HIS HONOR addressed the jury and briefly pointed out their duties.

QUEEN VS. ASHMAN.—This was a charge of obstructing a highway in the township of Eldon. Prisoner on being arrainged pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to pay a nominal fine and costs. A. P. Devila for prosecution. P. S. Mastin for defendant.
QUEEN VS. STABBACE.—A charge of obstructing a highway in the township of Eldon. On application of defendant the case was adjourned until the next court.
SCRIVER VS. CORSON.—The plaintiff made an arrangement with defts, to burn lime for five years, the defts, to return the kiln if the became necessary. The kiln brokedown, and owing to difference between the defts,
the kiln was not returned for one month whereby the plantiff suffered damages for which this action was brought. The defendant, Capt. Corson, admitted plaintiffs claim and asked an order that John Corson pay all costs occasioned by the suit. The defendant John Corson disputed plaintiffs right and also contended that Capt. Corson alone was liable. Judgment reserved. Hudspeth & Jackson for plaintiff, Martin & Hopkins for defendant Capt. Corson, W.
Nesbitt of Toronto and H. B. Dean for defendant John Corson.

Bertha SMITH Vs. LINDSAY.—An appeal

QUEEN VS. SAWYER.-This was an QUEEN VS. SAWYER.—This was an indictment against Hiram Sawyer of the township of Stanhope for feloniously wounding his son-in-law, George Barrie of Fenedon Falls, on the 22nd of March last. Barrie had been married for about seven years to a daughter of Sawyer, and is now living with her. Sawyer had been living separate from his wife for some time, the cause of the separation being a belief on his part that she had been unfaithful to him. Sawyer alleges that there faithful to him. Sawyer alleyes that there has been more than one partner in her has been more than one partner in her guilt, and that her own daughter's husband, George Barrie, has been very intimate with her. His belief in this most extraordinary state of affairs is largely supported by public opinion of the neighbors, and the evidence at the trial showed that Barrie and his mother in law had acted imprudently enough to give color to the charge a charge one would think which would not readily suggest itself whatever the actual fact may be. Sawyer had acted on his belief, and was living separate from his wife in a house the deed of which is said to be in his wife's name. His near on his belief, and was living separate from his wife in a house the deed of which is said to be in his wife's name. His near neighbors were his wife's sister, Mrs. Archer, with her husband and family, and at the time of the occurrence in question they were occupying Sawyer's house during repairs to their own. Sawyer was away in the woods trapping when Barrie and Mrs. Sawyer went to his house, ostensibly to pay a visit to the Archers. While they were there Sawyer unexpectedly returned, having cut his foot in the woods. He was furious at finding the unwelcome visitors in his house. Mrs. Sawyer in her slaws. Jumped from an upper window. George Barrie was downstairs in the kitchen. Mrs. Sawyer went to him and implored him to go away. He declined to go and said he would not hurt him. Sawyer who was in the next room was wrapping a towal around a scythe blade so as to make a handle for it, and was uttering loud threats against the other two which they could plainly hear. After about fifteen minutes interval Sawyer came into the kitchen, and a fearful struggle casued, Sawyer being assued with the scythe blade and Barrie with a hammer he had picked up. Barrie received a slicing downward cut on the neck five inches long by nearly an inch deep, and Sawyer was also bleeding freely from hammer wounds on the head. Meantime Mrs. Sawyer had driven off for aseletance with a hume. After the wounds were inflicted the mess climched and fell covered with bloof, Sawyer underneth. They held a watch night service on last New Year's eve, and came out on the streets immediately after it, with their secustomed demonstrations. Twenty-seven of both sexes were arrested and put in the lock-up. A number of them were afterwards fined and imprisoned. On the 4th of January the salvation army marched out in the evening, stopped on the main street, and kneit down in prayer. Constable Hell and Clunes, with some specials, approached the head of the kneeling column, where the captain and three other women were down on the snow, praying with arms locked together. He requested them to get up and move on. They took no notice. He took Bertha Smith by the arm and tried to lift her up. This was the beginning of a great ruction, and there are a dozen different versions of what occurred afterwards. Mr. Fullerton and Mr. Moore for the defence submitted to the court that the Lindsay town by-law against obstructing the streets had no statutory authority to back it, and was therefore ultra vires and of no effect; also, that there was no statutory or common law authority for a summary arrest of the members of the salvation asmy under circumstances such as these. The crown attorney, Mr. Deviin, was not prepared to successfully contest this view of the case, and he therefore abandoned the first count. The matter was then gone into as one of common assault only. The jury acquitted Delurey. A. P. Deviin for the first count. The matter was then cone into as one of common assault only. The jury acquitted Delurey. A. P. Devlin for the prosecution. J. S. Fullertoa, Toronto, and F. D. Moore, for the defence. Details of the circumstances of the arrest of members of the army have already appeared in The Post. Fiveother indictments had been found against different persons for participation in the above occurrences, but on see etion in the above occurrences, but on see ing the result in the above case Mr. Devlin decided to offer no evidence, and the five other defendants were accordingly ac-

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT. The grand jury brought in the following

May it please Your Honor:

May it please Your Honor:

The grand jurors of our soverign lady the queen, assembled at the sittings of the county court and general sessions for the ceunty of Victoria, beg to make their presentment.

They desire to thank your honor for your address at the opening of the court. It is a a great advantage to the community at large to hear questions affecting the general interests of the people commented upon by those who occupy the honorable and independent position of judges. It s within the knowledge of the grand jurors that these periodical deliverances from the bench have a large effect in shaping the views of the people with regard to questions that have a bearing upon their moral and material advancement. The grand jurors would express the earnest hope that you may, in the providence of God, be spared many years to discharge your responsible duties.

An unusual number of cases have been brought before them for consideration, but fortunately most of them are not of a serious character.

They would take this opportunity to express their approval of the appointment of Jas. Deacon, esq., to the position of police magistrate of the county of Victoria. He is a gentleman of high personal qualifications, and his extensive knowledge of public affairs and experience in magisterial work fit him admirably for discharging efficiently the duties of his office. The arrangement for holding police magistrate's courts in a number of places in the county will be a great convenience to principals and witnesses, great convenience to principals and witnesses, and justices of the peace generally will be renuch unpleasant comment.

They have visited the gaol and found everyhing in and about the premises in superior rder. It is gratifying to be able to repeat the settimony given by se many grand juries restimony the property of t

They would give expression to their apprecia-tion of the courtesy and attention shown them by the sheriff, the county attorney and the officers of the court.

In common with all her majesty's subjects the grand jurors in their united capacity, join in the congravulations and expressions of gratitude to Almighty God that such a sovereign has been spared to see the end of the fiftieth year of a reign so heneficial and prosperous that it must ever so beneficial and prosperous that it must ever be noted as one of the most remarkable in the history of the British empire and of the world. All of which is humbly submitted. A. HIGINBOTHAM, foreman.

JUDGE DEAN'S REPLY. Judge DEAN on receiving the presentmen thanked the grand jury for their reference to himself and in the course of his remarks said the position of a indge living among the people whom he indged was a trying one. In every ease he had to decide against somebody, and it was hard for even fair-minded people to always admit that he was right, when he found them wrong, but unhappily there were people who were not fair-minded. If he had succeeded in the thirteen years of his administration of justice in this county in meriting the kind opinion which they had just expressed, then he had accomplished the dearest wish of his heart. He believed that Col. Deacon's appointment would more than justify itself. If perfect impartiality, careful attention to the matters coming before him, a sincere desire to master both the law and the facts in every case and a high degree of inmore than justify itself. If perfect impartiality, careful attention to the matters coming before him, a sincere desire to master both the law and the facts in every case and a high degree of intelligence would make a good magistrate then he had no hesitation in saying that Col. Deacon would make a good magistrate. His honour went on to express the hope that these appointments were the beginning of the establishment through the province of a paid magistracy, giving reasons, which we regret we have not room to report, why such a system would be a public benefit and upon the whole a public economy. The judge spoke very highly of the efficiency of Governor Jackson, of the county gaol, and said that in the treatment of insane people who passed through his hands he displayed singular sagacity, while his humanity and attention to all prisoners was untiring. His honor said he rejoiced with them in the celebration of the jubilee of the illustrous lady who has so long been our Queen. He referred to her accession, an event which he remembered as a little child, and to the wondrous changes which the fifty years had wrought in this country and in the world at large. "Where we are now sitting was then a wild wolf-haunted,, a wild-bear haunted, a mosquitoe horrified swamp; now it rejoices and blossoms as the rose, and has become the centre of one of the best agricultural tracts in the world arthers, who settled this country. May we pass on this inheritance to our children, made the better by our labors also." His honor spoke of the great benefits which the Queen had conferred upon her subjects and upon the whole civilized world by her high personal and domestic character. When we think of the intrigues, the domestic scandals, the family disruptions which were so frequent that they may be said to have characterized the lives of many of her predecessors and of the shamelessness which used to mark their courts, the life and virtues of Victoria seem like a beautiful flower sprung from a festering soil, which by its freshness and and though the nation will never pay the debt of gratitude which it owes to Prince Albert the consolation comes to every man who works faithfully in his place, that whether he does his duty amid the "flerce light which heats upon a thrune," or in the obscurity of a back-woods farm, at another judgment seat his faithfulness and self-denial will be all remembered. As to our future he would be a bold man who would invest his fortune just now in a map of North America, but whether the dream of imperial federation of the whole empire, or the still wider aspiration for a union of all English speaking peoples, or whether as we grow stronger we set up as an independent mation, or united our destinies with those of our kinsmen to the south, whether we stay or whether we go, it will always be with the hearty good will and blessing of the mother-land; and we and any people with whom we are well always revere England as the fountain of our religion, liberties and laws. Some look for want to the densience of England because she dise of oil any are misled by a figure. A man dise of oils any a man disease. WILFRID-BROCK. [Correspondence of The Post.] S.S. ANNIVERSARY.—Our Sabbath school

S.S. ANNIVERSARY.—Our Sabbath school anriversary is to be held in the Wilfrid picnic grove on the first Monday in July. There will be the usual speeches, readings, recitations and music, of which due notice will be given—all to begin at one o'clock. Our base bell team are arranging for a match to be played at four o'clock, after the speeches, etc., are through. We had thought that after the R.C. picnic that our boys would "hang their harps apon the willow," but they seem to be as spunky as possible and say they can beat the same team from Sunderland yet, and we believe they will if they get the chance. PULPIT NOTES. - The Rev. Mr. Thom from Sunderland is expected to occupy the pul-pit here next Sabbath.

SKILFUL VETERINARY OPERATION.—The driving horse belonging to Mrs. Banks has apidly recovered from a severe attack of distemper. The case has added much to the already high reputation of James G. Clarke, V.S., of Little Britain, who displayed much skill in the treatment of his natient. The animal became strangled to such an extent he could no longer breathe through his nostrils. Mr. Clarke was telegraphed for and upon arriving gave immetiate relief by making an incision into the windpipe part way down the neck and inserting a silver tube, through which the horse breathed for several days. The wound is now healed up and the horse is again on the road apparently as good as DUNSFORD. [Correspondence of The Post.] EXCURSION.—Last Saturday the Methoodist Sunday schools of Emily and Dunsford held a union excursion from Lindsay to Fenelon Falls. The day was very enjoyably epent. A call at Sturgeon Point gave them an opportunity of viewing Mr. Knowlson's beautiful garden. The excursienists speak very highly of the Messrs. the trip. Mr. John Burk, whose duty it is
