A Question for the Board of Trade. (To the Editor of Tam Posts.)

Srm,-Would it not be desirable for the board of trade to discuss at its next meeting the action of the Warder in threatening to mark or watch or boycott those "weak-kneed Protestant merchants," as he styles them, who happened not to buy the tickets for a fecture recently given in the town hall. Are the Protestant merchants to be buildosed in that way? Is the editor of the Warder to decide what lectures they must attend and when they are to stay at home? Are not these articles in the Warder seriously injuring the business of the town? Will they not have a bad effect on outsiders? I fear they will. Our Protestantism is staunch and sound, and does not require ruffianism in print. The board of trade should deprecate and condemn the rowdysm of the Warder on business and common sense grounds, and I sincerely hope that Thos. Beall, that ardent radical and shrewd observer and philosopher, will bring in a ing to mark or watch or boycott those observer and philosopher, will bring in a report on the question.

A CONSERVATIVE TRADER.

Another Warder Lie Natiod. [To the Editor of Tun Post.] SIR.-I have sent the enclosed to the Warder. Please publish it in THE Pose and oblige, -Yours truly, J. A. BARRON. [OOPY] (To the editor of The Warder).

OTTAWA, 18th Feb., 1889. SIR,-In your attempted defence of the Dominion government for allowing the Jesuit bill to become law you stated in the last issue of your paper that: "Right "here in Lindsay one finds Mr. J. A. Barron, M.P., and Mr. C. D. Barr, editor of THE POST, both educating their "children in a Jesuit convent, superin-"tended by French Jesuits."

So far as I am concerned this statement is absolutely false and untrue. As you

Too the Mark, Gentlemen - Protestant Merchants "Marked." [To the Editor of THE POST.]

Sir, - I read with great surprise in a Toronto paper an extract from the Lindeay Warder attacking Protestant merchants for not attending the lecture by Rev. Mr. Chiniquy. A part of the extract is as follows: "Protestants are beginning to remark that so-called Protestant merchants are ever ready to give liberally to every Romish horse-race, bassar, raffle, lottery, concert or faudango of any and every description; and that these same worthies are unable to buy a ticket or attend anything unable to buy a ticket or attend anything under special Protestant auspices. They are being noted and kenceforward will be watched; and, if it is a simple question of trade, why Protestants feel they would rather deal with staunch Protestants or Roman Catholica than with these half-and-half fellows."

Now are Listanded coing to been the Roman Catholics than with these halfand-half fellows."

Now, sir, I intended going to hear Mr.
Chiniquy, though I did not like the auspices (Mr. Sam Hughes) under which he appeared, but was accidentally detained.
Has it come to this base that the Protestant merchants of Lindsat have got to toe the mark for M. Sam Hughes? If they don't patronis tone of Sam's shows are they to be assered with abuse and "noted" and "watch of and marked and boycotted? The und must be daft; he must be cracked, or like he is a more mischievous fire brand than any one sup posed. It may entire that he dance to every tune Sam place is the Wander; but the Protestant merchants of Lindsay are not so mean spirited and chicken-hearted as to let him run-thip down in that style.
The worst of it is that people in the neighboring towns and in Toronto will conclude from the tide-in the Warder that matters are in a they bad state in Lindsay; that two discounts the community are ready to fly a each ther's throats.
So far from that being the case they are living on the very but terms.

A Professional Mr. Rechant.

During the four years he was stationed here he made himself by his many kind acts endeared to his people and made many warm friends among all classes. When appointed to this mission the church was under a heavy debt, but by his able exertions he not only ramoved the greater part of the debt but also built a fine presbytery worth $3,000. MUTILATED BY A TRAIN.—About four o'clock on Sunday morning, as the Pacific express neared Longford, about eight miles north of Orillia, the engineer observed a man lying on the track and immediately reversed his engine, but too late to prevent the train passing over him. On the train hands going back they found the body of an Indian named Thomas Jordan, who had worked for Mr. A. McPherson, at Longford. He had been over in Orillia all day, and started to walk home by the track late at night, He was the worse of liquor and it is supposed had fallen in the caivert, where he lay and had gone to sleep. The engine striking him tore the upper portion of his head off, mashed his hand, which lay across the track, to a pulp and horribly mutilated the body, dragging it some distance and strewing pieces along the track. The trainmen gathered the remains up and took them to Gravenhurst, where an inquest was held. They were returned to Longford on the 8 o'clock train Monday morning and taken charge of by the Rama Indians, who interred them in the Indian cemetery. Jordan was about 30 years of age and came from New Brunswick about two years ago. SUNDBRLAND.

Obstuary.—It is our sad duty to record the sudden departure of Mr. Alex. Robertson. Mr. Robertson was apparently in his usual good health until last Saturday morning, when he complained of a pain across his bowels, which developed into infiammation of the kidneys, and terminated his earthly career on Sanday afternoon. Mr. Robertson was ene of the oldest residents of the Scotch line, Verulam, a staunch member of the Presbyterian church, of which he has been elder many years. During his life he enjoyed the confidence and respect of a large circle of friends and acquaintances, as was evinced by the immense concourse that followed his remains to their last resting place in the graveyard surrounding the church, in which he had been a consistent worshipper, and in which he had the Sabbath previous to his demise partaken of the sacrament, commemorating the death and suffering of the Saviour in whom he trusted. In the departure of Mr. Robertson his family mourn a kind and affectionate husband and father, the Presbyterian church at Dunsford loses one of its most faithful and consistent members, and the reform party of which he was an ardent supporter has lost one of its most useful workers. Let us hope that what is our lose is his gain, and endeavor to live so that we fail not finally to meet our departed friend in that blessed country where parting is unknown.

A MILLIONAIR &'S INSURANCE. John Wanamaker Tolls Why He Has Insured His Life for $1,550,000.

A gorgeously decorated calendar for 1989, brought in by a messenger with the compliments of a local life insurance company, led to the startling announcement that Mr. Wansmaker is insured in the phenomenal sum of $1,250,000. I looked at him in amasement. Said I to myself: "Here is a man, reputed to be worth twenty million dollars, at the head of a concern so prosperous that its profits are ordinarily supposed to be a million dollars a year, in the very prime of life, in all human probability many years of useful activity before him. What under heaven does he want of a million and a quarter of insurance on his life? And, as I said this to myself, I unconsciously asked him how it was that he, the most substantial merchant of his clear with reserve stantial merchant of his class, with everything that mind could suggest, taste desire, or heart ask for—he, with money galore, so much, indeed, that it is scattered broadcast among the deserving charities of the day—should insure his life to an amount of hundreds of thousands of dollars more than that carried by any other individuals

"Well," said he, as he crossed his legs and interlocked the fingers of his hands "I'll tell you:
"I regard a policy in any of our great life assurance companies with the assets they have as against their liabilities, and managed as they are to day as sound and substantial an investment as the stock of your Chemical bank with its assets and managed as it is to-day. A very careful study of the tables of life insurance con-study of the tables of life insurance convinced me long ago that in what is kown as the 'old line' companies, prudently managed, sagaciously conducted, there is no possibility, no existing chance of failura. Therefore, because I consider it prudent, safe, desirable as an investment, I have put my money very largely into life insurance." "Are you insured in any of the as ment companies?"

"No, not a dollar. Everthing I have is in the 'old line' companies, as they are called, the solid, substantial, recognized institutions of the land."

"Are your policies life or endowment?"
"Both. I have a very considerable sum in each of those plans and perfect faith in both."

both."

"Have you a large family, and is your insurance for the benefit of your family "
"No, I have not a large family. Some of my earlier insurance was taken out in the name of my wife, but the great bulk of it is an asset of my estate."

Among the companies which Mr. Wansmaker evidently believes to be an exceptionally strong and well managed organization is the Canada Life of Hamilton, as is shown by the fact that he bas secured a sation is the Canada Life of Hamilton, as is shown by the fact that he has secured a policy in it for $25 000, which is the largest amount that the Canada Life risks upon one life. The policy in addition to secur-ing the protection to his estate and family in the amount stated, affords a better in vestment than government bonds.—Ha
