Mr. Beaugrand, the French Catholic Eberal mayor of Montreal, fought the battle against the smallpox and anti-vaccination prejudice in that city, and Mr. Langelier, the French Catholic liberal mayor of Quebec, fought the battle for the salvation army there. It is not from the influence of such men that Canada or Protestantism is in danger.

"Can it be true," asks a cotemporary who knows whereof it writes, "that the nominal editor of the alleged religious iournal, which seems to regard itself as the bulwark of Protestantism in Ontario. offered his influence, his vote, and the votes of his friends to the Ontario government in return for a government position." This is a pretty hard nut for some one to Reads of Times: "The Toronto World say the defeat of Sir John Macdonald will be owing to the 'immoral hoggishnes 'of some of his followers,' 'Immoral hogashness' is good : But how would it be possible for the followers of the tory leader to be immorally hoggish -- in other other words to steal the public resource were the government not a consenting party to the transaction? Let us put the saddle on the right horse, Mr. World. The rescals would have been powerless to do harm if the ministers had been possessed of hackbone enough to do right." The World as atting to be a good tory paper; and it does well to give reasons for the coming defeat of Sir John Macdonald.

The Ottawi Free Press says: "Fame exhibits some oneer frenks at intervals, and Mr. Colors and Prof. Foster are just he within the ressed with the soundness of that view. In exposing the hollowness of Mr. D. McMaster's promise to his Glengarry constituent: that he would do everything in his power for the Scott act, the Globe does well to point out how Mr. McMaster's record in the house betrays his insincerity, ecause it applies to the conservative party generally:-

"The records of parliament skew how Mr. Macmaster has "done everything in his power" in regard to temperance. On the 5th April, 1816, Mr. Jamieson's metion that "the order for the second reading of bill No. 92 further to amend the Canada Temperance act, 1878, he now read" was carried. Fifty-one liberals voted with him and 35 conservatives. Four liberals voted against him and 58 conservatives. Mr. Macmaster was one of the 58. He did "everything in his power" against the temperance cause in that division. On the 19th Mar, 1886, Mr. Rate, on behalf of Mr. Jamieson, who was absent, nowed "that bill No. 93, further to amend the Canada Temperance act of 1878, he pieced on the list of government orders." Had the motion been carried the friends of temperance might have obtained the new machinery necessary to make the act effective. It was voted down by 87 conservatives and one liberal. There are 58 liberals and 14 conservatives with Mesers Blake and Jamieson in the minority. Mr. Macmaster was not one of them. He voted among the 87 conservatives against the friends of temperance."

Difficulties in Playing the Double Ga iliton Times.

The Toronto Mail has an Ottawa correspondent who telegraphs that "the lower French are solid against the Mowat administration." Yet for moaths past, the Mail editor has been asserting that the Ontario government has the sympathy and support of the French-speaking people, and pleading with the English-speaking race to vote solid for the tories. When a newspaper makes up its mind to misrepresent its political opponents it is apt, every now its political opponents it is apt, every new and again, to get into a snari. The organ which is playing a double game at Toronto is in that condition at the present moment.

[Ottawa Free Press.]

The uppermost question in the public nind to-day, as far as Ottawa is concerne is the plucky way Hon. Mr. Mowat has appealed to the country. Unlike Sir John Macdonald, he has not kept the country in Macdonald, he has not kept the country in a ferment and agitated over the matter of general elections for weeks, but has acted promptly. "People like pluck," said a staunch local tory "and in this respect Mowat is entitled to all credit. By his prompt action he has accured the votes of many moderate conservatives. As to his election and the return of the party by a good working majority there can be no dispute."

Gloomy Tory Political Outlook in Nova

A tory correspondent of the tory Montreal Star, writing from Amberst, Nova Scotia, gives a very gloomy account of the prospects of the tory party in that province. A well-informed Nova Scottan who is now in Ottawa, says that the tories are not sure of electing a single candidate in his province at the coming Dominion elections. and the letter of the Star's tory correspondent tends to confirm the statement. The correspondent in question writes with the view of awakening the conservatives to a sense of their danger, in the hope that they sense of their danger, in the hope that they may be able to do something to avert disastrous defeat. The Star publishes the letter in the interest of its party slso, hoping to point out some weak spots in the tory defences which may be strengthened before the struggle comes. The correspondent opens his letter by saying that "The general election for the Dominion is not looked forward to by Nova Scotia liberal conservatives with that hope and confidence that ensures success such as the supporters of a strong, honest, progressive and patriotic government should look forward to from an appeal to the people." He then proceeds to argue that the Dominion government are not responsible for the weakness of the tory party in Nova Scotia, but attributes the blame to the local tory leaernment are not responsible for the weakness of the tory party in Nova Scotia, but attributes the blame to the lecal tory leaders. We are told that if Sir Charles Tupper was only at the head of the Nova Scotia tories all this would be changed. But sensible people know that Sir Charles Tupper abandoned the field and sought shelter in a $42,000 house in London, because he found his party crumbling to pieces. Like a commander he abandoned his army when there was a prospect of defeat. Mr. McLelan, is described by the Star's tory correspondent as "deficient in almost every element that constitutes personal popularity" while "the average ability and standing of the Nova Scotia conservative members in the house was pretty clearly shown when Sir John Macdonald was compelled to take a judge off the bench and take him into the cabinet as Nova Scotia's escond representative." The minister of justice, we are told, is no leader either, and if the elections are held this autumn the tories will be struck by lightning at the pells. The

What Happened Her Lover.—A young lady reciding near here "mashed" one of our young gallants at a neighboring party and it behooved him at the expiration of the jovial seambly to act as it became a gentleman and see her home. On reaching the alovessid spot the door was appealed to for hospitality. The young lady entering first and passing on, being the shorter of the two, our here following with visions of a sofe and footstool in his mind's eye, when to his horror he interrupted the peaceful repose of the pall which was hung up inside of the door in order that it might be preserved from the ravague of the hostiack. The admirable young swell at once retired to the cool side of the door, and in the strongest possible language tried to make the young lady believe the house was standing on its head. The young man has since had himself coaltared and vows his consistency.

Concern of the Post.

Concern.—The concert gives by the Omemee chors! society on Thanksgiving evening was a grand success. The opening piece was a selection from the Orchestra which was rendered in good style. Mrs. T. Ivory, jr., and Mrs. T. A. McPherson were well received in vocal seles. Henry Sherwood gave a coronet sole assisted by Mise McRes on the plane. The audience were highly delighted judging from the applaues given. Hise Mollie English fairly captivated the music-loving part of the audience by the instrumental piece she gave on the pismo, entitled "Le Reveil du Lion," Mr. Petty of Lindeay rendered some comic songs in fine style. He was several times encored. The chorse or give club did their past remarkably well. The glee sang by Mrs. Morri-on, Mrs. S. H. Sandy as sophrano, Mise English as alto and Mr. George Balfouras base profundo was rendered with all the delicacy of shading, accuracy and correctness of time to give it good effect, the four voices being well belanced and harmonous. Dr. Furrer, the musical director, deserves great credit for the manner in which he trained the different singers. Obstuary.—The late Joeish Charles Hughes was born at Omemee, Ont., on the 15th May, 1843. He was one of a party of about 20 who left Peterboro, on the 12th of March, 1862, to seek their fortune in British Columbia. Early in May he reached this city. He was in 1871, elected as one of the representatives of this district to the first OMFMEE. Columbia. Early in May he reached this city. He was in 1871, elected as one of the representatives of this district to the first popular legislature, and afterwards received the appointment of government agent of this city. He held this office until a few years ago, when he was appointed by the Dominion government Indian agent for the north-west coast. He proceeded to Metlamakies a few months ago in the performance of duties, but returned complaining that he was not well. After remaining with his family a few weeks, he again left for Metlakahtla, but did not proceed farther than Victoria, where he became so much worse that he had to be brought back. Notwithstanding the care of his physicians and friends, he sank rapidly. It is believed that he was suffering from an affection of the brain. Mr Hughes was known all over the province, and had many warm friends. He was of a genial disposition, warm hearted, and always ready to attend to the appeal of the suffering. He took great interest in natural history, and contributed to some of the leading literary periodicals. He leaves a wife, and three children, and a brother in the city. The funeral will take place under the suspices of the Masons and Workmen, the deceased being a member of both orders. Deceased was a nephew of Mrs. Thomas Matchett, Lindsay, and has many other relations remaining in this part of Canada.—[Herald.

This great work, begun with the sanction of Press dent Lincoln, and continued under the authority of his son, the Hon. Robert T. Its authors were friends of Lincoln before his presidency; they were most intimately associated with him as private secretaries throughout his term of office, and to them were transferred upon Lincoln's death all his private papers. Here will be told the inside history of the civil war and of President Lincoln's administration,—important details of which have hitherto remained unrevealed, that they might first appear in this anthentic history.
