—Mr. T. P. Gill cables to a New York paper: There is a good deal of good is the land bill since the government have transformed it almost into the since of the symplety of the eyenight, how old a person is to the very year. It has made him quite famour. Mr. Paruell's bill of last suturns, but it contains one clause which may prove to be set the synder men in the wooden hove of Troy. This is a clause to enable the landlord to deprive the tenant of his title by means of a notice served registered letter, and it would seem as if it were devised not merely for the purpose of syciding the odium which the present system of eviction has begun to bring on the landlord cause, but also for the purpose of striking a blow at the system of dual ownership created by the land act of 1881, in view of the land purchase scheme which the government are certainly insubating and which they are desirous of making as favorable to the landlord as possible. Gladstone's land act raised the tenant must be evicted, and as eviction is a cosety and difficult to the clause of a co-proprietor is his status can be destroyed the tenant must be evicted, and as eviction is a cosety and difficult to the result in most cases considerable heeltation and considerable opportunity for negotiation before it is recorded to. Under the new system the landlord is to be empowered to destroy the Mr. Pasuell's bill of last sutumn, but it fau opportunity for negotiation before it is recorted to. Under the new system the landlord is to be empowered to destroy the tenants' status by the two-penny post, a step involving neither difficulty nor expense. This may prove a simple and effective way of robbing the tenant of his holding created for him by the set of 1881. It remains to be seen whether the dangers threatened by this clause will not outweigh the benefits of the bill. Moreover, it will be possible, by placing in central of the new rent revising courts a set of laudlord partiense, to completely nullify its lord partienns, to completely nullify its beneficial provisions. Should that be the case we shall have trouble in Ireland, and Mr. Balfour, if this government lives that long, will have to ply his coercion act in earnest. Mean while everything depends, -The London correspondent of the New York Times sent this interesting Sunday cable despatch: Briefly stated, the tory unionist ministry now offers an Irlah land bill more generous to the tenants, more injurious to the landlords, more sweeping in its destruction of vested rights and in its negation of parliamentary titles than any like measure ever put forward, either by the English radicals of by Mr. Parnell himself. This bill, as thus altered by tained a dangerous injury to his right gives the lie direct to practically every position heretofore occupied by the tories in defence of the landlord party. It explicitin defence of the landlord party. It explicitly faintfles the statement of the ministerial intentions made formally by Mr. Goschen only a week ago. This is very good for Ireland, but how is it for the ministry? Inside the cabinet there is the bitterest kind of trouble. For the past few days the air has been thick with rumours that the ministry was going to pieces, that Lord Hostington was going to assume the pre-Hartington was going to assume the pre-miership, and even that a dissolution had been resolved upon. These must be taken Daniel Shechan, a nephew of Mr. Shee. has Mary ministries have broken of the market and the probabilities. Many ministries have broken of the market and the up upon smaller grounds than now exist for dissension, but this hybrid government is not master of itself, even for purposes of suicide. Feeling that its false position is intolerable, it is still unable to alter it. The pivot upon which all turns is, of course, Lord Hartington. He gives orders to the For each and the com-tory ministers, completely neutralizing all finial for withholding their desires and compelling them publicly to trample on all their professions and traditions and yet he is himself free from all responsibility for their acis. This in itself is bet enough, but a worse feature is that and the himself sympath zer with the tories and
