If an Lan's Defeat.—It is thought by many that Hanlan was purposely defeated. Owing to the extraordinary successful career of the champion sculler, and the prief career of his successful opponent Beach, this is not improbable. That Hanlan, an oarsman who successfully contested so many races, should have been beaten by an oarsman of a year or two seems atmost incredible. It is said that Hanlan's Australian trip was financially a failure, and that this ruse with Beach was hit upon to put money in his pocket either then or in the very near, fature. He that as it may, nothing but a second meeting of those famous oarsmen can dispet the mystery. Run Down at Last.—A Chicago paper says: Massey Geddes, 35 years old, was appointed station master at Orillia, Ont., of the Midland railway of Cauada and ticket agent of the Grand Trunk railway at the same point in March, 1882.—He received a salary of about $1,000 a year and also a considerable commission from the Grand Trunk. In November, 1883, the auditor of the Midland railway made an examination of Geddes' accounts, and discovered. of Geddes' accounts, and discovered a shortage of about $900. The Grand Trunk also made an examination and discovered a shortage of about 8600. Previous to this the London Guarantee and Accident Coof London, Eng., had insured Geddes to both the railroad companies to the extent of $1,800, and a claim was accordingly made upon it for the amount of his several defiupon it for the amount or his several denciencies. A warrant was issued for his arrest, and when the officer went to execute it he found that Geddes had skipped to parts unknown. The case was placed in the hands of the most experienced detectives in Canada, but they could not find him. After waiting a reasonable length of time the company finally sent their special agent, E. K. Monroe, to the United States to try and find him, as they believed he had crossed the border. Mr. Monroe placed the matter in the hands of the Meoney & Boland detective agency, and after considerable search it was ascertained that Geddes was a station agent on the Chicago and Atlantic railroad outside of Chicago and made occasional visits to the city. An operative was left for the purpose of watching Geddes, while the papers were being prepared for his arrest, so that the officers would know where to place their hands upon him when the docutheir hands upon him when the decu-ments were ready. QUESTIONS FOR GIRLS.—Two Pickering girls have addressed the following questions to the editor of the Pickering News tions to the editor of the Pickering News with request for answers, which he gives as subjoined:—1, What is firting? 2, Is it right for a girl to make herself as attractive as possible?.... Answers: 1, Flirting is playing at courtship, coquetting. Webster befines a flirt as one who acts with giddiness; to be unsteady and fluttering, and we think the definition is a very true one. As a rule young women who make a practice of flirting never make good wives. Girls, don't flirt. 2, We see no harm in a young woman trying to make herself as attractive as possible, as long as modesty and good judgment is used. There are several forms of attractiveness, however. A young woman may dress to attract and at the same time be a guy. Neatness and modesty in man may dress to attract and at the same time be a guy. Neatness and modesty in dress, and good common sense are the most attractive features in a young woman to our mind. But, then we are married, and perhaps may be biased in our opinion.

THE EDITOR'S EXPERIENCE.—She was a stranger. With the editor she was discussing the weather, the delightful situation of Pickering, and the beauties of a sail down the river.
