To Save Life Frequently requires prompt action. As hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences. especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a nottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use: and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful prepara-tion once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

the country. Is it not absurd in this age of easy and quick transportation to think of depressing the price of any article materially below its value as compared with other cities or centres of consumption? Especially articles up n which there is no duty, and eggs are among this class of articles—there is no Chinese wall in the form of a high tariff to prevent them being sent to any large centre upon the continent. How profitable it would be to buy the eggs in the city of Torento and send them to other large centres, if the foolish egg desiers were to depress the price as it has been said they intended doing. For the information of the tended doing. For the information of the commission merchants of the city of Toronto, who are making such charges against the Egg Dealers' Association, but who are ashamed to have their names connected therewith, I will state what are the real objects of said association as set forth in their constitution, namely: "The objects of this association shall be to foster all matters for the benefit of the members of the association, to protect them from all unjust and unlawful exactions, to reform abuses in the trade, to produce uniformity and in the trade, to produce uniformity and certainty in customs and usages of the trade, to promote a more enlarged and friendly intercourse among the members of the association, and to improve the quality of the stock handled."

The association recognizes the fact that the cities and towns of this country must be supplied before there are any eggs exported, and they would be acting very foolishly indeed if they were not willing to allow supplies to be sent to all local markets before attempting any foreign shipments.

to charge the poor consumer such high prices as have prevailed of late.

The great problem to be selved is paying remunerative prices to the pudacer, selling at moderate prices to the queener and having a living profit for those who handle the article between the producer and consumer. Now, according to the statements made by some of those who are complaining of the actions and motives of the Egg Dealers' Association, this association has solved that difficult and much-to-be-desired problem, which has baffled the skill of the problem, which has beffled the skill of the greatest political economists, inasmuch as they are stated to be paying more to the producer than customers of the complainants, and at the same time are selling at less to the consumer.

Reciprocity and Direct Taxation -- Mr Glendenning's Reply to Mr. Mintherne, (To the Editor of THE POST.) SIR,-In your issues of March 30th and April 6th I notice an article from Mr. A. L. told why cattle, butter, milk cows and some other products of the farm are excluded from the list of articles that the Canadian farmer produces, and we are almost depending on the Americans for a market." The association recognizes the fact that the cities and towns of the country must be supplied before there are any eggs exported, and they would be acting very foolishly indeed if they were not willing to year and they would be acting very foolishly indeed if they were not willing to heat before attempting any foreign alignents.

The only serious difficulty that has occurred in the egg trade during the past two weeks hab been the fact that nature in this country by cotted the bens and prevented them from producing their usual abundant the strength of the year by the extremely cold weak he were the trade of the year by the extremely cold weak he were the trade of the year by the extremely cold were below zero a little over two weeks ago. Previous to that partid of very low temperature eggs were quite plentified and were solling in Montant at 130. to 15c., New York at 144c., The strength of the year in all my past experience of about 23 years. The weather favorable to the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the production of eggs is coming, and no doubt the country of the product In reply I beg to state that with reference to cattle both Canada and the United States produce more cattle than is required for the United States export that article, so that another solution of the better difficulty must be looked for. I would like to ask Mr. Minthorne if he ever has been ce'led upon to act se a judge on butter at any of our numerous fall shows, where only the best samples are supposed to be shown. If he has he must have been struck with the want of uniformity that often presents itself in the same package, to say nothing of the variety of colors, fiavor, meatness and general appearance of the different makers. I do not wish to be understood that no good butter is made in Canada, far from it. I believe there are as good butter-makers in Canada as anywhere, but they are the exception not the rule. When dairying is carried out on the same principles as our cheese-making, butter-makers will find a ready market at high prices for all they can export to Great Britain. Permit me to instance the case of butter made in Denmark which brings in the British market from 30 to 35 cents wholesale, the cost of transportation from either Denmark or Canada being a small item per peund. Denmark has no better natural facilities for buttermaking than Canada. I trust to see the new minister of agriculture to be appointed by the Ontario government take such active and energetic steps in this matter as will make Canadian butter a product to be sought after in foreign markets. Mr. Minthorne's next paragraph savours of insinuation that I am guilty of plagariam, and that I stole the illustration of the farmer's two sons from the Grange Bulletin. I beg to inform him that sems years ago I used a somewhat similar illustration when speaking upon the assessment law at a meeting of the Ontario Provincial Grange, held in Toronto, and it was thought that the illustration while any person contribute according to their ability to pay their just portion of the public tax." I know of no person who has a better right than myself. Mr. Minthorne if that was the law commercial union or unrestricted reciprocity would present a different aspect. Mr. Minthorne sa to pay their just portion of the public tax."

I agree with Mr. Minthorne if that was the law commercial union or unrestricted reciprocity would present a different aspect. Mr. Minthorne says, "the surest way of solving the difficulty is by commercial union Supposing, as the purport of his letter would imply, that direct taxation is to be resorted to, then the people would soon learn the amount of money they are now paying, and the injustice of the law become apparent. The people would watch the administration more closely and the wealth of the nation would not be squandered so recklessly as has been done in the past."

Mr. Minthorne puts me in mind of the story of the man who hanged himself to ascertain what the sensation felt like. While the present assessment law is in force the farmers had better take their experience in direct taxation as they do hanging, second handed. He tells us that the assessment law could be remedied in one session of parliament. Also, "it might be considered as one of the details of the commercial union scheme that our assessment laws should know that the question of commercial union or unrestricted reciprocity can only be dealt with by the federal government, and our assessment laws by the legislature. It could not be made a detail unless it was taken up jointly by both governments, and I would like to ask him, if he has ever seen or heard a word from the government of Ontario that they will assist the scheme in that direction? I venture to say, "No." I would like to state that no later than February last I had the honor of being one of a deputation who waited upon the Ontario government asking them to amend the assessment law, so that all money and money values be assessed so that each person would contribute their share of the taxes according to their ability to pay. But it was apparent that Hon. A. M. Ross, the present provincial treasurer, was no friend of the scheme; he raised every objection to it possible from a capitalist's standpoint. During the last few was no friend of the scheme; he raised every objection to it possible from a capitalist's standpoint. During the last few weeks we have had a great deal of talent displayed by both parties in the house of commons discussing the question of "Unrestricted reciprocity." The supporters of the movement contending that if they had the reins of power their economy would be such that there would be no need for direct taxation, but they failed to show and give details as to how they would meet the $7,300,000 now collected in customs by Canada from goods entering from the United States. Mr. Charlton gave the figures of one item, viz., $400,000 in the carrying out of the present franchise law, but that would leave a balance of $6,900,000 to be provided for. I agree with Mr. Minthorne that the assessment law could be but that would leave a balance of $6,900,000 to be provided for. I agree with Mr. Minthorne that the assessment law could be amended in one session of parliament, but to do that it will be necessary for the farmers to elect representatives whose interests were identical with their own. You cannot expect professional men who invest their money in other ways than the purchase of farm lands, when sent to represent rural constituencies to legislate against their own pockets. Now the farmers are largely to blame for this state of affairs themselves. When an election comes on we find them divided and arrayed against each other on some party question formulated by the political leaders, and when the election is over the victor and the vanquished are generally both satisfied six months after date of election. There is another important factor looming up in the political horizon that has received very little attention from the farming community, that is those who believe in the doctrine of Mr. Henry George, who holds that all taxes should be collected from the land alone, and he has no inconsiderable following in Canada at the present time. The farmers never need be afraid of either of the present political parties making the adjustment of our assessment laws a party question, the farmers must make it a question of their own. Mr. Minthorne eays, "It is strange that our friend could not see the peculiar position that he places himself in." I suppose Mr. Minthorne, like many others, thinks a man is a peculiarity that can see anything to agree with in those who are politically opposed to him, or anymany others, thinks a man is a peculiarity that can see anything to agree with in those who are politically opposed to him, or anything wrong with a political party that it is allied with. I contend that I have as good right to question or form an opinion upon any great public question that affects the industry in which I am engaged as the leader of any political party.—Yours truly,

HY. GLENDINNING.
