deputation." He only says, "Many will say.' He doubtless refers to the general judgment. I did not say a word about casting out devils and doing many wonderful works. The "Ops Farmer" thinks I am bewildered when I say the passages mentioned refer to somebody. I frequently find men whose lives declare they apply to them. He says of a part of my letter that if I speak ironically it is too dull to cut. Is it? Let those who have read his last letter in The Post judge, although I would be sorry to do him any harm. He says we are glad he appreciates his present spiritual incumbency. This is decidedly rich. What has it to do with the present discussion? He says, "But when Mr. Reid tauntingly says to Mr. Knight and myself the publicans and harlots go into the kingdom of God before you he calls to mind a certain person who said, 'Stand by, I am mere holy than thou.'" He must remember the words quoted were not mine, but were addressed by our Lord to men who thought themselves as good as he cr I. Now, sir, I have not said one word about my own. themselves as good as he or I. Now, sir, I have not said one word about my own goodness. I did not exhort him to go to the penitent bench. I hope he will allow the salvation army some small corner in heaven, even according to his own rule of doing good to humanity, their enemies themselves being judges. I assure the "Ops Farmer" I am not annoyed at the length of his letter. It is rare to find a length of his letter. It is rare to find a man who can draw so largely on his imagination for his facts, and as I have not the slightest idea who the "Ops Farmer" is I cannot have any personal feeling against him. He might not be afraid to give his real name in replying tome. I assure him I dread "muscular christianity" as much as he can possibly do, and two such cowards would not be likely to hurt each other even if they met. I do not write for any other purpose than the cause of truth and fair-play, and will likely end the discussion with the present letter as far as I am concerned. Thanking you for your patience,—I remain, yours respectfully.

Mr. Isaac W. Reid and the Ops Farmer. [To the Editor of THE CANADIAN POST.] SIR,-Your correspondent "Ops Farmer"
