For the Young Men Particularly.

On Friday evening under the most favorable circumstances the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association were opened. Their fine rooms, fresh from the hand of the painter, gayly decorated and furnished with all modern requirements calculated to premote cheerfulness and comfort, were jammed to the doors. The ladies, doubly welcome, and in the majority took a lively interest in the arrangements of the furnishings, for which they had contributed so liberally to supply. As a prelude to the lecture to be delivered by Mr. Wilkie, a short but interesting program was rendered. There were liberally to supply. As a prelude to the lecture to be delivered by Mr. Wilkie, a short but interesting program was rendered. There were choruses by the association choir, including a whistling chorus—a novelty that provoked much mirth; an instrumental trio by Mr. Johnston and Messrs, E. and W. Johnston, and a reading by Miss Pearl Rose. The speaker, Mr. Wilkie, was then introduced and delivered an address of practical interest to the young men and all Christian workers. He gave a short sketch of the association from its small beginning in a London warehouse in 1814 until the present time, when branches of this great organization were to be found in all parts of the world. He spoke of its members who going strangers to any of the cities in this or the old country would always find friends who were willing and oble to assist them. —We learn that it is the intention of Mr. R. Gorman, the well-known theatrical artist, to play his popular company through Canada, opening for a few nights at principal points. The company has done a fine business in the south, and from a late New Orleans paper we take the following:—"The sudience that filled every seat, and occupied all the svallable space in the Avenue theatre, was sufficient evidence of the pepularity of the place, and here witness at the same time of the good opinion entertained of the star actor, Dick Gorman, and his excellent combination. Mr. Gorman is no stranger to this city; he has already appeared before the New Orleans public and has carned deserved laurels. Therefore, when the vast sudience last night greeted him, there was at undentable frankmess of feeling in the popular outburst of appreciation. The play was "Courad, or the Hand of a Friend," a powerful, highly intervating drama which was presented last year and which sward a magnificent success. Shooting Match.—As it is customary for the boys of this neighborhood to have a shooting match in the fall of each year, they resolved that this fall should be no exception to the rule. The day appointed for the shooting was Saturday, November 6th, a very unpleasant day indeed, as it had snowed on the previous night and continued to snow during most of that day; but notwithstanding all this about twelve gallant fellows turned out on each side. Mr. John Anderson had the honor of being captain on one side and Mr. John Baxter on the other. As soon as the shades of evening fell each hunter wended his way to the Temperance house, where past experience had taught him that a splendid supper prepared in Mrs. Heaslip's good, liberalhearted style awaited him. When the game-bags had been turned inside out and the points counted it was found that Mr. Anderson's side had gained the day, winning by several points. Of course, Mr. Baxter, captain of the defeated side, in his liberal, off-handed way, paid for the supper for both sides. Long may the boys continue to have this annual sport.
