Mr. Labouchere, Sir Charles and had received a letter from Earn in July, 1883, in cause quence of which a number of documents were handed to Mr. List outhers. Sir Charles asked permission to call winnesses to testify to information which the court ought to have. Sir Charles Russell further said that Plant, in the presence of Gorge augustus Sala, signed a confination that the documents he had produced were forgation, and that he was the farger. LONDON, Feb. 26.-The Parnell com mission resumed its sitting this morning. After the opening of the court Sir Charles After the opening of the court Sir Charles
Russell arose and stated that on Saturday Richard Pigott went to the residence of Mr. Henry Labouchere, and in the presence of Mr. Geo. Agustus Sala, signed a confession stating that the letters upon which the Times based its charges against the Iriah members of the house of commons were forgeries. Sir Charles Russell applied for a warrant for the arrest of Pigott.

Presiding Justice Hannen said a warrant would be ready in an hour.

Attorney-General Webster, for the Times, said no other witness was ready, and that he would have to consider what course to pursue. He would also have to decide whether or not he would resume any part of the case.

PIGOTT DISAPPEARS.

PIGOTT DISAPPEARS.

When Pigott was called to again take the stand he did not appear. After the court had waited some time, the counsel for the Times stated to the judges that Pigott had left the hotel at which he was stopping at 11 o'clock last night, and that the counsel were ignorant of his whereabouts. This statement caused a sensation. The court took a recess for half an hour.

Pigott, in his confessin to Mr. Labouchere un Saturday, said he forged all the letters secured by the Times which purpoted to have been written by Mesers. Egan, Parnell, Davitt and O'Kelly. He also admitted that he had been guilty of perjury in his evidence given before the yesterday morning Mr. Shannon received a letter from Pigott, and he would call Mr. Shannon to prove it.

Sir Charles Russell said he regretted that he had not heard of the letter earlier. He desired to put in evidence a letter from Egan to Mr. Labouchere.

Attorney-General Webster objected to the introduction of the letter.

Sir Charles Russell said that owing to the Attorney-General's objection he would not read the letter, but as the letter with other documents bore on Pigott's disappearance, he claimed that in the interests of justice he should make a statement.

Justice Hannen said that evidence must be called in support of the statement.

Sir Charles acquiesced in this decision. He added that the letter and documents showed the means by which he had fixed upon Pigott as the forger.

TORIES NOW BITTERLY COMPLAIN that the attorney-general, Sir Richard Webster, has dragged them into his moraes by a statement of his personal belief in the authenticity of the letters. The Times intends to seek to evade the difficulty by making Manager Macdonald resign. Mr. Waiter, the proprietor, is reported to have fled to the south of France. In a circular of to-day published by the Star, Solicitor Soames announces to the Times shareholders that they will be unable to get their usual dividends this year, owing to the hugeness of the expenses of the trial.

The president of the court has directed sil Pigott's papers left at the horel to be impounded.

—All Washington is splitting its sides over a story of social romance and missed venture which has just leaked out. Mr. George Barclay of the British legislation has of late been sufficiently epris of Miss Leiter, the beautiful western heirers, who has turned all Washington heads this winter. Mr. Barclay is the attractive young gentleman who won fame and money at the Knickerbocker club in New York by backing himself to drive to the Brunswick hotel, dress for dinner and return inside of ten minutes. He did actually accomplish this feat inside of seven minutes. It is undoubtedly owing to this nervous haste, abnormally developed in an otherwise rather slow nature that Mr. Barclay has now to accept his present mortification. It seems that on Wednesday night Mr. Barclay felt the approach of the cold wave, and purchased some of those warm woollen garments which stick closer than a brother to a cold man's legs. The same afternoon he ordered a box of roces to be sent to his lodgings. Late for dinner, as usual, he rushed home, dashed off a pretty note to Miss Leiter, saying: "Wear these this evening for my sake," and handed the note and the box containing the woollen goods to his servant who duly delivered them, while the box of roces remained upon Mr. Barclay's table. Although, perhaps not quite so grievous an international affront as Lord Sackville put upon us, the views of the British foreign office upon the latest misfit in diplomacy is awalted with some amusement and anxiety. As for Mr. Barclay's personal explanations, they are, of course 'unmentionable.'

The bridesmaid was Miss Duncon of Cannington and the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. N. McCrimmon. After the ceremony the happy couple took the evening train for Kincardine to visit friends.

The Linday men will have their work cut out for them when they flad themselves once more pitted against the Peterbero curlers, who have the weight of the old saw "the third time's the charm," in their favor.
