NORTH VICTORIA FARMER'S INSTITUTE. —

The farmers institute opened here on Wednesday, the 18th. In the absence of the president, Mr. Chas. Fairbairn, Mr. James Junkin occupied the chair. The attendance was fair. Prof. Brown and Grenside of the Guelph model farm and Profs. Fletcher of the Ottawa experimental farm were in attendance and presented several servers. attendance and presented several very important questions in regard to farming. cheapest and best way to do it was discussed by Messrs. Fell, Palmer and Naylor.

Prof. Fletcher considered the most effective way was blasting with dynamite. Prof. Fletcher spoke at considerable length on the protection of turnips and other green vegetables from bugs and insects in which he gave some very useful information. The evening meeting opened at seven o'clock with the president, Mr. Fairbairn, in the chair. Prof. Grenside took the management of the horse-stable and handled the subject in a clear manner. The question was fully discussed by Messrs. J. P. Palmer, Knight, Naylor and others. The professor's explanations were very satisfactorily received. His discourse on the process treatment and management of the proper treatment and management of the horse was very profitable and a great deal of useful information was received. He was followed by Prof. Brown on the subject "How to make good Butter," giving the kind of cows we must have, how to feed the kind of cows we must have, how to feed them, and also hints on the proper way to manufacture the butter thoroughout. At the close a vote of thanks was moved to Prof. Fietcher for his assistance at the meeting and also to Mr Gillogly for his vocal contributions. .... On the same day the meeting opened with Mr. Fairbairn in the chair. Mr. Fell. M. P., came forward and read a paper on general farming and gave some good Mr. Fairbairn in the chair. Mr. Fell, M. P., came forward and read a paper on general farming and gave some good practical views on the aubject. After a discussion on this paper in which the raising of wheat was fully discussed Prof. Grenside was called on and resumed the subject of "at the management." Mr. J. D. Naylor next read a paper on "Sheep raising." After some remarks by Prof. Brown the meeting closed. Vote of thanks were moved to Profs. Brown and Grenside which were replied to by both gentlemen. get free lands as the old pioneers did not get them," etc., etc.

Being also personally cognizant of the Crofter class in the Highlands, and the general results of their emigration to Canada, permit me to say that your old resident whelly misunderstands the Crofter people, and I think the interests of his province. The very wet climate of the West Highlands, the poverty of the soil, and the higher values obtained from graziers and sportsmen gradually forces the working people of the coasts and islands to battle for food on small heldings of land, and with the sea for fish to eat and fish to sell. When the fishing season is on the western coasts and islands turn out as splendid a lot of brave and industrious men as are to be found in the Queen's Dominions. Proud of their names, fervently religious, strong of head, of heart and of hand, in open boats they pursue their breadwinning on these stormy northern seas, and are the last people under the flag to be stigmatised as "paupers" The "pauper" spirit is wholly foreign to the spirit which dwells in those highland hills, glens and seas, but there the predatory spirit was hardly ever asleep. Robbers they might have been, beggars never. To be poor is not to be a pauper, or else North America was settled with paupers, People did not come to it because they had money, but because they had not, and if any did bring money it did not last long—British Columbia is not an exception. The Highlanders emigrating to Canada were mainly of the Crofter or small farmer class, and where did you over see them beg? Proud and ambitious they have been in the van of public affairs, were mainly of the Crofter or small farmer class, and where did you over see them beg? Proud and ambitious they have been in the van of public affairs, whether of peace or war, in Canada, and whole counties bear witness to their thrift and independence. The men from Islay, Skye, Lewis, etc., now in Canada, could go back and buy up those islands perhaps twenty times over, and yet they are not one whit more of men than the men who now live on those islands. No class of settlers to be found in the United Kingdom could be more desirable settlers for the agricultural and fishing interests of the coasts and islands of British Columbia, nor more to be relied upon in the time of trial. Give them to be relied upon in the time of trial. Give them each a piece of good land for a homestead, and to be relied upon in the time of trial. Give them each a piece of good land for a homestead, and work on which to live until they can grow some food, and they will account for themselves in due time. Lots of good farmers in Canada sailed all summer to get the coin to enable them to chop and clear on their land all winter until they could live permanently on their farms, and one of the main regrets of the highland settler inland is that he has not the sea beside him.

I consider the continued reference to the poor foreign or British laborers or mechanics as "paupers" not to be admitted to this country, un-British, inhumane heresy. The poor English or Irish gradually, for want of work or food, drift to the great centres of industry and there fight the battle with hunger in which in bad times so many fail, and because with the help of friends or the benevolent, they turn their faces to this more than half-empty Dominion—blessed of Heaven—they must be called "paupers," and the door of this land of God's bounties mercilessly shut in their face by a population full of pork and potatoes—an aristocracy of labor.

The cry for "men with means" as the right kind of settlers is not exclusively British Columbian. The mining prospectors and land speculators in other parts of the country are also looking anxiously for the "men with means," although they cannot work. The honest worker is the most profitable settler for British Columbia as well as for all Canada,—Yours faithfully, Toronto, Jan, 20th, 1888.

The Scott Act-A Reply to the Warder.

[To the Editor of The Post.] SIR.-I wish you to allow me a little space in your columns to correct the wild and erroneous paragraph in the Warder's issue of the 2nd inst. headed "Temperance Prohibition." I wish to do so, sir, not with any selfish motive or ill-feeling to any person or society, but Right is what we want and must be master of the field. We will emblazon our banner with this all-important motto and carry it high over our antagonist Wrong as we go forth to fight the battle of life. And as Mrs. Yeomans, who lec all-important motto and carry it high over our antagonist Wrong as we go forth to fight the battle of life. And as Mrs. Yoomans, who lectured to us on temperance, wants to know why the Scott act is not enforced, I will say just here that no law can be strictly enforced, neven observed or respected, when the press of our country throw their whole weight against it. Why, sir, they should be the first to see that all laws are kept, and should teach the people to respect them: and he that breaks the law and tries to get others to help him, then he is what? Why, a rebel of course, you can't call him apything else. This is a hard name but an appropriate one.

Let me say just here that I have a strong antipathy against not only the abuse but the use of strong drink, for it is a curse to our people and societies; it is a deadly monster and the worst of thieves, as it laughs a man first into his confidence and then robs him of pocket, friends, true maniness, character, and lastly destroys his immortal soul. Those only who are total abstainers are true temperance men, and this is what Christ himself means when he warns us against use of strong drink, not the abuse. I am sorry, sir, that a man, a great loyalist—and indeed you know he is very fond of this term, the head of a journal here, a man to whom we should look as an example of good, should link himself with the ignorant swage of the street and be caught saying such idle things as are contained in that paragraph, and moreover, that he should try to put a stumbling-block in the way of others who by divine aid may other law is mocker, and therefore is not a templerance man at all. I can tell him with full assurance that if he practice what he is trying to teach to others who by divine and on these way of these way of the sure of men, the sellers, and says that since intoxicating drink has been demed an injury and a curse to the people of our land therefore is not a temple and to themselves. Well now, we know the slow and the sellers, and says that since intoxicating dr

But it's coming fast. Why, the very air smells of it, the winds that roar along our pathway bears it with them.

Again, he places women and whiskey on an equality—as much as to say one is as bad as the other. Now, isn't it a wonder that men who call themselves temperate, as this man does, who say they don't like whiskey and it wouldn't cause them any trouble if all the whiskey in the land was thrown into the sea—isn't it strange that they take to themselves a wife, one of these horrible things called women. Why, they tell you a man can't get along, he can't live without one (and they are so good that men must have two orthree). Now, you go to their homes and just take their women away and throw them into the sea; I'll bet anything you'll not get very far on the way till you'll get a crack of a cudgel on the head that will bring you to your senses.

Now, in accordance with the words of our Creator, it is not good that man should be alone; we know a woman is to a man a blessing, comfort, courage, endurance and perseverance. Without woman man would inevitably degenerate into what we might term a savage, and would never realize the full meaning of the title love. Man should associate with woman, in fact he cannet have a happy home without a wife. It is there the sweet voice of woman is seldom heard but in accents of gentleness and leve, a tie consecrated by nurse and cheate affection, an engagement. It is there the sweet voice of woman is seldom heard but in accents of gentleness and leve, a tie consecrated by pure and chaste affection, an engagement formed on earth but sanctioned in heaven. On such a union the angels in the bright abode of the blest gaze with looks of interest and delight. The gem of all others which enriches the coronet of a woman's heart is found in her unaffected piety. A woman possessing this quality has her name written in the Book of Life, that when the mountains fade away and every memento of earthly greatness is lost in the general wreck of nature, it may remain to swell the list of that mighty throng whe have been clothed in the mantle of righteousness and whose voices are attuned to the melody of heaven. A man cannot be surrounded by anything under heaven so pure as a soft and tender female who had been all weakness and dependance and alive to every trivial roughness while treading the prosperous paths of life, suddenly rising in mental force to be the comforter and supporter of the husband under misfortune, and abiding with unshinking firmness the bitterest blasts of adversity. I say, more priceless than the gems of Golconda is the female heart, and more devoted than the idolatry of Mecca is woman's love, but where in earth or heaven do you find strong drink sanctioned, or can you find any place ou the earth where strong drink in you find any place on the earth where strong drink is sept in which happiness and mutual affection reign hold that there is not one spark of true love in the

I hold that there is not one spark of true love in the associations of drink.

Lastly, he tries to draw a parallel between eating turnips and drinking whiskey, going to church, etc. Who eyer heard of such stuff, placing along side of each other a necessary of life, one that goes to the nourishment of the body, builds up the physical as well as the mental frame of every being, and deadly poison which goes to pull down this human pile, to unbuild this physical structure. They are altogether different in their nature, But, says one, turnips will hurt you if you take too much. Certainly they will, but they'll not hurt anyone else except the one who eats too much. We haven't to make a law against selling turnips because we never see ner feel any harm coming from it. They don't make a man crazy so that he swears, fights, spends all his hard-earned money that his wife and family shoul I have, and then come home and abuse them, or cause him to commit murder or any other crime. In eating the turnips nature steps in and says "enough," but in drinking strong drink nature is over-ruled by the poison, and therefore has no voice in the matter.

JOHN DOBSON,

CITY CARRIAGE WORKS. LINDSAY. ONT.

In future my establishment will be known by the above name, and in making change I take the opportunity of returning my most sincere thanks to my numerous friends and the public in general for the very liberal patronage bestowed on me during my seven years in business in Lindsay, and also to say that I am in a better position than ever before to do FIRST-CLASS WORK, having built this season one of the most complete show rooms and paint shops in the province. I have now two hundred feet by thirty of a paint shop, and I have secured the services of MR. D. CHESNUT, late of the Studebakers, Indiana, a painter of over thirty years experience, having been foreman in some of the best shops in the United States. Parties contemplating having their rigs painted should remember this and bring them along at once as we have ample room and can do an A1 job. Bring your buggies and carriages along and you can take them home in the spring glittering.

The horse-shoeing shop is now 60x30 and in this department I have been fortunate in securing the services of MR. JAS. BRADY, of Lansing, Michigan, & former resident of Lindsay. This gentleman is a first-class shoer, having spent all his time working at and studying his trade, he brings with him all the latest ideas about shoeing from the States. Just try him and be convinced.

The carriage blacksmith shop is 30x30, in which I work as usual, and have a great many years experience in this line of business. I claim to be able to do No. 1 work. I certainly have now the most complete carriage factory in this part of Canada, where a full line of every description of rigs will always be kept on hand.

I have now a grand display of SLEIGHS and RIGS of every description from the beautiful Landsdowne sleigh to the complete little business jumper. Come and see them. I am also making large preparations for the spring trade. I have made a large purchase of the justly celebrated McLAUGHLIN GEAR. Parties wishing to have one of those beautiful rigs should place their order at once, in fact I have several placed already.

I am sole agent for the O. P. & S. Road and Speeding Cart, a most complete two-wheel rig for speeding or breaking colts. Don't fail to give me a call.
