try as well as to the country; and the premier will find it difficult to fill his place. Mr. White was personally a very popular man with all classes, and especially with members of the newspaper profession. His early death is generally deplored. SCOTT ACT REPEAL.

The repeal of the Scott act was carried in every county last Thursday by surprisingly large majorities. The sweeping defeat was unexpected. The supporters of the act were confident of success, and many bitterly blame the Dominion government for bringing on the election at this time when the roads are bad; but the temperance man must be made of poor stuff who would not go miles to the polls and take all his friends. The subjoined figures shew the majorities by which the act was adopted and repealed :-

It would be well Mr. Barron's speech as it has so grossly for the Ontario government to adopt some misrepresented him. THE Post has printpeachable observers have stated as to the operations of high license laws there could be more sound work done for temperance by that course than by the Scott act or by prohibition in the present state of public feeling.

THE " EGG COMBINE."

The "egg combine" appears to be working away quietly in Toronto and elsewhere. The Empire of Thursday, April 19th, explains in the sentence we have italicised just how the plan is carried out in Toronto as already outlined in THE POST :-

as already outlined in THE POST:—

"Eggs have been offering freely all week and prices have been on the decline until to-day, when they are steady at 12c. The drop has been rather sudden and has caught several dealers with eggs purchased to arrive at 16c, laid down. It is not known exactly why the price has been forced down. The situation hardly warrants it just yet. It was done by a Front street house and others had to follow. There were several lots purchased to-day and yesterday for shipment to Montreal, where prices are a good deal higher."

The export of eggs from Ontario to the United States for the year ending June 30th, 1897, amounted to 9,228,096 dozen, valued at $1,305,642. There's a splendid thing in this for the combine, even on the large amount they can handle.

MR. BARRON AND THE WAR-DER.

space devoted to him and his public actions in the columns of the Warder, but what his feelings may be at finding himself grossly misrepresented and maligned is a uestion we shall not attempt to solve. If the Warder really believes (which it does not) that its course towards Mr. Barron is fair criticism of that gentleman's parliamentary speeches then why does not that paper reproduce his remarks, and having first published what Mr. Barron says, then omment upon his public views; but no. with dishonest ingenuity the Warder puts never uttered, credits him with views which he never entertained, and then proeeds to attack him, in the Warder's well known style, and to criticize a line of conduct which is not Mr. Barron's, but which the Warder has invented for him. It is an easy matter to blow over the house of cards of your own making, and easy too (for the Warder) to allege that such house, made by himself, was made by another, and thus gain credit for apparently upsetting the work of some one else. This kind of journalism is variously styled. One definition of it is "stabbing in the dark." We shall illustrate. In last week's Warder Mr. Barron was charged with having voted to retain the services in the house of commons of three members of the Hansard staff, who, during the last general election. were reported to have used language offensive to Orangemen and the order. We have simply to add that Mr. Barron did not so vote. The Warder knows, if it reads the debates, that the question was not whether the services of these men should be dispensed with or not, but whether the Speaker, in dismissing them, had not usurped the power and privilege of they should have been dismissed by the parliament of Canada instead of by the Speaker, who, in acting as he did, took unto himself powers which belong exclusively to the people's representatives, one of whom was Mr. Barron himself. No one translators more than did Mr. Laurier.

In fact their language was universally disapproved of. Mr. Laurier's closing re-

The Warder stands condemned by the amendment of Sir John Macdonald which was as follows, and which proves the correctness of THE POST :-

"That Mr. Speaker, in dismissing Remi Tremblay, E. Tremblay and A. E. Poirier from their offices of translators of the debates of this house, has acted within the scope of his powers, and has exercised such powers with a due regard to the dignity of this house, and to the consideration and respect due to its members."

It is a proud boast of the Urange order that its members are just one to another; but the editor of the Warder, if an Orangeman, is a very bad one, for he grossly misrepresents Mr. Barron, who for several years past has belonged to that order.

We shall next week publish Mr. Barron's remarks in parliament on Mr. McCarthy's railway bill, and the public can then judge of the fairness of the Warder's attack on Mr. Barron therefrom. The Warder insinuates that Mr. Barron spoke because Mr. Mowat was in the house. "That's another." Mr. Mowat was not in the nouse. He was there on Wednesday night, but not on Thursday night when Mr. Bar-

Again, one more. In the Warder of the 13th inst. Mr. Barron is credited with having spoken in favor of commercial annexation to the United States, and in having stated that the electors in his riding were strongly desirous of having that annexation. It suffices to state that Mr. Barron did not speak in favor of commercorrection by latest returns. It will re- cial annexation. His speech has already appeared in THE Post. He neither used occasion to show whether there has been a such words nor did he express any view falling off in the support of the Scott act as | which would justify any one but a falsilarge as the figures indicate, or whether fier in drawing such a deduction, and there has been an accession to the anti- consequently did not state that the electors

The "ex monk" or "ex-priest" business is profitable one for unscrupulous adventures as the Montreal Gazette shows in a condensed account, printed elsewhere, of the career of "ex-monk" Widdowes, who has been committed to gaol in England for a nameless crime. This Widdowes flour-ished in this section at various times, and was cordially received by many who did not see through him. His exposure and the fate of Loranger should put people on their guard against this class of adven-turers.

A careful summary of arguments of counsel at Osgoode hall in the Oakwood high school case, prepared by the legal reporter of one of the Toronto papers, is Mr. Barron must feel flattered (?) at the space devoted to him and his public actions in the columns of the Warder but what it is against the school board we hope the council will take steps in a friendly spirit to maintain the high school with increased efficiency. The school-board erred in not placing the question fully before the rate-payers at the beginning and taking their decision. Had this been done we believe the ratepayers would have granted the money, and there would have been no difficulties or heart-burnings. It would have been by far the cheaper plan, too.

The following are the articles placed or the free list by the Dominion government in accordance with the reciprocity clause vords into Mr. Barron's mouth which he in the statute of 1879, and as the result of the recent; despatches from Washington:

VICTORIA SPRING ASSIZES. [Before Hon. Mr. Justice Falconbridge.] GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT

May it please your Lordship.—The grand jurors of our sovereign lady the queen as embled at the spring assizes for the county of Victoria at the spring assizes for the county of Victoria beg to present:

They desire to heartily congratulate your lordship on your elevation to the honorable and responsible position you now occupy in the courts of Ontario. Your name has been familiar to the inhabitants of this county for a number of years as a member of the legal profession whose ability and learning would entitle you to an exalted place in the judiciary of the province, and having attained to that distinction they now welcome you in your official capacity and wish you many years of usefulness and honor in the discharge of the high and important duties that devolve upon you.

They have visited the county gaol and have feund the building and premises in good order. There are eleven prisoners—nine males and two females. One of the women who is imprisoned for a long term for vagrancy is, owing to bodily infirmity, a great burden to the officers of the gaol, and they flad it impossible to give her such attention as is needed to prevent her presence proving a nuisance to the other inmates of the ward in which she is confined. The grand jurors would suggest that the matron be supplied with additional clothing and bedding for the use of this prisoner.

They have found the sheriff, the crown counsel, and the other officials of the court most attentive and obliging in discharging their respective duties.—All of which is respectively presented.

and vicinity have had good and sufficient reasons to enter suit against business men for breach of promise. Bear in mind when a man advertises that he is selling goods at Cost Price or at Fifty Cents on the Dollar, or that if you buy a certain amount of goods you will get a "Handsome Present" free gratis, or that he is giving away a lot of goods just to show how much he thinks of you, or that goods will be Slaughtered for Thirty Days only, you may calmly decide that such a man is given to telling ghost stories, for there is no one in Lindsay giving away very much goods, and you may rest assured you won't get very much more than you pay for, notwithstanding all the spouting.

Glores are peculiar. There are no sort of goods in which it is easier to go astran; none in which the utmost rigor to standard is more necessary. There are good Gloves for economical people, good Gloves for extravagant people, good Gloves for people between, and a great rariety for them all. The good of all sorts we keep; the merely good-looking we do not keep. We draw the line sharply between the good and the not good. But there are degrees of goodness and we keep several.
