—A. sensation was consed at Paris, France, on Thursday by the collapse of a portion of the Pout Neut, which connects the Re de la Cite, on which is stuared the cathedral chusch of Notre Dame, with both sides of the River Seine. It is the largest bridge in Paris and one of the eldest, having been reconstructed in 1882. In its centre is a bronze statute of Henry IV. Thousands of people gathered in the vicinity watching the bridge, as it was feared it would collapse altogether. A heavy rise in the Seine caused the disaster to the bridge. The water continues to rise and disastrous floods are feared.

—An extraordinary strange love freak

-As extraordinary strange love freak comes from the classic land of Evangeline and is published in the Halifax Herald. A very pretty girl engaged herael to two young men. She liked both, but was determined to have one to fall back as in case she quarrelled with the other. She engaged herael and five her maddless and the same day for her maddless and the land of th case she quarrelled with the other. She appointed the same day for her wedding with both young men. In a recent interview Mr. Jos. Cowen, M.P., a radical with jingo proclivities, said that the liberals would assume office before March. This was a pity in view of Lord Salisbury's foreign success. County boards would not settlefy Ireland. If the Orangemen did not tetter the tories the latter would speedly devise a satisfactory system of home rule. It was not likely that the Orangemen would allow the whigs to prevent the liberals carrying a home rule measure in the next parliament. There would be a deadlock and a certain dissolution within at least eighteen months. The parliament would be uncertain and unsatisfactory. Mr. Cowen was in favor of any scheme of home rule that allowed the Irish to manage their own af fairs while upholding the integrity of the empire. The first act of an Irish parliament would be to establish protection, ment would be to establish protection which England would not allow.

—Hydrophobia patients from all over the world are starting for Paris to visit Dr. Pasteur. Meissonier's son and chambermaid, who were bitten by a favorite watchdog, have been inoculated, five Poles have arrived who had been bitten by a mad hound, and a Prague hotelkeeper by the name of Gener has started for Paris with his son, both having been bitten. Charles Kanfman, one of the persons bitten at Franklin, N.J., on the 21st uit,, sailed the other day, the Franch line giving him his passage, and Dr. Sattler of Newark, a veterinary surgeon, who was bitten Saturday, will go if an examination of the dog shows any signs of hydrophobia. In the meantime the Pasteur method ought to be acquired by competent physicians from all countries and probably will be, as soon as its success is completely assured. The French minister of agriculture visited his laboratory and witnessed the process Monday, and expressed his belief in its success.

—A last Friday night's London despatch sage: The city has had a senuine sensation to day. Early this morning a young man and his wife, John and Sarah Magre, were arrested at Kensington on a charge of having attempted to precure meany from the Prince of Wales by writing threatening letters. Formal charges were preferred against them and they were then remanded to await examination. It appears that the prisoners had written two letters making a demand for 2/50, and intimated that unless this amount was forthcoming the a cemanor for $2.00, and intimated that unless this amount was forthcoming the prince's life would be in jeopardy. The prince's equerry, it is said, paid only passing attention to the first letter, but when the second came, reiterating the demand for money and the threats of violence, the nerry turned the letters over to blice. The latter atonce quietly set also suning the capture of the blackmaller They sent a message as though coming from the Prince of Wales to the address gives in the letters, directing the authors or authors of the letters to appear at a or authors of the letters to appear at a specified time and place. The assurance was given that somebody would meet them at the appeared hour prepared to hand over a package containing the money they had demanded. The Magees fell into ed them. The woman, the police say, made a voluntary confession of the whole plot, though she has since declared that she was forced by the police against her will to confess something. An equerry of the Prince of Wales declared this afternoon that the letters represented that Mages was an emissary of a secret society and that he had been ordered to kill the Prince of Wales, but Mages did not wish to obey this summons, and wanted the money to escape to America. The prince never saw the letters and now treats the matter lightly.

On the 2nd of September last year the

-On the 2nd of September last year the family of a farmer living near Fermoy, in County Cork, were shocked and disg at finding in a well from which drinking water for the house was drawn three skeltons. The story spread like wildfire, and it was recollected that about seven years before Thomas Sheehan, a farmer, Catherine, his wife, and their daughter Hannah, living near Castletown-Roche, countyCork, had suddenly disappeased. It was at once sumined they had been murdered, and that it was their sheletons which had been found. The detectives took held of the case, but had no hopes of uncarthing the murderex, when they were communicated with by John Dunne and his son, laborers, who gave a starting description of a murder which they had witnessed. They said that they were working on Sheshan's farm loading manure and that old Sheshan was not far off, digning in a pointo field. They saw William Sheshan, the farmer's son, and his brother-in-law, David Browne, croep behind the old man and strike him on the head with a hoe, inflicting a fatal blow.
