LINDSAY, FRIDAY, MAY 7, 1896. BREATHE SOFT AND LOW.

Breathe soft and low, O whispering wind, Above the tangled grasses deep, Where those who loved me long ago Forgot the world and fell asleep. No towering shaft, or sculptured urn, Or mausoleum's empty pride, Tells to the curious passer-by Their virtues, or the time they died. I count the old familiar names, O'ergrown with moss and lichen gray, Where tangled brier, and creeping vine Across the crumbling tablets stray.

The summer sky is softly blue, The birds still sing the sweet old strain, But something from the summer time Is gone, that will not come again. So many voices have been hushed-

So many voices ceased for aye-So many hands I used to touch Are folded over hearts of clay. The noisy world recedes from me; I cease to hear its praise or blame; The mossy marbles echo back

No hollow sound of empty fame.

I only know that calm and still They sleep beyond life's woe and wail, Beyond the fleet of sailing clouds, Reyond the shadow of the vale; I only feel, that tired and worn,

I halt upon the highway bare, And gaze with yearning eyes beyond To fields that shine supremely fair.

SELLING A WIVE.—The Norwood Register teils a startling story, for the truth of which it vouches. During a drinking bout held in the words near Norwood, one of the party conceived a sudden desire for a wife. A father and son were the party and it was first proposed to sell the "old woman" to the lonesome bachelor, but she was rejected as being too old sud lacking in "style and speed." The son's wife, to whom he had been married less than a year, was next offered and she filling the bill, the bargain was struck and the price was fixed—"$3 cash or $5 on time." The money was paid over, the woman was brought to the woods and the delivery of "goods" was made. A rope was fastesed about the ankle of the woman and the husband placed the rope in the hands of the purchaser with a formula, duly witnessed, renouncing all right title and claim to the wife in favor of the purchaser. The woman was then led away by her new possesor, who seemed proud of his bargain. The story is an improbable one, but the Register is sure of its truth. If it is true the conclusion must be come to that civilization is only skin deep and very thin-skinned at that.—Examiner.

Sawing and Gristing.—Mr. Thomas Best, who runs both a grist and a saw mill a short distance east of this place, is doing a fushing business this season, especially in his new saw mill. He has been sawing over a month now and will not get through with what he has to do till some time after harvest. Mr. Best does good work in both his mills hence the good patronage.

Brieflets.—Our villagers are busily engaged in the gardens these fine days. The hens also take a hand in too, to pulverize the beds after they have been sown, but Mr. Gardiner does not appreciative their labors at all.....A good many of the farmers in this locality have done a good deal

PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE.—The joint committee have let the contract for the repairs to the Pigeon creek bridge to Mr. J. The bridge is to be strengthened and generally extent of about a hundred dollars. The bridge is to be strengthened and generally repaired, and at two broken points it is to be widened for giving passing room. The repairs are much needed. At the present time many horses refuse to cross it. One gentleman of this village had to return last week, as his horse would not take the water at a point where the bridge is broken and one part has sunk several feet. The contract specifies that the job must be completed by the first of June. It is to be hoped that it will not be a day later.

VISITORS.—The ever busy life insurance agent seems for the time being to have deserted our village, for the object doubtless of giving the citizens an opportunity of cleaning up his back yard and getting his potatoes planted; but his place is ably filled by several jattractions, prominent among which we may mention a venerable gentleman of patriarchial appearance, who is conducting a "deportment and dancing class" in the Laidlaw block. Another gentleman with a silk hat and well developed chest has started a singing class in the town hail, and those who are capable of judging say he "just knews how to do it." A concert was given by his class on Thursday night. Another attraction is a young man dressed in "tights," who gave a free exhibition on Monday evening, as a gymnast and acrobatic performer, some of his tricks were really wonderful. He took up his boedle in a cigar box.

BELLEVILLE.

LIBEL AND SLANDER ACTIONS.—The case of Thos. Wills, county treasurer of Hastings, against the Belleville Ontario, was before Chief Justice Cameron and a jury for two days at the assizes at Belleville last week. The defendants charged plaintiff in substance with irregularities in his office, principally in convection with the sales of substance with irregularities in his office, principally in connection with the sales of wild lands in arrears for taxes. Plaintiff sued for $10,000 damages. The evidence showed that Wills acted as seller, and his clerk bid in certain lots at a nominal sum in obedience to his instructions, whereby the township lost a large proportion of taxes due. The judge's charge was strongly against the newspaper. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff with no damages, which, of course, still leaves the question ers in this locality have done a good deal of seeding.... A GOOD YARN.—In cutting up a beef carcase, for Dr. Bonnell's dogs, a strange lump was found adhering to the right hand eight ribs. On examination it proved to be a sack containing the rummest collection that could be possibly be imagined to enter the internal economy of a cow. There were several large sized sticks, a quantity of gravel, an iron pail ear, four stones the size of walnuts, and one flat stone half the size of a man's band and over an inch thick. It was noticed before the cow died, that whenever she ran she jingled like a child's rattle, but there was no accounting for ft. From a scientific point the case is interesting as no other cow was ever known to have a sack in the particular place this was found, and certainly none ever took the peculiar notion of filling it with such hard text.—Independent.
