rend you as a perfect Street, a land of treet and snow, of great from lakes, mountains and avglanch: s, but as the smiling, practiul, happy laud it is. Let the werld know Canada so it reality is, and let its fertility be known. The Dominion is better known. in England from the exhibition there two years ago than it was during half a century before. Then we should strive to fill up our country, to protect our manufacturing industries, to protect them to a moderate extent, not to such an extent as will make a monopoly of any one single manufacture, to protect them to a moderate and fair extent, and whenever protection goes beyond that it is injurious to the country. Then we should develope our mines. There is no country in the world, as we have been told by hon, gentlemen opposite, and by the advocates of commercial union, that possesses greater riches in the shape of mineral wealth than our own country. I think everything should be done to develop those mines. There is another question that has been raised, and it will do no harm to mention it, as it has been brought to my notice by some of our farmers, and that is this: They tell me that a great part of the swamp lands in Scotland have been reclaimed by loans of money made by the government at low rates. The Untario government have been doing something in this direction, but of course they cannot do everything. If the Dominion government can see their way to loaning money for imtent, and whenever protection goes beyond government have been doing something in this direction, but of course they cannot do everything. If the Dominion government can see their way to loaning money for improving swamp lands, it might be a step in the right direction. A large area of such lands has already been reclaimed in Ontario and these lands have turned out the very best on account of the depth of alluvial deposits. Then we should seek to develop our trade with foreign countries. An hon. gentleman who created a great deal of amusement, a member from Prince Edward Island, said the national policy had ruived the shipping interests in the maritime provinces. He was evidently a strong advocate of annexing Canada to the United States, at all events commercially, forgetting all the time that the United States is a much more highly protected country than Canada, and that protection was said to have ruined the shippuilding interests of the United States. So in order to cure a burnt finger he puts it in the fire. We sheuld endeavor not to decrease but to increase our shipping and to do that by opening up new avenues of trade with other countries of the world. I have not the slightest doubt but that if our resources were known to people in other countries, trade could be established in a great many articles that we produce, and they do not. It is the duty of the government to see that everything within reason that can be done should be done in order to spread and develop a foreign trade with not only our own colonies all over the world, but with foreign countries. Then there is another thing, Mr. Speaker, and that is if we are going to become a great people we must develop a nationality. It must not be Prince Edward Island. Nova Scoila, New Brunswick, Ontario or Quebec, it must be Canadian. People who came to this country should be taught just as in the United States that they come to a country where the people are a united people. The sooner that the different provinces give over looking from a provincial point of view and take the broad ground of being

They want something for their own particular locality and they will move heaven and earth to get it. No matter what government is in power I suppose the same in-fluence will be brought to bear. I think finence will be brought to bear. I think the sooner that every province makes up its mind that it has got to bear and forbear, and to give and take; the better it will be for the whole Dominion. We never will have a united people unless they sink their provincialisms and become Canadians at heart. I am a Canadian by birth, but I never thought that I was less a British subject. My parents when they came to this country did not think they were leaving their own country but that they were simply going to a greater Britain. I wish to carry out those principles, and to be as simply going to a greater Britain. I wish to carry out those principles, and to be as good an Englishman as my father, and to be as good a Scotchman as my mother—I suppose that would be considered an "Irishism"—and, Mr. Speaker, I shall never consent by my vote to do anything that will in any way hazard our connection with the mother country. If the people of my constituency differ from me then I shall be very happy to retire and let them send another representative here. I shall not represent any constituency that will ap represent any constituency that will ap prove of shaking off our connection with the mother land. I am as much a lover of Canada as the hon, gentleman who preceded me, but there is just this difference, I am a British subject and I hope always to he a British subject.

be a British subject.

Mr. Somerville So is he.

Mr. Hudepeth—He says he is a Canadian Mr. Hudepeth—He says he is a Canadian before being a British subject, and if the interests would conflict he would do what he thought the better for Canada. I am not prepared to go that far, although I do not think it is necessary. I have told you why I did not consider the country was in such a position that any such risk should be run. a position that any such risk should be run. If there are moneys spent by our government extravagantly let us control it, if there are things that can be pruned down with a pruning knife let them be pruned down if that is a heroic remedy, but above all do not humiliate my country, do not ask our people to go on their knees and ask for comething we have been willing to accept nomething we have been willing to accept from the United States for years back.

Mr. Somerville—No.

Mr. Hudspeih—They know in their hearts we are just as willing to trade with the United States as they are, but we are not prepared to go the same length and risk so much as they want us to risk.

Mr. Somerville—How far will you go?

Mr. Hudspeth—I will go as far as I possibly can without di-criminating against the mother country. I will go just as far as we can go without that, and that is the length the conservative party will go. Just as far as the United States will meet us we are prepared to meet them half way, but we will not discriminate against English goods in favor of the goods of a foreign goods in favor of the goods of a foreign country.

Mr. Somerville—You are doing it now.

Mr. Hudspeth—No, we are not doing it now, and that is not a fair argument. We are putting a duty on the United States goods and the Euglish goods for the purpose of revenue. They know that perfectly well and I am not guing to allow that language to be put in the Hansard without it being contradicted; because we are not discriminating against E. gland. We are quite willing, for if the United States government will send commissioners, I am sure our government would send commissioners too, to make a reaty just as wide as it can be made, provided it can be done in such a way that we do not tax the goods of Englished and admit goods of the United States free. In other points I agree with my friend the member for Norfolk (Mr. Charlton) and if I were an American citizen I would the member for Norfolk (Mr. Unariton) and if I were an American citizen I would agree with every word that gentleman stated. It is one of the best speeches I have listened to in this house, a calm, disparate, argumentative speech, but fortundenate, argumentative speech, but American listened to in this house, a calm, dispassionate, argumentative speech, but fortunately or unfortunately I am not an American citis-n, and I hope I never will be. I have said all I have to say on this subject. I am neither a poet nor an grator, and I cannot treat you to anything very extraordinary, but I have simply stated from my own standpoint and knowledge of the country I was born and brought up in, and facts I learned from farmers and others. I have tried to give you those facts instead of quoting a lot of figures I knew nothing about. I am much: obliged to you, Mr. Speaker, and hou, gentlemen, for the patier the patier to bearing you have given my hamble and Speaker, and hon gentiemen, for the pecter hearing you have given my hamble one imperfect remarks. I do not think I often trouble the house, for I am better pleased to listen to those from whom I can learn

This was an important question, and one which I could not six and silentity vote for an account of the reasons I havegiven. I have tried to put my reasons fairly and squere by before the house, and they will no before my constituents, and, as I said before, I am prepared to stand or fall by them. If every man in my constituency was of a different opinion I should never some to any other conclusion than that I shall do everything in my power to strengthen the bonds that bind us to the mother land, and I shall do nothing to weaken, or leasen, or in any respect whatever loces these ties of affection for our mother country.
