The steamer Marie Louise arrived from Pt. Ferry on Tuesday with a scowload of beets and parenips, which were disposed of to merchants and hotel-keepers.

Enquiry from Captain Lane elicited the information that the ice went out Thursday night under the influence of a steady breeze. The first trip last season was also made on Good Friday, which fell on April 23rd, four days later than this year.

This Department is under the immediate superintendence of Our MR. CATHRO, a practical cutter of 25 years' experience. He gives it his whole and undivided attention, and has made this Department a wonderful success. We do a very large business in our Ordered Clothing, but we are anxious to do more, and if Good Value, Artistic Cut, Perfect Fit, Skilful Workmanship and exquisite taste displayed in the finish of all our garments are inducements, we ought to double up this season. We do not clothe every man and boy, but those we do are very distinguishable for their superiority of style, fit and finish. It is possible to equal us but not possible to surpass us in the manufacture of Gentlemen's Clothing. We don't ask you to take these broad assertions on trust. A trial will demonstrate that the statements herein made are absolutely true, and that our values throughout are not approached elsewhere.

—One of the attractions of Friday last was the scientific exposition of the noble game afforded through the medium of a match between the Young Athletes, abiding in the vicinity of the market square, and the Silver Stars of the east ward. When time was called the score stood 25 to 50 in favor of the former.

The concert given on Tuesday evening in Bradburn's opera house for the benefit of Brakeman F. W. Davis was a gratifying success in every way, both as regards attendance and excellence of program. -Boat men express much concern at the low state of the water, which is about 18 inches lower than at this time last year. This is owing to the light snow-fall of the past winter and to the exceptionally dry spring. Unless we are blessed with a number of rainfalls before July trouble will be experienced by those who "go down to the sea in ships."

-A public school concert is announced for Friday evening, May 3rd, in Bradburn's opera house. The program promises to be a most attractive one, and readers should look upon the date as a matter in which they are interested. The object is a commendable one, it being proposed to apply the surplus funds—if any—to the adornment and beautifying of the school grounds.

Bert's wrist was broken in the fall and the physicians say the fracture is a complicated one which will lay him up for a few weeks."

The organ recital in Cambridge-st. Methodist church on Friday evening last, though, owing to the storm, it was rather thinly attended, was a success. The sudience represented the best musical taste and culture in the town, and all were delighted by the ability and care with which the selections were rendered. Mr. Parker is a master of his art, and brought from the organ tones and combinations which astonished all who heard them. His pedalling is marvellous, and his sudden transitions from the thunder of the full organ to the almost voiceless sweetness of a single stop thrilled his hearers. thunder of the full organ to the almost voiceless sweetness of a single stop thrilled his hearers. His selections were good, and brought out the capabilities both of the player and his instrument. Miss Vair, soprano scloist of "St. Paul's choir, Peterboro, a pupil of Prof. Parker, sung four solos with great sweetness and fulness of voice. She was repeatedly applauded and encored, as she deserved to be. The Lindsay Octette Club, accompanied on the organ by Miss Easton, maintained their high and well earned reputation in rendering the anthems selected, and were heartily applauded. We are pleased to be able to state that in response to the earnest request of the people here Professor Parker has consented to give another recital in the same church, with an entirely new program, on Monday evening.
