BANK. EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR

OTTAWA, June 6th, 1887. MR. BLAKE'S ILL-HEALTH AND RETIREMENT FOR THE SESSION-CHAPLRAIT AND THE RETAINED-THE MEMBER FOR NORTH

One of the favored arguments of parliato appear in the galleries and hear for the first time the arguments of the speakers on the other side, he would be surprised or clusions-which the author sets forth in full-exceedingly uncomplimentary to the other side. If that stranger were to appear and spend half a day in the lobbies of the house at present he would be very much house are at present in a very peculiar position. The announcement that Hon. Edward Blake would not appear in the house again this session has naturally fampered the ardor of the liberals, as is the case with any organization when the leader is removed. Mr. Blake has been suffering from insomnia, and has left the field of active politics to seek his lost health. He retires to a cottage on Murray Bay where he will spend the summer, by the close of which, it is hoped by his followars, he will be himself again. Mr. Blake not having been very much in the house during the present session, owing to the unsatis-factory state of his health, the liberals are better prepared to proceed without him than they would have been had his determination to go away been reached sudden-ination to go away been reached sudden-ly. They will miss their leader's splendid knowledge of parliamentary affairs and his great ability as speaker and leader, but they will nevertheless continue, as they have hitherto done this session, to give the government a strong oppo

A CABINET ROW. Once more Chapleau has been and gone and done it and all sorts of rumours are flying as to trouble in the conservative camp. In the last letter it was noted that Chapleau had been offered and might accept the lieut.-governorship of Quebec.
There is no doubt that such is the case and it may be that he will yet take the position. But there is every reason to believe that he recognises that in seeking the retirement of a lieutenant-governorship he practically gives ship of the French-Canadian conservatives. This would please Sir John Macdonald very much. A lieutenant-governorship would not be an honor to Chapleau, but would be a direct snub from the premier for his action in taking the government by the throat just before the last election and demanding very great concessions at Langevin's expense under threat of retirement from the field at the time when he was most needed. It has become axiomatic in Canada that "John A. never forgets or forgives an injury." And it may be said with safety that the premier would delight in degrading Chapleau at this time. But the latter, instead of leaving it a question between keeping his present place and accepting a lower one, has actually made use of the opening in the lieutenant-governorship to enforce demands for even higher honors than he now holds. It has been a matter of surprise to all since the beginning of the session that, although Langevin has hardly a follower and Chapleau has a great many, still Langevin holds his place next on Sir John's left hand, while Chapleau keeps a back seat. If Chapleau's men are as true to their leader as he has always been to his friends, they have only to say the word and stick to it and Chapleau becomes anything short of premier of the Do-minion. Sir John always sticks to his friends as long as he can, but he never was known to sacrifice himself for their benefit. known to sacrifice himself for their benealt. He would much prefer to keep Langevin in the cabinet and maintain him as the leader of the French section than give Chapleau the place. But Chapleau, it is said, now demands that the honors shall be given him as the victor and that Langevin shall be degraded. Chapleau's men have proven on former occasions their duty to bulldoze the government when it was far more difficult to do so than it is now. They are the the government when it was far more difficult to do so than it is now. They are the same men practically who compelled Sir John Macdonald to violate the constitution and dismiss Letellier, and the same who wrung about $7,000,000 out of the administration of the same who wrome allowing the $30. wrung about $4,000,000 out of the samina-tration for Quebec before allowing the $30,-000,000 loan to the Canadian Pacific to pass. These things were done at a time when the government had the confidence of all Queand when its majority ranged from 70 bec, and when its majority ranged from 70 to 100. Now the government worries along on majorities ranging from 19 to 40, made up wholly of persons who know that a conservative administration is better for the boosler than a reform administration can ever be. But these same mercenaries who now defend the government's position would go ever to the other side in a moment if they saw the ministry weakening. Consequently eight or nine determined men on the conservative side can get anything they want, and Chapleau has far more than that number, if they only show the necessary determination. It goes without saying of course that Sir John will "cave" as soon as he finds it necessary. He would sellout anything or anybody rather than give up the premierable.

THE QUEEN'S COUNTY TREFT LEGALISED. By a judicious use of the party whip the neervatives, with the exception of two, have been wheeled into line to vote that Mr. Beird, the man who was defeated in Queens, N.B., shall remain a member of speak, by the speeches they made on the subject. Easily in the week Returning him in answering the officers were answerable to the courts of law for their conduct, and to make them try twice for the same offence. Even the the Nova Scotia bench to act as special pleader in defence of indefensible government actions, could not bring himself to admit that the high court of parliament had no power to deal with one of its own servants charged with offending against its dignity. The examination of Dunn went on therefore, but nothing new was elicited except a boisterous and very unelicited except a boisterous and very unmannerly sympathy for the returning officer on the part of the back bench tory members. The members of the ministry themselves were exceedingly grave and protested that they recognized the great importance and gravity of the case. But the untutored followers saw no necessity for restraining their glee whenever Dunn offered, as he several times did, a fresh insult to the house in his flippant answers.

They showed that they know perfectly well that Sir John Macdonald's policy has been to degrade representative institutions that he had to a large extent succeeded was naturally received by them with shouts of triumph. The examination being over, Mr. Weldon a few days later presented a been to degrade representative institutions and debauch public sentiment, and any such affair as this which proved conclusiveresolution declaring that the returning officer should have returned Mr. King, he having secured a majority of votes. Of course the tories saw that this would mean a declaration against Mr. Baird being allowed to remain in the house, an exceedngly awkward thing for them. ingly awkward thing for them. They therefore proposed that the report of the committee on privileges and elections in favor of leaving the whole matter to the courts should be adopted. A further amendment was proposed from the liberal side that the seat should be given to Mr. King out of hand. During the debate Mr. Baird was allowed to explain his positiou. This he did in a sing-song speech of over anhour's duration. His main ebject appeared to be to excite sympathy, and he did so ed to be to excite sympathy, and he did so by representing that he knew the lists were against him. and the sheriff if appointed eturning officer would take certain action gainst him. He therefore had Mr. Dunn pointed returning officer. He declared also that he was ready to resign as soon as the conservatives of his county asked to do so, hinting they would not call upon him until the lists were revised. On the vote Mr. Patterson of Essex, who has staunchly supported the right against his party, did so again, and Mr. Boyle of Monck stood by him. A number of tories shirked the vote. The government's majority was only 19. Just before the second vote was taken (on the first amendment) Mr. Mitchell, in his impetuous way, declared that Sir John Macdonald's conduct in forcing his followers to vote as they had done could not be ers to vote as they had done could not be characterized in parliamentary language, but if he were cutside the house he would say it was infamous. This raised quite a disturbance, such "independents" as Mr. Desjardins and Sir Donald Smith feeling very much hurt at what they called an imputation against them. No livelier scene has been witnessed in the house of commons since the closing day in 1878 when Sir John Macdonald declared that "that felless Smith" (this same Smith) "was the low, Smith," (this same Smith) "was the biggest liar he ever met." Mr. Baird holds his seat and declares that he will continue to hold it rea conservatives in the house may think, until he gets word from his county to resign. THE MEMBER FOR NORTH VICTORIA. Among the new members on the liberal side Mr. Barron of North Victoria has taken a foremost position and is looked upon as a most valuable acquisition to the opposition forces. He is industrious and energetic and has done excellent work in the house and on committies. He has brought up several minor but important natters. One of these is of general interest. Mr. Barron the other day moved for copies of papers relating to the setting apart by the Doninion government of Indian reserves, under the Robinson or other treaty, between the White Fish and Waustasabee rivers. He stated that the timber limits in that region were sold by the Ontario government, but the Dominion governapart as an Indian reserve some of the finest of this timber land and sold it to one of their sup-porters, the member for Ottawa (Mr. Robillasd). The Dominion government not only invitable. porters, the member for Ottawa (Mr. Robillasd).

The Dominion government not only interfered with Cntario's rights to the territory, but interfered with vested rights legally established in Ontario lands. If, by the resurrection of old treaties, citizens of Ontario were to be thus treated and the provincial government involved in legal difficulties with those purchasing rights of it, it was time the people should know it.
The motion carried.
