-According to the Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune the feeling is very general in that city that riot will rage in its at rests before the close of the year 1889. Those who are inclined to be superatitious attach much importance to the fact that since the death of Louis XV. no fact that slace the death of Louis XV. no reign or regime has lasted longer than eighteen years. Louis XVI., Napoleon I., Louis Phillippe and Napeleon III. each came to grief in the eighteenth year after his succession to power, and it is now just eighteen years since the establishment of the Third Republic. Is there not reason to fear, people are saying, that the fatal cycle is once more on the eve of its accomplishment? Of far greater significance, however, is the fact that the revolutionary groups, the socialist clubs and even the labor associations do not pretend to conceal their anticipation of a revival this year of the horrors of the commune. That the government is alive to the gravity of the situation is shown by its recent issue of a circular addressed to the military governor and the police and fire officials of the capital, giving them instructions as to the measures to be adopted in case of the use of dynamite by rioters. In view of these facts, we are told, many persons are removing their property to a safe distance

The anarchiets of Paris, in a manifesto on the Seine election, appeal to the people not to vote, as the senate and chamber are powerless to emancipate the people, which can only be done by a revolution.

One of the most remarkable accidents on record occurred the other day in North Caroline. A young lad named Orrell, in running through a field, ran against a cuckle-burr, and as he was drawing in his breath at at the time one of the burrs was inhaled into the larynx, producing great pain and danger of immediate suffocation. Physicians were summoned, and found it necessary to perform trachectomy so that the patient could breathe. At last accounts the boy was doing well.

-- Some time since two lads in Montreal went to a number of city salons and obtained liquor, representing that it was required for medicinal purposes. They did not drink the liquor on the premises, but took it away with them. The law and order league, on the strength of this evidence processed a number of cases. der league, on the strength of this evidence, prosecuted a number of cases. Judge Dugas gave judgment on Mosday. He severely censured the lads, saying that it would be better to have more publicans than increase the number of pharisees, and dismissed the cases on the ground that the prosecution had failed to establish guilty knowledge on the part of the sellers. The league speak of testing the decision in a higher court.

-An Ottawa telegram says: The oper winter is working sad havoc with lumber-ing operations. Mr. Thomas Hale, of Booth & Hale, says that unless snow comes pretty soon, and a foot and a half of it that there will be a big break up in shanty ing, as no one wishes to make logs and leave them over all summer in the woods to get wormy. Unless there is a big snow-fall soon, lumbermen will have to disperse their crews, and even should snow come now some small firms will have to give up. He says there is hardly a stick drawn to the ice yet, as there is no more snow in the bu h than there is on Sparks st. Ottawa, and Ottawaites can testify how little there is on the capital's mais street. Booth says this winter caps the climax of any winter he ever saw in Canda.

—A frightful gale swept through Pennsylvania Wednesday and carried death and destruction to property along its path. Pittsburg was first visited and the wind swept eastward to the Cumberland valley visiting Carlisle, Williamsport, Sudbury and Reading. The wind raged at the rate of 100 miles an hour and lifted roofs, tore down trees and in places wrecked huge buildings. The damage cannot be estimated and the tangled wires prevented complete accounts. It is known, however, that about 120 lives have been lost, 80 of them at Reading, where a silk mill full of operatives collapsed. A new building fell at Pittsburg, killing and wounding many. The scenes at Reading was appalling, for fire broke out in the debris of the storm and victims were subjected to the storm and victims were subjected to the most horrible deaths. Two were killed at Sunbury, several injured at Carlisle, and the loss to property at Williamsport will

The storm was also very severe in the Niagara peninaula, and amongst other damage done completely destroyed the foot and carriage suspension bridge, near the Cilifton house, causing a loss of $200,000.

—Evictions were begun Saturday on Lard Lurgan's estates in county Armagh. The tenants resisted the evictors with boiling water, store and pitenforks. One of the bailiffs was stabbed with a pitchfark and Lord Lurgan's agent and a policeman were seriously injured. During the flight the riot act was read. PORT HOPE. ARRESTES.—Wm. Scott, a young man hailing from Kinmount, formerly of Newcastle, was arrested at Newcastle last Friday, charged with obtaining money under false pretences from Mr.H.Jones, of Jones & Nattrass. It seems that Scott was a former acquaintance of Mr. Jones and told a plausible story, on the strength of which he lent ten dollars. He then went to Newtonville and played the same game at that place, and got ten dollars from Mr. Jones' brother. The prisoner was brought down here by Constable Jarvis, came before the police magistrate this morning and the police magistrate this morning and was sent down to stand his trial.—[Guide.

This lodge is increasing in numbers very fast and had a very successful year. They have purchased a good hall at Saintfield and had it furnished well and to their own comfort and have everything in good shape on the books. They have thirty seven members in good standing, which is not bad for a new lodge. The lodge was organbad for a new lodge. The lodge was organized less than two years ago with a membership of sixteen. On account of fires which consumed the hotel and sheds at Blackwater the lodge decided to remove to Saintfield, which is a more central point for the majority of the members. We cannot give too much praise to the worthy master, Dr. Park, for the work that he has done to help the lodge along, aided by other members of the lodge. We predict a very bright future for the lodge and expect to number among the fifties before spring.

HAY AND STRAW.—We have bay delivered here at $13.50 per ton per carload. Those holding the would-be scarce bay and straw will, by the outlook, including the mild winter, find that next April and May will leave an ample supply to be carried over. Of course it is a good thing to have a fine quantity of straw in the barn all summer, but the wisdom of forking it out in the hot days of July to make room for the crop of 1839 is beyond a question. The job, however, will be, putting it mildly, a warm one, This we say from experience. After the examination Mr. Maleney made a speech in which he congratulated the section for having re-angaged Miss Sullivan for the coming year.
