LINDSAY, FRIDAY, JUNE 27, 1884. INDOLENCE.

Why should man loiter by the way A vaguant through each golden day.

And why so seen impatient grow With life vouchsafed him here below? And why should he refuse to bear And why should be refuse to bear
Its burdens and the yoke to wear,
And strive alone earth's joys to share,
And ne'er be thankful nor forbear?
The mighty oak in fibred grain
Itecounts his years upon the plain;
The sands when dropping from the glass
field back the seconds as they pass;
The faithful clock in yonder tower
Iteluctant tells each passing hour,
And nought but man's unseemly haste
Permits that preclous hour to waste,
Nor like a spandthrift seeks to berrow And use to-day hours of the morrow O when will heedless mortal learn His lamp to trim and brightly burn While yet its oils shall feed the flame

GARDEN PARTY. A most pleasant time was spent at a garden party held at Mr. John Best's on Friday evening last. At 8 p.m. the band marched down to the gar den, which was lit up with torchlights and Chinese lanterns, which made a very fine appearance as well as giving a most beautiful light, so that those who wanted to pass the time at a game of croquet or a good swing might do so almost as well as they could in daylight. After the band had played a few tunes and those present had enjoyed themselves pretty freely, an abundance of splendid cake, lemonade and ice cream was passed around to those present. The whole was a pleasant affair and those who got it up deserve great credit for the way it was arranged.

They both started up the road as hard as they could go to Mr. McCague's for his rifle but had not got quite there when the timid lad suddenly recalled his "Blue Jacket." So they wheeled about and were again on the scene in a short time deter-mined to either make Mr. Bruin quit his noise or surrender. We don't know what they would have done had not Mr. Bruin during their absence taken in the situation and made himself scarce.

Base Ball...—The new base ball club, or as it is better known "the opposition club," played for the first time on Saturday even ing week. There were upwards of forty in attendance, all of whom seemed to take a lively interest in the game. The contemporary club does not seem to feel it is losing ground. We should not be much astonished (which we are not) at this when we consider the fact that it is open only to the "bighest quality," which on most occasions do not attend, as they do not wish to make themselves over conspicuous.

THE MURDER CASE.—The following is the verdict of the coroner's jury in the muder case, details of which were given in THE POST last week: "That Peter Cosse, on the 11th day of June, 1884, did feloniously and unlawfully kill and slav one David Hamilton. They furthermore desire to urge that the authorities use every care to see that those intended to act either publicly or privately as constables are duly licly or privately as constables are duly appointed as the law may require, thus reventing the recurrence of such an un-ortunate affair."

THE DETECTIVE'S DRINKING PLAN.-In THE DETECTIVE'S DRINKING PLAN.—In his evidence last week Cosse told the coroner's jury his plan of drinking without getting drunk. He takes a little sweet oil, after which he can drink as much liquor as he likes with impunity. The shooting of David Hamilton so soon after drinking eight glasses sught to deter others from adopting this plan when going on any service which requires a cool head and steady hand.

THE MURDERED HAMILTON.—A large number viewed the body of David Hamilton at the warerooms of the undertaker, where it was coffined. He was six feet where it was coffined. He was six feet high, rather slim for his height, with dark hair and moustache. The bullet mark was above his right eye and the cheek was burned with the powder. The bullet broke in three pieces, which were exhibited at the inquest. The sister of the dead man came from Lindsay on Thursday, and was much affected when shown the body. The funeral took place on Friday. Deceased is spoken of here as an inoffensive and steady young man. His relatives have the sympathy of the community. Still, there is ne doubt but that resorting to a place where no good man would go led to his death, and only evil can come of minimising the and only evil can come of minimising the moral which the sad case affords. Drink and bad company were the primary causes of his awfully sudden death.—[Packet.

hand and in course of construction the best assortment of Carriages and Buggles of ever scription that has ever been built in this county. It cannot be denied that my work has the lead during the five years that I have been in business. I have made more solid imments in the matter of four wheeled rigs than have been made in this county in the last years. I was the first to adopt the system of Boiling Wheels in Oil, and I see by adverted that some of my friends in the business have seen the great benefit of this and even at the hour have commenced to boil their wheels in oil. I have made several other great in ments this season, which I will be glad to show any person calling at my shop. I trouble in making a sale to the man that visits all the shops and examines all the work he can see at a glance that my work is far in advance of all others. I sold a carriage last to a mechanic from one of our neighboring villages, and he said he could get one money, still mine would be the cheaper in the end. And so it turns out to be in every as am receiving orders from all parts of the country. We don't know such a thing as hat here. Call at once and give us your order. You will save money by doing so.
