During the course of the debate Friday night

Salisbury government are at last in a ludicrous hole, and for their life they do not see how to get out, while poor Sir Charles Mr. Healy said every possible question seemed worthy of enquiry by the house except a question affecting the character of its members. The Parnellites did not care whether they got this enquiry or not, nerwood barber was beaten but if the government majority refused this enquiry, the name of British gentlemen would be placed on a level with that of Indian thugs. The Parnellites challenged the tories to combat at once on this question. They would stand on no technical references, but would meet any charges brought against them. From the decision of the majority of the house the Parnellites would appeal to the people outside and to other nations. The Irish people never sent them there to beg favors but to demand their rights. Major Saunderson said he did not wonder that Mr. Gladstone tried to whitewash his Irish friends who were now supplying his policy. He challenged Mr. Dillon to disprove the Times' evidence. Mr. Dillon—"I have offered to enter into the charges fully before a committee. I shall no longer exchange the lie with members of the house on them."

(Cheers.) Henry Fewler (liberal) said the Parnellites did not desire to limit the enquiry. He had a telegram from Mr. Parneil stating that he was quite willing to extend the enquiry so as to include the forged letter published in the Times..... The Montreal Star's London corresp

The Montreal Stars London correspondent cables on Saturday: It would be difficult to exaggerate the disgust of the liberale or the great shame and open wrath of the tories upon the whole question of the privileges debate. For weeks past the Times has been burning the foulest changes against the Irish members. The tories have been sensitive them in the beauty than in the barness. have been repeating them is the house night after night. Both newspaper and politicians made their chief taunt the denight after night. Both newspaper and politicians made their chief taunt the demand that these charges be met. Now, when Mr. Gladetone himself moves, in a perfectly constitutional method, for a select committee of the bouse to enquire into these charges; when Mr. Dillon appeals for it, that he may meet the charges against himself; when Mr. Parnett telegraphs saking that its scope be so enlarged as to include the whole question, including the Timos' fac simile letter; when Mr. Moviey, on Mr. Chadetone's behalf, expresses as quiescence in this view the government and all their followers turn instantly right about face and refuse an enquiry with a majority of 14, being, of course, absolutely certain, as almost every sade man may be said to be; thus Mr. Parnett will not subject himself to all the rishs and uncertainties of a colossal likel suit. The feeling on this may be judged from the constanting words of the Pall Mail Gasette's editorial to day: "The country will know that it is indie to say that the Irish members could visitions themselves if they pleased by taking an action at law against their traditions. The Irish members, rightly or avonage, do not think they need vindicating. It is not the home rulers who are laying stress upon the importance of the charges in the Times. We would be perfectly willing to treat them with sites contempt, it is the other side that lays such stress upon these securations. If for any reases is caused for Irish members to take at action at law, then if there is a spark of stacertry is their prefections they are bound to take the only owned with they are bound to take the only owned by the way of —A London cable to the New York Tribune says: Mr. O'Brien's visit to Canada is pretty certainly against Mr. Parnell's wish, in obedience to which it was postponed and it was supposed abandoned. Lord Lanedowne's Weitshire tenants, 504 strong, who have signed a letter certifying to his good character as a landlord, say they have been treated with kindness, courtesy and generosity, and they offer him sympathy in his troubles with his Irish tenants. Mr. Trench's second letter gives a most explicit and circumstantial denial of every charge of bad faith against Lord Lanadowne in the recent negotiations.

-Among the anecdotes which are still being told about Henry Ward Beecher is the following the famous preacher was fond of telling: "Speaking of clever things," said Mr. Beecher, "did you ever hear that good poem written twenty years ago on my name? Hers, Ma (he always called Mrs. Beecher Ms), you read it to Perkins. I've forgotten the words." Mrs. Beecher smilingly put on her glasses, went to a drawer, took out a bit of paper and smilingly read:

—A London cable says: Mr. O'Brien's charge of bad faith against Lord Lansdowne in repudiating his agreement with his tenants is met by a letter to the Times from Lord Lansdowne's agent, Mr. Trench. The terms were suggested by the sub-agent, Mr. Denning, and forwarded to Mr. Trench in London, who at once telegraphed his dissent. They were never communicated to Lord Lansdowne. They were practically as follows: First, judicial lease-holders, who saked 20 off to get 15, and non-judicial ones, who asked 30 off to get 20; second, all evicted tenants to be reinstated on the payment of half a year's rent minus the abatement; third, no costs to be

-The London correspondent of the Mon. treal Star cables se follows on Friday: 'The dicrous hole, and for their life they do not see how to get out, while poor Sir Charles Lewis is the most execrated man in the tory party. The suggestion that the attorney-general should prosecute the Times on behalf of Mr. Dillon may safely be described se the most demented which ever issued from the brains of nuzzled and unscrupulous politicians. When Mr. Smith offered it the house was allent for a min-ute, not being able to believe that he was serious. Then the liberals and Parnellites slike broke into roars of laughter, again and again repeated, in which, aftera while the conservatives were compelled to join. First, the government thus invite the Parneilites to a collusive action at law, in which the plaintiff and defendant should be of the same opinion; secondly, and madder still, they invite the Parnellites to place the whole of their case in the hands of the attorney-general, and therefore within the knowledge of the government, their bitterest and most unscrupulous ene nies. It is difficult to see how any one outside of Bedlam can have conceived such a plan. The Parneilites, however, are making splendid capital out of the folly making splendid capital out of the folly and vaciliation of the government. As for the question of breach of privilege, there can be no doubt the Times was guilty, according to all precedent. The ten precedents of the government, as Mr. Gladstone end Thursday night, are so irrelevant as not to be worth ten brase farthings. Take only one real precedent. In 1863 Sir Edward, then Mr. Reid, chief constructor to the navy, wrote to Sir Frederick Smith a the navy, wrote to Sir Frederick Smith a letter accusing him of having made false and libelious statements concerning him is his piace in parliament. Mr. Reed was summoned to the bar and the letter decided unanimously to be a breach of privi-lege.
