The London Times actually suggests that "the Irish difficulty could be solved in three months by the exclusion of the Parnellites from the house of commons and the proclamation of martial law in Ireland." The Times must be in its dotage or it must be misreported by the

On the 10th Feb., 1883, the Toronto Mail wrote as follows:- "The Grit party " are at present contending for a seof ries of illegalities. The boundary award is illegal. The streams bill is il-" legal. Yet Mr. Mowat asks a sane " people to sustain him that he may " maintain these illegal acts."

The new tory organ at Ottawa in commenting on the new cabinet ministers frankly admits that "among the conservatives the feeling is certainly not one of satisfaction. The general almost the universal opinion among them is that much better appointments could have been made, and that the result of the shuffle has not been a strengthening of the government hands but if anything a weakening."

The Globe says :- "Under the Mackenwere held in the Presbyterian church here last week. The special services were conducted by $200,000, or at a rate of about $50,000 a year. The rate of increase has therefore been about thirty-four times greater under Sir John Macdonald than under Mr. Mackenzie."

Dundas True Banner: "Pica," in the Toronto News, tells a good one on Tom Cowan of Galt. While in Toronto recently Moses Oates and Tom went up to the Central Prison to call upon Warden Massie. They rang the bell, Moses having hold of Tom's arm. A boy opened the door, sized up the couple for a minute, concluded that Moses was a bailiff, and said in a sepulchral whisper, pointing at Cowan: "Say, what's his Brockville Recorder: The Hamilton Spectator thinks Riel was justly hanged because he killed Scott in 1870. We were not aware that he was tried for that erime, and it is not usual under British laws to hang men without trying them. Besides, Sir John, whom the Spectator delights to honor, could scarcely try a man after he had paid him to leave the country to escape trial. The reform press has not, as alleged, made Riel a hero and a martyr, and they do not see why Sir John should be made such.

Goderich Signal: When Sir John A. Macdonald made his foolish statement that "the Crooks act was not worth the paper it was written on," and uttered the silly threat that he would smash "that little tyrant Mowat," he had just been dining at Chestnut Park, Senator Macpherson's residence. To-day Macpherson is a political outcast-the scapegoat of the tory party for its sins in the Northwest; Sir John's government is tottering to its fall; and Mowat and the Crooks act are staunch and solid.

A Goose Fraud.—A well-known resident of the township desirous of partaking with his family of delicious goose, and being in the village aforesaid decided to purchase. He selected one, price 75c. The bird was rather small, but it weighed well considering its superficial area. Suspicion dashed not across his simple mind. Conveying the prize to his home, the post mortem examination revealed most convincing evidences of a fraud—so contemptible, heartless and mean that the perpetrator may well dread the hour of his or her departure to a region where such tricks of perverted talent are not practised. The interior of the goose—a gander—contained all the intestines as well as eleven of the feet of other defunct geese. What stronger proof is needed in support of the doctrine of original depravity.

SCHOOL EXAMINATION. - The examination day of this school was held on Wednesday, 23rd inst. The parties interested in the advancement of the education of the children were present, in all about forty visitors. The class performed their work with efficiency which spoke well for teacher and pupils. The programme of dialogues and recitations was excellent. Short logues and recitations was excellent. Short and practical addresses were given to the school by Mr. Jno. Birmingham, Mr. Jss. Shier and J. A. The Ottawa correspondent of the Hamilton Times says: "Some of the cabinet ministers have notified Sir John Macdonald that the effort to excite a race war in the interest of the tory party has been an unter failure and that it should be abandoned. [Correspondence of The Post.]
ORATORIO OF ESTRER.—The oratorio of "Esther" was performed in Kirkfield recently by some amateurs of Kirkfield and vicinity under the direction of Miss Lottle Macnivan which deserves more than a passing notice. It was the best exhibition of this much admired piece that the writer has ever witnessed. Dr. Wood was "King" and Miss Bella Macnivan was "Queen." They both sang their parts admirably. But "Haman" (Mr. W. Skinner) threw the audience into raptures of delight. His singing and playing were of a very high order. "The High Priest" (Mr. McKay of Beaverton) displayed his rich bess voice to excellent advantage. "Mordecal" (Mr. A. Smith) and "Mordecal's Sister" (Miss Smith) were fairly sustained. The choruses of Jews and Persians were first-class, and the children's chorus carried the house by storm. Two little girls, Nellie McRae and Jennie Campbell, did some very pretty dancing. The whole piece was admirably performed to the largest and most intelligent audience ever assembled in Kirkfield. Too much cannot be said of the enterprise and ability of the young lady who got up this really brilliant entertainment for the benefit as well as the amusement of the people of Kirkfield. The proceeds were devoted to the purchase of prize books for the school children.

FOLEY INSTITUTE EXAMINATION.—The examination of the R.C. separate school and closing of the Foley institute took place on Wednesday, 23rd ult., at which quite a number of ladies and gentleman were present. The examination was conducted by Mr. Malone, the teacher, assisted by Rev. Father Davis and Mr. Gaughen, and showed marked advancement made by the pupils since last time, speaking volumes for the teacher's ability to impart knowledge into the young minds. The oldest scholar in the school cannot be more than about fourteen year of age, yet there were questions answered that would do credit to those standing an examination for a teacher. Several readings and recitations were given by a number of the scholars in a very creditable manner, after which the following address accompanied with a following address accompanied with a very handsome writing deak was present-ed to Mr. Malone:

very handsome writing deak was presented to Mr. Malone:

FOLEY INSTITUTE.

Mr. Malone, dear teacher:—We, the children of the Foley institute assembled around you on this occasion to offer you a small token of our love and esteem, also is expressing our regret to be about to bid you farewell; soon we must say that word so sad to every heart. It would seem strange after our intercourse with you for the past five years if we should refrain at this parting hour from bidding you an affectionate farewell. We are not insensible to the many kindnesses which you have shown us, nor do we appreciate them less because we leave them unspoken. There is an eloquence in silence which werds cannot express. We do not wish the few words which have dropped from our lips at an hour like this to be taken as an expression of the esteem which blad us to you. Dear teacher, we shall not farget you. Hours that were weary you have done all in your power to make agreeable. We, the children of the Feley institute shall in after years look back with thoughts of affection to the ties which now bind us, and with happy thoughts of bygene school days shall bring us an echo of your name. We deem it fitting then before the hour of parting to leave something behind us which would sometimes bring us more sensibly before you. Be pleased then to accept this small token which we as the regressentatives of our number have the pleasure of affering as a token of our esteem. Its value is insignificant; but we know well that anything given from the heart shall have its enchantments for you. Old associations must be left behind, but so long as the star of memery lights up our future pathway, so long will we remember you. Dear teacher, while we say farswell to you our hearts bid us hope that we will have you back some future day. Wishing you the compliments of the season, farewell. Signed on behalf of the school children,

Mr. Malone then reptied in a very feeling manner and both teacher and children were deeply moved.

Christmas True.—The annual Christmas tree of the Methodist Sunday school was held in the church on the evening of Wednesday, 23rd ult., and was well attended by all denominations. The tree was well loaded with handsome Christmas gifts and many hearts were made glad. Dr. Gilpin filled the chair in his usual happy style and favored the audience with several readings. Our old friend, Rev. Mr. Halgats, was present and in his reminiscences of his native land entertained and etyle and favored the audience with several readings. Our old friend, Rev. Mr. Halgats, was present and in his reminiscences of his native land entertained and amused the audience at considerable length. Several other readings and recitations were given in excellent style and were well received. The choir rendered several fine selections, which elicited great applause and did credit to their leader. Mr. Clark. Hev. Mr. Mallet presented Miss Clark with a very handsomely bound album coming from the congregation in recognition of her services as organist. Everything passed off very pleasantly, and it was a very edifying sight to see youth and old age assembled together to do honor to the occasion.

Sr. Andrew's Church.—At this church high mass was calebrated at midnight and a very eloquent sermon delivered on "The goopel of the day," by Rev. Father Davia. At nine o'clock mass was said for the children. Even the choir for this mass was composed of children. At 10.30 o'clock the third mass was colebrated. The church was very tastefully decreated for the occasion, and the Christmas effecting exceeded that of last year in spite of the hard times and the many calls that have been made on the congregation during the last pass.

The rest of the evening's amusement was spent as is customary at such gatherings. Subjoined is the address. Miss Murchison made a brief but suitable reply: Miss M. Murchison,—We have met here this evening to express on behalf of the scholars their thanks for the service which for a long period you have so faithfully rendered to the school; and we have felt that it would be right and fitting that our thanks should be expressed by more than words and that we should give a substantial token of our grateful recognition of your services as teacher, which would be to you a pleasant memorial and reminder of the scholars whose interest you have sought to advance. We take pleasure in presenting you with this cake basket and this album, which are the united contributions of the parents and scholars in this section, and you will please accept them as the genuine expression of the feeling of the parents and scholars of this section.—Signed on behalf the school. the genuine expression of the feeling of the parents and scholars of this section.—Signed on behalf the school.
