A CRUSHING REJOINDER.—Will you allow me space in your valuable columns so comment or rather particularize the nature of a certain creature whose ideas expressed geometrically would be obtuse, algebraically sbourd, grammatically incorrect, and in regard to composition might be called a horrible mangling of the English language. We extend our sympathy to the subjects of his observance, for he is now climbing the ladder of fame by expressing himself in words through the columns of the Lindsay Warder, and gets through him just what you might expect a jumble of degraded personalities about his neighbors. Of course his morose disposition would not allow him to arise from the channel of injuity (where his sordid self lies) and mingle with the undefiled and breathe the air of a purer atmosphere. But no, his plan of warfare, like the half-breeds, consists in despatching deadly volleys interested height. low me space in your valuable columns so plan of warfare, like the half-breeds, consists in despatching deadly volleys intrenched behind a deposition of mud or some similar defence. How inconsistent for a thing of his calibre, possessing a murdered reputation as he does, to criticize the frailties of mankind, for it is quite evident that all the finer, delicate feelings, differences, and aspirations which are usually found in the human composition are entirely unknown in his carcase. In fact, his blunt sensibilities can be brought to a reasoning mood through the hide only, and an application of No. 9°s might be very effective if applied with proper velocity. Now, for the sake of his parents we will not expose the worldly propensities of this creature here, but should he again emerge from the realms of despondency to rid himself of a surplue of bile we will take him in hands and hold him out on the end of a pin, as an object of present contempt and fature ridicula. pin, as an object of present contempt and

ANOTHER FATAL DIPHTHERIA CASE.—
The little daughter of Mr. Abner Baker of Minden township, referred to in our columns last week as being dangerously ill, hed peacefully passed to her rust before that edition had been worked off. We understand the other child is progressing favorably towards convalescence, and as there are no other cases at present in this part of the country we hope the cread disease will now take its final departure.

Onfruary.—We clip the following from the Genesses Democrat: "Arnold Height, a son of Rickerson Height of the township of Buyton, died suddenly at two o'clock on Sunday morning, aged fourteen years. The funeral services were held at the house on Tuesday morning at ren o'clock." The father of the deceased is brother to Mrs. R. C. Gasrett of this place.

Narrow Escapz.—Last Friday week Wm. Gainer, son of Mr. John Gainer of Mountain lake, whilst chopping in a fallow on his father's farm fell a large maple, which struck against another tree and broke its top, which rebounded, and before he could get out of the way it struck him down, almost burying him out of sight in the deep snow. His brother Robert John was at work some distance from him, and not heaving anything from him or the sound of his are went to ascertain the cause and found him lying under the tree, almost suffocated and insensible and mouning. He at once set to work to dig him out and with a great deal of difficulty did so, and when he came to his senses assisted him home. No bones appear to have been broken, but he complaine of pain internally. At present he is able to walk about, but it will be some time before he can do anything in the shape of work.—

SOUTHERN SPARKS FROM JAN-

STILL INCREASING.—The population of Jametville is gaining nearly every week. Sometimes it is very small, but Jametville is the place for them to grow. The last arrival was Mr. Robert Casey and family. Mr. Casey will act as agent for the Sylvester Mfg. Co., Lindsay, and this will be a great covenience to the surrounding country as farmers will not have to drive to Lindsay for repairs if they break any of their machinery, as Mr. Casey will have a good supply on hand. Mr. Sylvester has certainly secured a good and reliable agent in Mr. Casey. He is prepared to sell every kind of machinery a farmer wants from a wheelbarrow up to a self-binder. Give him a call. Bob will do what is square.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Mr. J. Hobbs is busy working at his new shop. It will be quite an improvement to the village. DUNSFORD. "LOST IN THE WOODS."—Last week the tory party in Lindsay sent to our neighborhood a certain limb of the law to advance hood a certain limb of the law to advance their claims. As near as we can learn he came as a sort of political drummer to solicit affidavits from the unsuspecting youths of our country, with the view of enticing them to enroll their names in a certain political organization. After working as ar duously in the interest of his employers as ever a hay fork agent or patent medicine vender was known to do,he was returning homeelated with the sales he had made, but, also in his excurses to gain the appliance. home-clated with the sales he had made, but, alse! in his engerness to gain the applianse of his fellows he worked too late, and while contemplating the fat sinecure awaiting him in the near future, was benighted and lost his way. On discovering his unfortunate predicament the happy thought struck him that the voice which had for several days been cilily used to flatter his wares might also be used with equal success in saving his "careass," as the Warder calls it, from annihilation. So he first tried a gentle and persuasive call, then a yell resembling an Indian was whoop and finally gave vent to a series of shouts, yells and cries that alarmed the neighborhood. Some thought pandemonium was let loose, others a stray spook looking for reinterment, others would not go out for they thought it was a party of wild cats. The man in whose field the unfortunate object was, went out with a lantern and on seeing it concluded it was a stray wolf and est his dops on it. Another more courageous went up and took hold of it, and found it to be a shivering lot of flesh and bones woven into the form of a man. When next the tory party sends out a canvascer it would be well to put a ticket on him requesting any person finding him astray to please forward him to Lindsay.
