SUDDEN DEATH.—Mr. Edmund Chamber-len, an old and wealthy citizen of Peter-boro, died suddenly from a paralytic stroke en Monday of last week. He was in his 75th year.

OBITUARY.—OnSunday evening Mr. John Ludgate, who is well known in every part of the country hereabouts, died, after a long illness, at his residence, "The Highlands," Ashburnham. For several years Mr. Ludgate has been afflicted with ill-health, and although he sought all means of effecting gate has been afflicted with ill-health, and although he sought all means of effecting a cure, even spending some time in the mild climate of the Pacific slope, no amendment of his condition was effected. About six weeks ago his illness took so aggravated a form that he was confined to his room and though no hope was entertained for his recovery, his comparatively sudden death was unexpected. On Sunday evening, while the members of the family, excepting Mrs. Ludgate, not having reason to fear any change in his condition, were at church, death made its dread demand. The deceased gentleman, who was of Scottish extraction, has been a long time a resident of this vicinity, and is well known through extraction, has been a long time a resident of this vicinity, and is well known through his connection with extensive lumbering operations. About the year 1870, soon after the destruction by fire (July 17, 1868) of Mesers. Macdougall & Co.'s mills, Ashburaham, and on their re-establishment at Harwood, Mr. Ludgate became a partner of the new firm of Macdougall & Ludgate, which existed for about a quarter of a century, becoming dissolved on the death of Mr. Macdougall. From this time Mr. Ludgate cessed active business operations and retired to his suburban farm, "The Highretired to his suburban farm, "The High-lands." At the time of his death Mr. Lud-gate was 57 years of age. He was a pro-nounced liberal in politics and his exten-sive business operations have made his name familiar with thousands who will receive the announcement of his death with deep regret.—[Examiner.

BEAVERTON. [Correspondence of The Post.] MONEY TO LOAN.-$50,000 private and ompany funds at six per cent. Louis M. LAYES, barrister, Beaverton.—79-8. THE LAKE SINCOE STOCK FARM.—It has often been our desire to bring before the a few of the successful farmers through this section. However, owing to pressure of time we have been unable to visit any of the farmers until a short time ago. We have chosen for the following short sketch, "The Lake Simcee stock farm," owned by Mr. J. A. Proctor. The farm is composed of about two hundred acres. What is known as the Lake Sincoe farm proper contains only one hundred acres. The balance of the land is about half a mile south of this place. I think I am safe in stating that there was no farm in Thorah that had a more neglected looking appearance than this when Mr. Proctor took possession a few years ago. To day none has a more prosperous appearance. Many were the pre-dictions when Mr. Proctor turned his at-tention to the noble and dignified pursuit of agriculture that he would not make it a success on account of his want of practi-cal experience. The impression was that he would be a mere theorist or book farmer. It is not necessary that a farmer properly so called should get his coat off and plod along from daylight to dark. He is wasting his energies and is only filling the place of a hired man. We don't purpose to place of a hired man. We don't purpose to convey the impression that practical knowledge is not essential, but it is not all. The man who is a practical judge of work and looks after the details, being an acute observer will soon be able to direct all the operations on a farm. We have noticed that the farmer who has made a success of his hustiness would have deather than the farmer would have been supplied to the farmer would have the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer would be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of the farmer who have not be able to direct all the operations of that the farmer who has made a success of his business would no doubt have been equally successful in other callings. This has been demonstrated in Mr. Proctors' case, while in the milling business he was eminently prosperous. But to return to the now immediate object for which we have written this imperfect notice. The outlay for the improvement of this farm has been large, but we think it is well outlay for the improvement of this farm has been large, but we think it is well spent and before long the profits of the investment will show itself. Already we believe it has done so. We understand the sales from the farm this year, which is scknowledged to be a very hard one on the farmer, were over twenty-five hundred dollars. The balance of the stock on hand I can assure you have not been stinted in feed either. He has fifty head of cattle, the majority of which are grade Durhams. There are a few pure-bred ones, and all are in splendid condition. The eleven head of fat cattle are without exception the finest in this part of the country. The majority of them are two-year olds. They are sold for five and a haif cents per pound to Henry Maybee of Cannington, and when they go away the list of May he expects them to average about fifteen hundred pounds. The fine condition of the stock reflects much credit to Mr. Jack Watson, who has the immedicondition of the stock reflects much credit to Mr. Jack Watson, who has the immedi-ste charge of their attendance during the winter. Jack will no doubt make a suc-cessful stock-man if he continues. I un-derstand there is enough manure ready on this place to cover twenty-five acres well. This must certainly bring it into a high state of cultivation econ. The improvements on this farm are almost completed. Lately the barnyard has been enclosed with a very fine substantial board fence, which adds very much to its appearance.

closed with a very line substantial board fence, which adds very much to its appearance. Mr. Proctor purposes making several lanes which will be fenced in with boards. Later on when all the plans for improvement on this farm are completed we may send more particulars.

Spring Show.—The annual spring fair held here on Wednesday, the 21st, was a decided improvement on former years, both in the number of exhibits and the excellence of the stock shown. We doubt if in the province a better bred lot of horses in the different classes has been shown this spring. The weather was all that could be desired. The number of visitors on the ground was far in excess of former years, proving that a deep interest is manifested by the farmers of Thorah in making their fairs successful. There was a very line show of Durham bulls. Amongst the exhibitors were Mesers. Hostskinson, Grant, Turner and Buckler. All the animale were highly creditable to the owners as choice improved thorough-breds.
