R. Smyth & Son. Observations.

The Central Fair would undoubtedly have been better patronized had the weather been more favorable and the cowds of people not drawn away by the commotion raised by the great sale of DRY GOODS, MILLINERY, CLOTHING and FURS going on at the Golden Lion. "Observer" was unconsciously drawn into the tide and carried from the monotony of the fair grounds to the scene of excite-MESSRS, R. SMYTH & SON accorded me the honor of occupying the corner window of their store for making observations in the public interest generally, and their own particularly; an amiable looking young salesman, wearing an invisible moustache and bewitching smile, provided me with a fine FUR SUIT from the large assortment they have in stock, which was very acceptable. In the general stampede to grasp the Bargains offered very few of either sex seemed to take the special notice of me that I exsected: finally an old shaver elbowed his true military regulation style. Shropshire Sales. John Campbell, jr., reports the demand for Shropshires as steadily advancing. His sales at Toronto exhibition in one day came up to $750, ameng which was one of eight Canadian bred shearling ewes, and the imported first prize shearling ram to Professor Mills and Shaw of the Ontario agricultural college. Mr. Campbell says that were there many breeders of Shropshires in one locality—the township of Mariposa for instance—who could furnish a a carload at a time American buyers would soon make their appearance to pick them up. This should induce more of our Mariposa farmers to go into breeding Shropshires. Mr. Campbell has again won the silver medal offered by the agricultural and arts association for the best pen of Canadian bred Shropshires, a prize always won by him when entered for. Mr. Campbell's Fairview Shropshires won all the first prizes and four of the seconds at the central fair at Hamilton last week. Shropshires as steadily advancing. His sales

The goodly number that assembled to hear the popular lecture of Rev.Dr. Williams, who as a lecturer made his first appearance before a Lindsay audience on Friday night of lest week, were more than delighted. The subject of the Doctor's lecture was "Ten Days in Old London." He described in an interesting and humorous manner the many scenes for which Lendon is so noted. His descriptions of the tower and the historical associations connected with it; his allusion to the lovely Lady Jane Grey and her affectionate husband; and his account of the execution of Charles I, at White Hall Chapel were exceedingly interesting and instructive. We hope that before long we shall again be favored with a lecture and we are sure he will be greeted with a much larger and equally appreciative audience.

-The R. H. Baird Dramatic Co. has been playing in the opera house for the past four and present the ever popular Irish drama, "The Kerry Gow," will be received with satisfaction by the playgoing public, perhaps particularly so by those who were unable to gain admission on the occasion of his last visit. The Boston Giobe speaks of the play as follows:—"There were no vacant places at the Howard last evening. Manager Harris had put out a bill that had proved to be magnetic, and every seat and available inch of standing room whence a view of the stage could be obtained, was occupied. The attraction presented was the ever popular Irish drama entitled "Kerry Gow." J S. Murphy appeared in the character of Dan O'Hara, the Kerry Gow, and he was warmly welcomed back to the scene of many former triumphs. His wit and humor was as rich as ever, and he kept the audience in constant laughter by his funny Irish sayings. Miss Lillian De Wolf appeared as Norsh Drew, the sweetheart of Dan O'Hara, and she personated the role in a manner satisfactory to her auditors and was persistently encored. The remainder of the performers played their parts admirably. The scenery was all that could be desired by the auditors."... Bradburn's opera house, Saturday evening, Oct. 6th. We have received the following letter replying to our cool customer, whose letter appeared in last week's Post:

·····. Sept. 18th, 1888. SOOTHERAN, CATHRO & MARK, Lindsay.

Dear Sirs,—In the name of common sense who is that crazy-headed galoote who has the presumption to send you six eggs to pay for his next suit of clothes. After carefully considering his generous proposition I have concluded that he knows no more about raising hens than a clocking hen knows about harnessing a horse, nor has he as much an idea of business as a cow has of mental arithmetic. He must be constructed on very peculiar plans and specifica-tions, and judging from the knowledge he displays in his letter he is a man who could use a fine-tooth comb on his own head successfully. He reminds me of the miser who wanted a new suit very badly but always declared himself too infernally ticklish to have his measure taken. What a pity the law treats it as a crime to have such cranks quietly but forcibly esconced in the sweet hereafter. You have evidently given the man sufficiently good value to entitle him to scratch his north ear with his left foot out of respect for you, and yet he has the gall to prove his gratitude by sending you six eggs to pay for his next suit and considers he is extremely generous in so doing. It is very evident this illustrious fowl (foul) producer is very badly loaded up; as the political boodlers put it, he should be loaded up the other way. Possibly he may take objection to the trifling habit I have of interfering with his plans and issue a challenge to combat forthwith, in that event it would be next. lenge to combat forthwith; in that event it would be pre-mature to say what weapons I shall choose. In the meantime I have a word to say to you about Clothing, too; I want two Suits and a medium heavy Overcoat from former measure, you make the selection yourselves. One Tweed Suit—shooting coat, etc, the other to be of your finest black worsted-morning coat, 4-button cutaway; Overcoat-fly front, medium length, dark fawn color. Kindly complete # at your earliest convenience and express to me here C. O. D. and oblige, yours truly, P. S.—Also two suits good quality Underwear, six pairs Wool Sox, one box 15½ Linen S. U. Collars, half dozen 4-in-hand Scarfs, one Waterproof Coat with Cape, 54 in. long, half-dozen White Shirts, good, size 15½. SOOTHERAN, CATHRO & MARK,
