OBITUARY. The Late F. T Walker. A cable received last week conveyed the and news of the death of P. T. Walker of Dubuque, Iowa, at Capri, an island near Naples on the 6th inst. He was accom-panied by his nephew, Mr. R. J. McHugh of Cresco, Iowa, and was travelling for the benefit of his health. We take from the Dubuque Telegram the following netice of the deceased: Mr. Walker for nearly a year had been alling with a complication of stomach and kidney troubles. Towards midsummer and early fall he became so weakened that a visit to the famour prings of Carlebad, Austria, was decided upon. He left there in October, but finding the weather at Carlabad too wintry. he remained less than two months, when he remained less than two months, when he journeyed through Switzerland and Italy, spending some time in Rome, going thence, via Naples, to the island of Capri, where under the blue sky of Italy and surrounded by the delicious richness of the tropics this prominent citizen of Dubuque is summoned to his eternal home, far away from wife and family, from friends and fellow-citizens, with only a loving and trusted nephew present to console him in his dying moments. Death, and to contemplate at any time, and under all circumstances, in this instance is intensified as we recall the deceased in almost phenomeinal vigor and activity for nigh a quarter of a century, ending his earthly career so far away from his own dearly beloved Dubuque, where all his business life was spent.

F. T. Walker was born August 1, 1840, on a farm near Lindsay, Ontario, Canada, where his parents settled at an early day. on a farm near Lindsay, Ontario, Canada, where his parents settled at an early day. He was the youngest son of a family of seven boys and two sisters, all of whom, save Mrs. McHugh, survive him. His mother, yet living, will mourn the loss of her favorite son. When young, Mr. Walker was quick to learn and his parents indulged his taste by sending him to college in Montreal, Quebec, and later to Reg. iopolts in Kingston, where he completed a six years' classical course and graduated with the honors of his class. For four years more he remained in college studying philosophy, literature and the languages, when he returned home and soon thereafter started for the west, arriving in Dubuque in April, 1865, a total stranger, with a slim purse, but instead a well-stored mind and the energy to develop and utilize it. He at once entered the law office of Griffith & Knight, and was in due time admitted to the bar where he associated himself with Alonzo Cragin until sixteen years ago, when the law, loan and real estate firm of Walker & Rhomberg was formed and has since continued. The partnership has been a prosperous one, and Mr. Walker leaves a large estate. He was a stock holder and officer in several manufacturing concerns and banks, both in and outside Dubuque. He pushed both in and outside Dubuque. He pushed his enterprises with uniform success, and in various directions, from Austin, Texas, to Sault Ste Marie, Mich., and there are both in and outside Dubuque. He pushed his enterprises with uniform success, and in various directions, from Austin, Texas, to Sault Ste Marie, Mich., and there are not wanting many who attribute his early breakdown and death to the constant supervision and watchfulness which he for the firm gave to their outside interests and inves ments. July 1, 1877, he was united in marriage with Miss Nellis J. Leyden, a Dubuque girl both by birth and education. Three sons that were taken from them in childheed and six daughters now living have come to bless their home, now made and and yacant by the removal of a kind husband and father. F.T. Walker was not only one of Dubuque's most active men, but from the long course of college training and mental development he was a gentleman with whom the cultivated citizen delighted to associate. He was a writer of unusual vigor and an erator of ability both natural and acquired. Before his business affairs became se exacting it was often the privilege of Dubuque citizens as well as those in towns around to hear on public occasions the learned and eloquent Frank Walk. et delight his hearers with thengthe sublime molded into sentences of the cholest English. A mind so richly stored as was Mr. Walker's could not but feel a keen interest in national affairs, yet he shrank from fame as an officeholder, and save a term as alderman from the fourth ward, several years ago, he has not held any public position. He was aman of unswerving integrity in business affairs, and to know him well was to trust him implicitly. He was very popular with the workingmen of Dubuque, for the lowliest of whom he always had a cheerful salutation as they chanced to meet. A big, warmed hearted and kindly disposed man, the deserving applicant always received from him encouragement and aid. But it was in his house, surrounded by his family, that the gentle nature of the man we most consplexous and where his joval disposition italy asserted itself. These Pletures and the School Board. [To the Billier of Tun Port.]
Sen,—I am entirely, lest. You see I went over to pay a visit to my neighbor's the other night, and when I was there I saw a paper and all the pictures of my uncles in it, and I asked where they got that paper from. They told me it was a Lindsay paper. So off I came to town, although I have a long way to come, but you see when I saw all my uncie's pictures and Queen Victoria's picture among them and "Father" LeHue's picture I was bound to have them and went to the printing office to get them, but the man that was there told me he could not give me one at all as the school board had hought them all; and when I told him that I wanted them as it was the pictures of my uncle he told me I was wrong. He read me some great names entirely that was below the pictures, and I asked him if he was sure he was reading them right, as I could not read it all myself, but he assured me he was right. But I don't think so, as they are the pictures I mentioned; I could not be mistaken. But what kind of board do they want all the papers to cover up, and who is to pay for all the papers to cover this board withf Will it be done by boodling or by raising morey in the bank on an unlegalized note? Now, Mr. Editor, I could have payed for one of the papers for myself. Could you get one for me, as I am very anxious, as when a man gate old like me he wants all the funny pilmures he can get. So do your best for me. Infoney will be no object in this matter, even if you have to "take" one off the board for me.

"Casual Observer" on the Bully-ragger. [To the Editor of THE POST.]

SIR,-Good morning, Mr. Post. Indeed you look well. Your appearance, my dear sir, bespeaks a contented mind and a prosperous business. I trust you won't mind your old friend, "Casual Observer," taking a little of your time to-day for a chat. The irrepressible Sam is at his old tricks again, I see. Well, it is just what we should expect. Will the leopard change his spots? I chanced to come across his paper some days age, and I was somewhat startled at the boldness of his new plan of campaign. The poor dogans are now gone, destroyed, pulverized, scattered to the winds, hardly a shadow left of them. What could the poor dogans do but vanish before the mighty pen of Sam and the death-dealing glare of his eagle eye and the flery breath of his anger, which roareth like a cyclone and leaveth a desert in its path. Now for fees more worthy of his steel. The decree has gone forth according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which it is not lawful to alter. All officials from the mayor down, all citizens and all men and women neglecting to attend and patronize any lecture, entertainment and scheme of any kind which Sam has willed to get up shall feel the weight of his anger. The glory and hapweight of his anger. The glory and hap-Sam's bidding in any case. Any moral leper upon whom Sam has thrown his cloak must become white as snow in our eyes. Sam Hughes and Father Chiniquy, cloak must become white as snow in our eyes. Sam Hughes and Father Uniniquy, a precious pair, truly; and well mated, too, in all points except age. Their methods and instincts (not principles) are wonderfully similar, and the same romantic shadows have graced their early lives. They could not but fall in low with each other. All must hurrah for Utiniquy and Sam Hughes or be spotted. They must be punished, they must be boycotted and they must be crushed; lo lithe great Sam has said it. Now, leaving jokes aside, Mr. Editor, if an impression were to get abread that there is any truth in Mr. Hughes's brag it would make theirs unpleasant for some of your business men. I wonder how long will the flawer of roset priest keep them quiet under the braggart's real or pretended power? It is an interesting study for an outsider.

Sam tracically tells us that he has made a blackguard of himself, etc. It strikes me that he could hardly do that at his time of day. He means, no doubt, that there are degrees in the kind and that he has reached a very conspicuous degree. Well, let that go; he ought to know best. It is ludicrous to see Sam, the local organ of the great conservative party in the county, running into the gutter and slashing dirt and filth around like a veritable gamin. It is impossible to follow him on that favorite battle-ground. He calls people ourang-outang and such fistering names; and is especially hard on the "low Irish." Why, the fellow's soul is so treacherous that he cannot be true to the very blood that runs in his veins. Of his own boasting admission he is part Irish and part French; and I say that the fauits of the two races are conspicuously and successfully blended in him, to that extent indeed that there is no From left for any of the good qualities. He poses as an Adouis and he is only a mongrel. Did you remark the prominent them bour, the glare of the eye and the noticeable trace of the wig was 's maple in the coloring of the Adonia and he is only a mongrel. Did you remark the prominent the k bour, the glare of the eye and the noticeable trace of the wig wan's amoke in the coloring of the akin? That, sir, would be a trace of Indian blood. What slory for Sam if he could claim any portion of Irequois blood in his make-up, and that long ago one of his great-mrand-sires was a famous chief with tomahawk and scalping knife and untold scalps hanging from the rafters of his wigwam. The supposition yound account for several tracts in the manis character. Go it, Sam, boy! Crush and pulveriz! We know those who stand behind you. —I remain, dear Puez, yours tray,

A QUESTION.—As regards the private school of this village we think that it is not lawful that trustees of any other public section have any right whatever to enter and take the attendance of pupils supposed to be from a certain section in this locality. Their only claim is that this building where this private school is kept is on the remotest corner of this section. We think if it was another public school that this school law would justify their actions; in taking the attendance of the schoolers from their section; but in this case I maintain that it is different and that trustees should be more careful and have more knewledge of the school law or they might get themselves into a fiz. We learn that our republican private school prometers knew a thing or two about school matters.

School House Burned. - Early Monday morning the people of this village were aroused from their peaceful slumber by cries of "fire." About three o'clock fire was discovered in the south-east corner of the school house. By the time the people arived the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to do anything to save the building and contents. It is only about a year ago that considerable money was spent on it, and the school was in a very comfortable cendition. Since Christmas it has made rapid progress under the present staff of teachers. The loss will be very heavy on the section. The teachers and pupils lost a great many of their books. The loss to the section will be about $2,500, and is insured for $1,200 in the Western Assurance Co. The cause is unknown but is supposed to be incendiarism, there being Assurance Co. The cause is unknown but is supposed to be incendiarism, there being no fire in it since Friday evening last.

PERSONAL.—The departure of Mr. James Ellis and family from this village will be regretted by a large circle of friends. Mr. Ellis has resided here for a great many years. Before his removal to Peterboro he was entertained at a supper by the Oddfellows. Mr. Ellis is engaged in the insurance business, and as his field is a large ene Peterboro will be more centrally situated for him. Our loss is Peterboro's gain.

ELEIGEING PARTY.—On Friday evening last a party from Lindsay drove out to see a friend near the village and spent a very pleasant evening. They returned at an early hour.
WEDDINGS.—We hear of several wed-

AN EXCITING SCHOOL TRUSTEE DISPUTE AN EXCITING SCHOOL TRUSTEE DISPUTE AND ELECTION.—A school meeting was held in s.s. No. 5, Verulam, on the 9th inst. for the purpose of electing a trustee.
It appears that at the annual meeting four candidates were nominated for the trustee ship: Messrs. T. Corbitt, S. Quigley, R.
McFreters and G. White. A poll was demanded by one of the ratepayers, but after consideration it was decided to play "pussey wants a corner," and each candidate took a corner. It appears there was a considerable lot of cat haulings but Mr.
Corbitt got the largest haul and w-s declared elect d, but the secretary instead of putting Mr. Corbiti's name on the minute book, as he should have done, put George White's name, but the chairman, Mr. R.
Welsh, would not accept a declaration frem Mr. White and of course Mr. White appealed to Mr. J. H. Knight, school inapector, and on the 28th of Jan, Mr.
Knight held an investigation. Several men were sworn and questioned by P. M.
our local attorney. The school act reads that a poll shall be demanded by two ratepayers, and nothing was proven to show that such a poll was demanded. but Mr. that a poil shall be demanded by two rate-payers, and nothing was proven to show that such a poil was demanded, but Mr. Knight over-ruled and called for another election, and so the morning of the 9th, long before the hour to open the meseting, the school house was pretty well crowded. Mr. John Quigley was elected to the chair and ably and honorably filled the position. Jas. C. Leary was appointed secretary for the meeting. Mr. Knight's bill of expense was produced which was $8. Mr. Garner Hunter said that was the kind of economy he did not approve et. Mr. Timothy Cor-Hunter said that was the kind of economy he did not approve of. Mr. Timothy Corbittand Mr Samuel Quigley were the candidg also for the day. Mr. White for want of sand fell through. Mr. Corbitt received a majority of 11, which showed he was the right man in the right place. After the pell was closed Mr. Corbitt was placed in the chair, which was carried by two hearty young men amidst great cheering. By the way we expect a big night at Mr. Corbitt's before long. Oh, you, Pat, we'll have the carpot up all right.

RECOVERED.—Mr. Morgan O'Neill, jr., is now recovering from a long and severe sickness from tyhoid fever. Mr. U'Neill for several days was not expected to resover but has pulled through and is now able to be about.

Going to be about.

Going to be Married.—Great smiles are on Mr. Tom Downey's face to day.

He is going to be married to morrow.

Destructive Fire.—On Sunday night between eight and nine o'clock Mr. MeKenzie's tailor shop was burned. It be longed to Neil McPhaden. Insurance on the building $400; loss $400; insurance on the stock $600, no loss. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. The fire occurred when the churches were in session and they were soon emptied. Dr.
Fierheller's house and office were in me
minent danger; and a loss was austained
in furniture, carpets, etc. destroyed; Mr.
Allan McPhadden's and John Oliver's grocery had considerable loss in the same way. By heroic efforts of a few—Mr. E.
H. Glendenning, Mr. Angus Mamillar,
Mr. Anderson, Mr. R. Hodgson, Mr. R.
Porritt and a few others—the fire was confined to the building. New here Porritt and a few others—the fire was confined to the building. Numbers of men stood with hands in their pockets looking on. Mr. Wm. Jones lost everything.

After the loss of the first Mr. Rear purchased one to complete the team. The new horse was in the stable but a few hours when it kicked another in an adjoining stall, breaking its leg, thereby necesitating the killing of the injured animal. Mr. Rear's neighbor's sympathizing with him in his double loss surprised him on the 7th inst., presenting him with a purse containing about $75 and the following address:—To Mr. Thomas Rear:—Dear Sir and Brother,—We, a few of your triends and neighbors, have met to express our sympathy with yourself and family in the loss which you have recently experienced. It is our privilege and pleasure to present you with a slight token of the regard in which you are held by the community. An eld Book, in which we all believe, says, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," and we sincerely trust that you may experience the blessing in receiving that we do in giving. PETERBORO. BISHOP DOWLING'S TRANSLATION TO HAMILTON.—The Examiner of Tuesday says: Today his lordship Bishop Dowling received the papal bull appointing him Bishop of Hamilton and also the official papers appointing Deam O'Connor of Barrie Bishop of Peterborough. Cardinal Simeon, Prefect of the Propaganda, congratulates the new prelates on their respective appointments. The people of Peterborough and of the diocese generally, while congratulating Bishop Dowling upon the qualifications which win him the confidence of the papal authorities, cannot but regard with regret his removal from Peterborough. On the 3rd of May, 1887, he was installed into the Episcopal chair of 3t. Peter's, and during the brief interval that has elapsed he has won his way to the hearts of the people, and gained the respect and goodwill of those professing a different faith. In a world of change, however, such things as his translation are to be expected and respect for constituted authority makes yielding to its mandates less difficult and duils the edge of comparatively selfish regret. While his people part with Bishop Dowling with sincere and peignant regret they are ready to loyally "speed the parting and welcome the coming" bishop. It will detract in no wise from their love and respect for Bishop Dowling, if they recognize Rev. Dean O'Conner of Barrie a worthy successor. To-day his lordship Bishop Dowling received
