ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

WEDNERDAY.

The night session on budget day was too ach for our legislators, and to-day there trit a short session in which considerbusiness was done. Mr. Mowat in swer to Mr. Meredith said a copy of the urnal of the Quebec conference would be etributed to each member, and in reply Mr. French said there was no intention change the jurisdiction of either the vision or county courts. The minister of ucation; introduced a bill concerning diversity federation. Mr. Blyth urged to government to borrow money from the cipalities in place of going abroad for its funds, and instanced the case of tinck township, which lost $24,000 by entral bank failure, but the treasurer proved the idea, evidently preferring oreign money markets. A number of were advanced a stage and the house urned at 6 o'clock.

The treasurer then summed up his figures by stating that according to the estimated expenditure of $2,988,724.62, submitted resterday, there would be a balance to the credit of the province next year of $414,500. He also stated that the expenditure for immigration purposes had been going down every year in accordance with public sentiment, and that there would be a still further reduction made this year. Referfurther reduction made this year. Referring to the public accounts, he said that during the past year grave discrepancies to the amount of $14,680 had been discovered in the accounts between the various banks with which the government did business and the treasury department, extending back to the year 1867. Special auditors were called in, and after a searching investigation all but $5,573 was satisfactorily accounted for. In regard to this latter discrepancy, which occurred during the years 1875 to 1879 inclusive, two conclusions were inevitable: either the banks had erroneously charged cheques, or had erroneously charged cheques, or cheques had been forged and cashed. The result of this investigation pointed to the latter conclusion, and grave suspicion rested latter conclusion, and grave suspicion rested upon a former officer of the department, who was discharged about three years ago and who is now employed by the Dominion government. He regretted not being able to report definite progress in settlement of accounts between the Dominion and Ontario, owing to the absence of some members of the Dominion government in England and to others being engaged in the fishery negotiations. Substantial progress had been made towards settling by arbritration matters in dispute between fishery negotiations. Substantial progress had been made towards settling by arbritration matters in dispute between Ontario and Quebec. His government would employ the most eminent counsel obtainable to protect the interests of Ontario, and he hoped all the disputed points would soon be settled on a basis satisfactory to all parties. Mr. Ross, in discussing the several items in the estimates, said: Under the head of miscellaneous they asked for $25,000 for the Canada temperance act enforcement, as against $24,596 expended in 1887. They sometimes heard their temperance friends complain the government was not doing its duty in this matter, but the expenditure should satisfy them. The burden was more onerous on the government than on the municipalities. In 1887 the municipalities received in fines $94,808, from which they contributed their two thirds, equal to $44,563, leaving them a profit of $50,245. The government paid $24,596, a clear loss to them. The municipalities had lost revenue by the Scott act to the extent of $135,000, from which, deducting the $50,000 profit in fines, left a net loss to them of $84,755. The government had lost in revenue $124,000 and $24,596 in cash, making a total loss to them of $148,596 against the municipal loss of $84,755. He thought that the government had therefore done its duty. The Dominion government ought to amend its order-in-council so that the fines could go into a common fund, and the responsibilities be divided by the municipalities and the province. The government did not ask any vote for insurance, and would become their own insurers.

Other Reasons Why the Canal should be Built. [To the Editor of THE POST.]

Sir,-Having in last week's Post given some of the farmers' reasons for the building of the T. V. C., I would now point out some of the advantages that the completion of the canal would bring to the whole

1, The distance from Chicago to Montreal would be shortened from 300 to 400

2. The dangerous navigation of Lakes Huron and Erie would be avoided, and a saving in wreckage of $1,000,000 on an average annually, to say nothing of the consequent loss of life attendant on such wreckage. This saving would build the canal, and pay the interest on the money, if borrowed for the purpose, even at Mr. Rubidge's figures, in twelve years.

3. All the wheat that the canal would be capable of carrying from Manitoba and the western states could be ground in transitu by utilizing its immense water power, which would create new villages and make the present villages large towns. and the present towns cities, along the route. The timber which is at present comparatively useless in the back country would afford material for staves and hoops, and many other industries which depend on each other would spring up.

To the astonishment of every one taking

To the astonishment of every one taking an interest in the construction of the canal, Mr. Rubidge has reported that on the longer route the shorter time can be made. As a matter of fact, however, his figures in this matter have been contreverted by Mr. Peck, who has frequently made the trip from Chicago to Kingston and from Kingston to Chicago, and knows how long it takes to make these voyages. There is no comparison between the spred made on the Eric canal, upon which Mr. Rubidge has probably based his calculations, and what can be made on the Trent Valley waters. The only fair comparison that could be made would be with the speed attained on the Hudson river. The speed of a flottila of barges on our open lakes, which will compose a great part of the canal, could be greatly increased by the use of sails.

the canal, could be greatly increased by the use of sails.

In a strategetical point of view the opening of the canal would be a great advantage to the country in case of a war with the United States. The Welland canal is situated in a very wesk part of our frortier, and would take a very large sum to render it defensible—a sum that would go a great way in building the T. V. C. During the fenian raid our greatest fear was that the guard lock at Allanburgh should have been destroyed and Lake Erie let out to flood the Niagara Peninsula. Had the Trent Valley canal been built in stead of—and of the same capacity as—the Welland, as was no doubt the original intention of the British government, which granted a bonus for the purpose, referred to in Mr. Baird's report, all danger to our inland navigation in case of war would have been avoided. It seems to me clear that it was the intention of the British government to build the T. V. C. instead of the Welland, for nothing else could explain the object of building the fort at Penetanguishene unless to defend the mouth of the canal then supposed to be about to be built. I have not speken to a man on the subject who does not condemn the extravagant and useless expenditure that has been made on the locks. They are not at all in keeping with a five foot barge canal, and if it should go on, as we all hope it may, it ought to be with a very much less expensive system of locks. The member of parliament from the Trent district who will take the time and the trouble to trace up and fit do ut the bonus referred to in Mr. Baird's report will deserve well of the country. A similar bonus had been given by the British government to the Murray canal, which, I believe, has been used in its construction.—Yours, Wm. Logan.

Fenelos Falls, Feb. 7th, 1888.

Mr. P. P. Root of Mouroe Co., N.Y. who farms 450 acres, in a letter to the Country Gentleman favoring large farms rather than small farms, after expressly declaring that he is not beasting of anything large, says: - These figures are only those of sales or of products unsold now on hand at market prices. There are many things that are proper credits of the farm not brought into this account, such as family provisions rents, firewood prepared for the steve, fruits, vegetables, dairy products, horse-keeping for family use, &c., none of which are brought into the account.

The yield of my crops the past seaso was about as follows, the dry season having shortened it somewhat, though but little less than the average of previous years. Wheat per acre, over 30 bush., about 31; barley, a little short of 40 bush.; cats, 50 bush.; corn, 60 bush. shelled; beans, about 15 bush.; potatoes, 150 bush.; and hay, 1½ tens, estimated. Fruit less than half a crop. The aggregate of products sold and on hand for sale at present market prices are given:

This gives about 7! per cent. income on capital, estimating land and stock at $100 capital, estimating land and stock at 5100 per acre.

The number of acres occupied is 450; some 50 acres in timber and about 50 acres swale land that affords only pasturage. I make no account of dairy products, for I aim only to produce for family use, though I do occasionally sell a crock of butter. A family of the present have had support I do occasionally sell a crock of butter. A family of ten persons have had support from the farm, not estimated. Ten or twelve cows are kept, but calves are allowed to take a large portion of the milk. Every day's labor done on my farm is paid for at going wages for the best help. I have no foreman, but order and direct the work myself; my time is worth perhaps as much as that of other men of my age, approaching three score and fifteen years. I do not inventory stock, for I keep about the same from year to year, and years. I do not inventory stock, for I keep about the same from year to year, and stock and farm tools when purchased are charged to farm expense. I seldom buy feed, for enough is raised to supply the wants for feeding, but do not often sell corn, oats, hay or straw; these crops are fed and manures are economized for the farm, and maintain its fertility.

Decrease of Farming Population.

[Fenelon Falls Gazette.] The report of the Ontario bureau of in dustries, which has been for some time before the public, is a most exhaustive repertoire of facts relating to agriculture, mining, manufactures, lumbering, and in short of almost everything connected with these, the weather not escaping notice. It would be easy to select from its 410 pages many items of general interest; but our limited space will only admit of our noticing, and that briefly, a matter that may well excite the attention of the province. We allude to the fact that in seventeen counties of the province the rural population was less at the end of 1886 than it was ten years before it. The urban population had in most cases increased, but, as we have said, the rural population had dimin-

This county, Victoria, is an insta 40e of this, Its rural population amounted in 1777 to 22,397 and in 1886 to 21,563, or 83. fewer. At the same dates her urban population was 7,848 and 8,646, an increase of 998. The total population of the county was in 1887 30,245 and in 1886 30,409, or a gain in ten years of 164. The populations of the different municipalities in 1887 and 1886 were as follows:

Bexley.
Carden and Dalton....
Eldon.
Emily.
Fenelon. Laxton, Digby and Longford 22,397

How this comes to be the case in one county might call for enquiry by its own residents, but when there are no less than seventeen counties in the same position the attention of the provincial legislature should be directed to the finding out of the cause. The ten years when the falling off took place could not have been a decennial wherein no improvements were made, for doubtless there was much land cleared in that time and many improvements carried out. It is no doubt true that in nearly all the counties, and specially in the cities, there has been an increase of inhabitants, wherever they came from; but that is poor consolation if the agricultural population is leaving. It is the worker in the fields that keeps the citizen in cash, and when they abandon the field the citizens will soon have empty pockets. An immediate examination of the subject by the legislature is an imperative duty.

We wish him success, and feel sure that he will not fail to obtain it if push, tact and principle can do it. A vacant place difficult to fill can do it. ENTERTAINMENT. - One of the most successful entertainments ever witnessed in this neighborhood was given in the school room here on Friday evening, Feb. 17th. in aid of the Sabbath school. At an early hour the room was filled to its utmost capacity. Mr. George Blackwell of Mount Horeo had been chosen chairman for the evening, and upon entering the room he received a hearty welcome. He was at once called to the platform, where he gave a short and pleasing address expressing the pleasure he felt in meeting again with his many acquaintances, and hoped that all would enjoy themselves througnout the evening. The program prepared for the occasion was select and well rendered. The little buys and girls performed their duties admirably and gave marked signs of ability and talent. Several dialogues were rendered which caused much laughter. The rectations by Misses Brown and Gould were given in a charming manner and were highly appreciated. The instrumentals by Messrs. Stone and Rickaby require no comment, their success in this line having long been established. The special feature of the evening's entertainment was a comic song by Mr. Stene in hour the room was filled to its utmost caspreial feature of the evening's entertainment was a comic song by Mr. Stene in negro co-tume. His personation of the old negro gentieman, heart-broken with grief, could not have been excelled even by an "Amateur Christy." In the dialogueentitled "An Unwelcome Intrusion" the portly old gentleman, "Dr. Percival" by name, provoked a smile on many a countenance. The silvery locks which encircled his placid brus, coupled with the sympathetic advice administered to his nephew, gave placid brow, coupled with the sympathetic advice administered to his nephew, gave deep delight to those sequainted with "Dan" The choir, assisted by Master Will Rickaby as organist, rendered several excellent pieces throughout the evening, concluding with a most appropriate selection entitled "God be with you till we meet again." After tendering a vote of thanks to the chairman and also to the choir for the services rendered the gathering broke up. Such entertainments should be held in high esteem by every member of the community. They should be patronized and assisted in every possible way because they not only bring the people together where a social spirit prevails, but they encourage reading, the only means of developing the literary talent of the young people.

LINDSAY, ONT.

In future my establishment will be known by the above name, and in making this change I take the opportunity of returning my most sincere thanks to my numerous friends and the public in general for the very liberal patronage bestowed on me during my seven years in business in Lindsay, and also to say that I am in a better position than ever before to do FIRST-CLASS WORK, having built this season one of the most complete show rooms and paint shops in the province. I have now two hundred feet by thirty of a paint shop, and I have secured the services of MR. D. CHESNUT, late of the Studebakers, Indiana, a painter of over thirty years experience, having been foreman in some of the best shops in the United States. Parties contemplating having their rigs painted should remember this and bring them along at once as we have ample room and can do an Al job. Bring your buggies and carriages along and you can take them home in the spring glittering.

The horse-shoeing shop is now 60x30 and in this department I have been fortunate in securing the services of MR. JAS. BRADY, of Lansing, Michigan, a former resident of Lindsay. This gentleman is a first-class shoer, having spent all his time working at and studying his trade, he brings with him all the latest ideas about shoeing from the States. Just try him and be convinced.

The carriage blacksmith shop is 30x30, in which I work as usual, and have a great many years experience in this line of business. I claim to be able to do No. 1 work. I certainly have now the 'most complete carriage factory in this part of Canada, where a full line of every description of rigs will always be kept on hand.

I have now a grand display of SLEIGHS and RIGS of every description from the beautiful Landsdowne sleigh to the complete little business jumper. Come and see them. I am also making large preparations for the spring trade. I have made a large purchase of the justly celebrated McLAUGHLIN GEAR. Parties wishing to have one of those beautiful rigs should place their order at once, in fact I have several placed already.

I am sole agent for the O. P. & S. Road and Speeding Cart, a most complete two-wheel rig for speeding or breaking colts. Don't fail to give me a call.
