and I have not been troubled since. -- T. W. Boddy, River st., Lowell, Mass. I was troubled with Boils, and my health was much impaired. I began using Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, in due time, the eruptions all disappeared, and my health was completely restored,—John R. Elkins, Editor Stanley Observer, Albemarle, N. C.

I was troubled, for a long time, with a humor which appeared on my face in ugly Pimples and Blotches. Ayer's Sarsaparilla cared me. I consider it the best blood purifier in the world. Charles H. Smith, North Craftsbury, Vt.

the death of Miss Maggie J., only daughter of our respected fellow citizen, Mr. J. Devell, in the 19th year of herees. The Deyell, in the 19th year of her age. The deceased young lady was alling for the past few weeks, yet her fond parents have all along cherished the hope that the angel of death would stay his band and that their loved one would be restored to health and eft to brighten their home for at least a few short years to come. But 'tis the old saying verified: "Man proposes, but God disposes. At seven o'clock on Saturday evening, 29th January, her pure soul was borne we trust by the augel of mercy to the realm of eternal blies, there to enjoy the reward of her labors here below, which the reward of her labors here below, which she so richly deserved. Instructed and edified by the teachings and examples of God-fearing parents, she had early imbible of the principles of Christian piety, from which she never severed until her latest breath. Her death was characterized by that caim, christian resignation which is ever the reward of a virtuous life. Death is sad at all times, but doubly so when it atrikes at the youthful, whose hopes in life are just beginning. Still Maggie met death with a resignation surprising to one of her years. Why should the sorrow-strickes family weep! What a beautiful transformation! Their song-bird is only gone before to open the portals of sternal bilas for those whom she has left behind. Kind brothers may deplore their loss; fond and loving parents may weep, yet Maggie to the paggod a celt as I have ever seen in the portals of the paggod a celt as I have ever seen in the portals of the paggod a celt as I have ever seen in the paggod and the paggod a celt as I have ever seen in the paggod and the paggod a celt as I have ever seen in the paggod and the

The groom was assisted through the trying ordeal by Mr. Henry Doran, Miss Annie Burns, niece of the bridg acted as philogogial. of the bride acted as bridesmaid .... A few evenings later a large number of the friends of the young couple assembled at "Cherry Grove," the residence of the bride's father, and immediately took possession of the specious dweiling. As each one deposited their present on the large table in the drawing room it would remind you of gazing in a well selected show case in some silverware city store. The venerable old gentleman and his estimable lady, ever noted for their hospitality, fully sustained their reputation on this occasion, and did all in their power to make the young people assembled erjoy themselves in various amusements. A grand supper was mean-while being laid out in the large dining-room, the tables fairly groaned under the weight of the good things.
