BOBCAYGEON.

alarm was given at about half-past three in the afternoon and it was at once seen that a bad fire was on hand. It is supposed that some children, playing in the rear of the residences of Mr. J. L. Read and Mrs. Edgar, accidentally set fire to a shed, and in an incredibly short period of time it ran through the shede, etables, etc., and into the two houses. The fire company, under Capt. A. E. Bottum, got to work and did good execution, the engine throwing a fine atream of water for nearly three hours. Hand engine No. 2, supplied by a line of buckets, in which the ladies, as usual, worked like men, in fact far better than most men, did great service in saving the store of Air. F. W. Read. At one time it looked as if the fire would be an extensive one, as the falling slakes of fire were only extinguished with great difficulty. Mr. Wafram's dwelling, nearly a block away, caught, and the furniture was removed. After a hard fight it was got under. The furniture was brought out of the dwellings of Mrs. Edgar and Mr. J. L. Read, though much damaged. It is etrange how people will move with the greatest care a couple of links of old stove pipe and throw a that some children, playing in the rear of will move with the greatest care a couple of links of old stove pipe and throw a backet of china into the middle of the atrect. It was clearly demonstrated at this first hat a salvage corps should be formed who would take control of this work, and be under the instructions of the captain of the fire company. Mrs. Edgar's loss on building will be fully $100, insured in the Western for $250; Mr. J. L. Read's loss is entimated at $1,700, insured for $1,000 in the Western.

Hints for the Farmer.

YOUNG COWS FOR CHEAP MILE. - The ste Professor Arnold was an authority upon all matters pertaining to the dairy, nd he averred that it cost more to make milk from old cows than it does from young once having the same milk-producing capacity. The period of profitable milking does not terminate at the same age with all cows altke. Some hold out longer than others, but, as a rule, the best efforts do not reach beyond the manager, Mr. B. E. Walker, devoted eighth year of the cow's age. The quan- portion of his address to the importance tity of milk given generally keeps up of the egg trade. He pointed out that until a cow is ten years old, and some- the export of eggs from Ontario last year times considerably longer; but after a reached 10,000,000 dozen, the price to cow has reached her eighth year her milk the farmer averaging about 112 cents, and is produced at a greater cost of feed, and after that age it costs more to fatten her, market had to be found, as no product of while her flesh depreciates in quality.

BREAKING BULLS.—The method of breaking bulls adopted by Mr. John M. cline in price. But the United States Eddy of Saratoga, is worthy of note and tariff imposes a duty of five cents per imitation. It is said that he takes the animal at any age and puts on the same harness that he would use on a horse, turning the collar the opposite side up. turning the collar the opposite side up, and hitches him to a two-wheeled cart in some large field where there are no trees. He then gets in for a ride, letting Mr. Bull go where he pleases. When the bull begins to tire he continues to drive him until he is thoroughly conquered.

After the first trial he has no difficulty in working him. But he always keeps a rope attached to the ring in the nose so that the animal cannot run away.

"Why Farming Does Not Pay."

A thinking Connecticut farmer sends to the Country Gentleman an interesting paper on this important topic, and from it we make an extract as likely to make our farmers think over a situation similar in many of its conditions : This being the state of affairs at this time, let us see why the farmer falls behind in the race for wealth, and review a few of the causes. First, immigration has been excessively stimulated by the low price of government lands-only two dollars per acreaided by cheap ocean rates and low railroad transportation. This has enabled the European peasant to come here untaxed, and immediately to enter into competition, with but a slight outlay of capital, with those of us whose farms represent an investment of thousands, and who are taxed on our capital far in excess of those who are capitalists or manufacturers. The powers that be having encouraged this class of emigrants, and by legislation making producers of all who wish land and will work it, force us to find markets abroad for our surplus.

We are selling our products at the very lowest market rates, purchasing at the highest, and while owning twenty-five per cent, of the wealth of the country, we pay eighty per cent. of the taxes. We are taxed upon our land for state and local expenses, while hundreds of millions DESTRUCTIVE FIRE, -- On Friday last the of dollars in personal property of the rich escape taxation.

Nor is this all. We see the manufacturer enriched at our expense-we being compelled to pay him a price which enables him to keep out a competition which we cannot avail ourselves of, while he, being protected, can combine to raise prices which we must pay. If we buy abroad, we are compelled to pay $17 on every $100 worth of goods we import, and this for the alleged protection of labor in industries that employ only one-ninth as many men as are engaged in agriculture, and who do not work as hard as we do.

Wages, too, are out of all proportion to what they should be in comparison with prices farm products sell for. The price of our farm product here at home is fixed by the low-priced standard of peasant labor abroad, by our coming into direct competition with them; but we pay our labor prices which our protected manufacturers can afford to pay, the payment of which goes to make their system popular. I believe that every laborer is worthy of his hire, but I also believe that all things should be equal.

We also suffer injustice (as farmers) from our tariti when we go abroad to sell our products, from the fact that we are discriminated against by nations who cannot sell to us those things which they produce. They have been following the lead of this country, and have levied heavy retaliatory duties on our products. especially France and Germany. In 1883 we sold $50,000,000 less of pork and dairy products there than we sold in 1861. If our manufacturers were affected by this also, there would be no ground for complaint; but they can stand it. while the farmer suffers.

The protectionist party, realizing that the farmers suffer an injustice, are trying to pour balm into our wounds by putting duties on the small per cent, of of acrienltural products imported, forgetting that most of these articles imported are only brought into this country in times of scarcity, or when we cannot provide for our local markets a home supply. This does not benefit the farmer as much as it enhances the cost of living to the laboring man—l. e., the consumer.

I have tried in this article to mention few of the causes that seem to me to have a depressing influence on farming outside of the well known law of supply and demand. If there is any truth in them it stands to reason that the Amerithem it stands to reason that the American farmer has something more to do than become a mere producing machine. That we are not wealthy is not because we have not worked enough, for we have developed sufficient wealth within the last three decades to enable American last three decades to enable America almost to buy Europe; unfortunately other classes than the producer hold it; neither would it help us to double the production, as others get the money.

All this should cause the farmer to become more of a thinking person, who should put in force means to accomplish sn end, and to secomplish anything we must take action ourselves.

If we cannot put our trust in political parties, let ue act for ourselves by voting for those only who will pledge themselves to redress wrongs from which, as a class, we suffer. A movement of this bind must come from the farmers or prokind must come from the farmers or producing class, as they have suffered most.

At the annual recent meeting of the Canadian bank of commerce, the general said it would be unfortunate if another the farm has maintained its value more steadily during the period of general dedozen on eggs, so that the trade which their restrictionist policy, and, in defi-ance of the combines, go in for the policy of reciprocity with the neighboring republic.—[St. Thomas Journal.

2. Some experiments in applying linseed oil to the knots with a small brush so as to saturate the knot have been effective. This is done three or four times during the summer, as soon as the

3. Coal oil may be used, but it must be applied carefully. If it runs over the branch it will kill it.

4. Wild choke cherry trees near orchards should be destroyed. It is unfortunate that so little regard is paid to the law which requires affected trees to be destroyed. These trees are scattering millions of spores yearly, and thus spreading the disease to all parts of the province. Blighted trees stand as monuments of the indifference and ignorance of those who should co-operate in fighting against a common foe.
