Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The following letter from one of our best-flown Massachusetts Dringslets should be of morest to every sufferer: —

"Eight years ago I had an attack of Area mattack of the several remedia without help. I tried several remedia without hule, I tried several remedia without nuch if any relief, until I took Area mattack of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your Saraa-Partilla, and it still retains its wonderful pularity. The many notable cures it has a content in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood modicine ever offered to the India.

HURRICANN.— A queer kind of a "blow" passed around all the readers of The Post about two weeks ago. It came from Balsover. It blew one man sky high as a "crack shot." Don't be alarmed, dear readers, there is lete more wind where that came from. There was no one hurt but the feelings of two innocent boys, who had shot one of those deer on the lee of our lake, and that "crack shot," backed up by a man seven feet high and four feet thek—if profamily is what a man is to be measured by tried to scare the deer from the boys; but they had to give money and ventors, too, to get it to add to their number.

GRAND CONCERN,—A grand concert under the suspices of the Church of England came off with considerable cont on the evening of January 28th. Through the similar permission of Lieut. Col. O'Donovan and the officers of the bathlion the band of the 38th batt, mustered in uniform and full force, ducum-lagthe enlivening strains of well has manifully a property. of well harmonized military music throughout the evening to an appreciative, crowded and respectable audience. Indeed everything that could have been done was done down to the minutest detail to render the affair worthy of the large attendance that had congregated to witness what our little but by no means insignificant Heaverton could achieve. The organization, superintendance and execution of the details, which, where so great a number of performers were concerned, was naturally very considerable, devolved on Mrs. George Love, the energetic wife of the resident clorageman, who not only accomplished the whole of the above, but gave a reading and a-sount as well. Mrs. Jarley (in the person of Mr. C. Davidson) appeared with her calebrated collection of wax figures four times, they having been divided into as many separate groups for the purpose of convenience. To do Mrs. Jarley justice it is questionable whether the renowned and world-famed Madame Tussund of London could produce more striking and life like subjects than were seen on the stage at the Alexandra half on that Wednesday evening. Reverting to the more serious part of the varied program we cannot help thinking that Major Hierschfelder's singing of "What Jack will say" and his rendering of "The old sexton" deserves honorable mention. Mrs. Love's song, "Five o'clock in the morning," and an excellent reading from Longfellow will be delightfully remembered by all who heard them. Miss Talbot of Cannington contributed some vocal seles with pleasing effect, and our well-known friend, Mr. James Gilledry of The Poor, Lindaay, gave us two of his best songs in his best style. These were a "Handful of earth" and "Scotch lassie" for an encore. The lights being lowered and the bund playing a lively waltz Mr. P. Mc. Millan stepped on the stage with his illuminated clubs, and many a beautiful circle and semi-circle and graceful curve of ribboned light flashed from his well swung clubs, while admiration burst from all who beheld him. The "Bells of Shandon" was executed with elecutionary power, pathos and feeling by Rev. George Love. But we must hurry to a close, making mere mention of the other celebrities of the evening,—Messes, Glover from Cannington, for instance, who gave a fine vocal duet; the young lady, Miss Ida Reynolds, who sang in her sweetset manner; Mr. E. Leigh, who in addition to executing most difficult in strumental pieces seemed to play all or nearly all the accompaniments as well; Miss Lizzie Davidson, taking up what he omitted. Least of all should we omit mention of the pretty and handsomely omitted. Least of all should we omit mention of the pretty and handsomely dressed "Little Neil" (Miss Flossie King) dressed "Little Netl" (Miss Flossie King) so indefatigable in obeying all old Mrs.Jarley's orders as to the dusting of the figures. And last but by no means least should mention be made of Mr. C. A. Paterson, through whom the services of the band were obtained and by whom, in conjunction with Mrs. Love, the stage and its accessories were fittingty and skillfully arranged. We thought we had really enumerated all, but we had well nigh omitted.

ranged. We thought we had really enum-erated all, but we had well night omitted mention of the able and efficient services of Mise Annie Warren on the organ, ac-companied as she was by the Mesers. Mc-Kay and McNeil on violins. IN MEMORIAM.

Lines on the douth of Francis William Oh! cruel death, how couldst thou come And snatch a leved one from his home; How couldst thou with thy ruthless hand Is mashood call Frank from our band.

His face we now no more admire; His manly form, so staunch and free, On earth we never more shall see.

And bore him to a land of bliss; On sugel's wings he sears above. Spending eternity in blessedness.

But, oh! his loss we deeply feel, And our grief we cannot conces But to God's will we humbly bow, Knowing Frank is safe forever now.

The stains of earth are washed away-A world of sinhe left behind; He left a tenement of clay A home is heaven with God to find.

His earthly robes you may lay aside, He will need them never more: For a robe of white and a crown of light He wears on a happier shore. Oh! how mysterious are God's ways,

He counts and numbers all our days; He holds all power in His hand And rules the universal land. In Thy wisdom, Almighty God, Thou hast decreed us kiss the rod:

Though hard it is from friends to part, Thou, God, canet heal the broken hear We know our loss will be his gain. In heaven he's free from toil and pain; There, in the sunlight of Ged's leve, Kind father, though bowed down with grief. Let this one thought be your relief: That you may meet your precious bay In that bright world of blies and joy.

Fond mother, though words cannot express Your serrow and your sore distress; Remember God deeth all things well,

And to him all your sevrows tell Dear staters, you will feel the loss. is simple faith cling to the Cross; For Jesus is your brother friend, He'll gently lead you to the end.

All other friends, oh! Lord, protect. And through life their steps direct; And when at last the trump shall sound They all at Thy right hand be found.
