Accident.—On Monday last, as Mr. Samuel Swanton of Fenelon was driving out of the Falis, his horses took fright at the engine used to drive the planer at the canal, and ran away in consequence of one of the bits breaking. Mr. Swanton was thrown out, but fortunately was not seriously injured, as no bones were broken, but his left knee was somewhat skinned and there was a mark around the right leg where a wheel had apparently passed over it. The horses ran across the iron bridge, but Mrs. Swanton, who was in the waggon, managed to stop them before they got much farther.—[Gazette.

Dird from the Injuries.—The lad lacob Alfred Powley died from the effects of the gun shot accident recently recorded in Thr Poet. The charge entered as a mass under his arm, but scattered as it came out, severing the artery, muscles and sinews frightfully. The surgeons said there was no hope with the dead arm on, and only a bare chance with it off. The one chance was taken on Friday, but poor young Powley died under the operation. No blame could attach either to Mr. Nelson or deceased, as the weapon was handled or deceased, as the weapon was handled with every care and placed in what was regarded as the safest position for carrying it.
