—Last Thursday afternoon Lieut. Franklin A. Shaw of the First Regiment of Infantry, Boston, was out walking at Greathead with his little daughter Gracie. They were attended by a thoroughbred St. Bernard dog, the property of Lieut. Shaw. While at the highest point of the cliff Grace went close to the edge, and the dog, seeing her danger, walked between the child and the precipice. The turf started and the dog lost his footing. Realizing his danger he made a spring far out over the cliff. The child had turned to her father and was really out of danger when the dog sprang up in front of her, but the noble brute had done his duty in guarding her. He sprang clear of the rocks and landed on his feet on the beach, 129 feet below. It was a remarkable escape, for the dog is extremely large, weighing 165 pounce, and such a leap, without breaking limbs, seems impossible. Beyond a few cuts on his feet the dog was apparently unhurt. nnhurt.

It is anonymous. It says that to re-establish the temporal power the church must be Anglicized or Americanized or dwindle. This is illustrated by startling statements that the papal rescript against the plan of campaign was launched by the pope under the pressure of the English government against the advice of Mgr. Persico, who has hitherto been held responsible for that blunder. The article is sponsible for that blunder. The article is certain to attract attention in Italy and Ireland. It points without naming him to Cardinal Gibbons as the next pope, and the transfer of the seat of the holy see from Rome to London. The article is long and has the place of honor. It is written with earnestness and conviction, and the author evidently has an intimate acquaintance with the secrets of the vatican.

—A burglary of a very sensational character was attempted in Kingston on Wednesday night. Marshai C. Twitchell, son of the United States consul, a young man of unblemished reputation, entered the house of Mrs. Martin, gagged and bound the servant girl, and then proceeded upstairs, where he met Mrs. Martin, at whom he fired and afterwards beat her over the head with his pistol. Twitchell was arrested the following day. He admitted having entered the house, but mitted having entered the house, but

The Peterboro police, magistrate tried a man last week for using blasphemous language. The culprit had a quarrel with a neighbor about a line fence, and pleaded that the latter's conduct had been "sufficiently exasperating to justify the use of language stronger than auch adjectives as are generally made use of in ordinary conversation." The magistrate however imposed a fine of $2 and costs, remarking that swearing would not settle the question of boundary, that the better way to do would be to give some of the poor lawyers a chance to make a little money these dull times. pretends he acted in a trance.

The Pembroke Observer says: Another case of faith cure is reported to have occurred, this time on Muskrat lake, near Cobden. A young lady was ill fer many months, and finally became so weak that she could not walk alone. She prayed fervently one evening in her room for restoration to health, and almost at once was able to walk down stairs and out to the barn where her sisters were milking the caws. That was a couple of weeks ago and the young lady is now, the report says, in good health.

-A Globe correspondent has gleane some facts in connection with the allegapoisoning of George Breeze in Murray by his wife Nellie in May last. Nellie Dowd was born of poor but respectable parents. The story has now leaked out that since her marriage to her husband her life had been one of misery. With an irritable temper, which grew gradually worse, his actions were unbearable. He would tell the neighbors stuff about her and abuse the neighbors stuif about her and above her to his daughter Lens, and she was obliged to submit to corporal punishment at times during the years 1897 and 1898. All this she bore with fortitude without making it public until her nervous system gave way, and became very sensitive. Her affection began to weaken and her leve turned to hatred. These relations continued until the poor creature could stand it no longuesad she commenced to tell her friends but not her neighbors, as will be seen by the evidence of John Sheeley, who swere

A WORD TO TO [BY THE REV. CHARLES COURTENAY.] A word to young women. Not to nothers about their sons, nor to sisters bout their brothers, but to young women about their young men. It is just as well to declare plainly for whom this little message is intended. I need not ask you what you think of "your young man." It would be a waste of words to sak you, "Is he handsome?" "Is he clever?" "Is he attentive?" "Is he worth having?" I take it for granted that there never was such a young man before.

and probably never will be again, But there is a question I propose to ask you without any more delay, "Is he a are not plenty of good young men who are are not plenty of good young men who are not testotalers. There are. But what I do say is that if young women want to be on the safest side they had better by far choose a testotaler. I will tell you why:

He cose not cost so much to keep. Your young man won't be able to drink without money, any more than you can keep house without money. Plenty of small change can be consumed on even small beer. How much, then, on "bigger beer," which a respectable young man like yours is pretty sure to drink? Moderate wages won't stretch, and besides, young men do not drink less as they get older. It is worth thinking about — is'nt it? — how much a young man costs to keep.

Now, I am not going to say that there worth thinking about — is'nt it? — how much a young man costs to keep.

Then a teetotaler is more likely to get on. Perhaps you don't see this. Then let me tell you. Teetotalers are not so likely to lose their time—are they?—nor to lose their wits either, nor to be cheeky to their employers, nor to do bad work. It is the steady man who can be depended upon, and therefore it is the steady man who is likely to be promoted. You would like your husband to get on, would'nt you? Then keep the safe side and choose a teetotaler.

Then a teetotaler is better to get on with. I dare say you know well enough that drink is, as a rule, no sweetener of the temper, neither does it tend to make men unselfish. I am sure it doesn't make them easier to please. I am positively certain it doesn't keep them at home. Indeed, to my mind, there is nothing that comes so miserably between husband and wife as strong drink. I think you will see this without any further explanation.

Then a teetotaler cannot be a drunkard.
But a drinker can, and this is why I say it. But a drinker can, and this is why I say It.
You know as well as I do how drunken husbands abound; husbands who bring no wages home; husbands who knocks their wives about; husbands who are everlastingly getting into trouble. Now, a tectotaler has less chance of being such a brute than even your strictly moderate young man—has'nt he? Perhaps your young man never will behave so. But he may.

Your young man is going to be a tectotaler, you say? That is good news. But when? After your marriage? Ah, poor girl, and you believe it? Well. now, you must be very easily deceived to think that "your young man" will do after marriage that which he wouldn't do before. I tell you he is taking you in. He doesn't mean to do it. Why, don't you know the old, old story? Ask the wife of any drunken happend you know, and you are pretty husband you know, and you are pretty certain to hear how he promised to give up the drink after marriage-and didn't.

Perhaps he is fond of strong drink.
Then I pity you. You have put your foot into it, and no mistake. You are pickling a pretty rod for your back. What! a man fond of strong drink? You must be in a -While working in Scripture's mill, Colborne, last Friday, a young man named Ives slipped against the large circular saw, which completely severed his left arm and so badly mangled his leg that it had to be amputated at the knee.

-Mr. Joseph Harris of Gore's Landing is 96 years of age, probably the oldest inloves you, thank God your neck is out of loves you, thank God your neck is out of the noose before it was tightened. And you must not forget, either, young men who are fond of strong drink are not over fond of religion. I do not know your mind about it, but I hope you are a religious young woman. If you care about the Lord Jesus Christ and His house and His book, you won't like a husband who will laugh and sneer at them all. And so eternity as well as time calls out to you "to look before you leap." Sooner or later we shall have passed through sickness and death into the world beyond, and when we stand before the great white throne, God grant that you and yours may stand there "accepted in the Beloved."
