This condition has resulted from the fact that the American magazines heattate at no expense, either for the purchase of manuscrip, or inustration, $50,000 has been paid by one magazine for a single series. Millions are invested in the business, and they can well afford to pay any price for an article of unusual interest. Probably no single cause is having such in effect in the education of both old and young America as these magazines. They are practured; g into every household. Their beautiful engravings serve as instructors even to those unable or too busy to read. The most popular authors recousine that they can obtain more money from the magazines than by publishing in book form. In proportion to bound volumes the magazine gives as four to one. Take for instance the Cosmopolitan, which costains annually 1.535 pance by the leading writers of the world, and more than 1,200 illustrations by elever artists. That would make four volumes of nearly 400 pages each, yet it is furnished to the subscriber at only $2.40 a year. The four bound volumes which it would make would be worth on the book stands not less than $12. It seems impossible that so much should be furnished for so little, and it is only when the number reaches 100,000 or upwards that such work can be turned out at a profit to the publisher fellows that a first-class magazine at the low price of $2.40 would be quickly appreciated by the publish. His expectations have been more than fulfilled, and the December impossible for it to survive such a figure. The poor never wanted a friend when Mr. Murphy was near; and the wiedom of his words was often sought by those who best knew how to value practical common sense and unassuming sincerity. By his industry and intelligence he had a massed a large competence, and he contributed with a generous hand to the support and adornment of the house of God. In 1817 he married Julia, daughter of the late Mr. Patrick Twohey of Ope. Mrs. Murphy, with their large family and numerous grand-children, survive him. Gentle, manly, upright and pious, he leaves many friends to regret him for his private worth and for the good such a life does the community. The deceased was a man of vigorous frame, and till a few months ago never knew the touch of sickness. An obstinate attack of disease of the stomach came upon him in August last, and the illness that followed was endured with the patience and resignation that one would expect to attend the closing days of a good man. and expect to render several very fine choruses.

It was currently reported that Peterboro were confident of winning and had got together strong rinks, and the issue on the whole was considered doubiful, owing to several of Lindsay's best players being unable to take part. Evening, "Without an excuse."

—Rev. Dr. Williams was in Hamilton Sunday last conducting services in connection with the re-opening and dedication of the Hannah st. Methodist church and Sunday school. We take the following extract from the Times:—"In the evening Rev. Dr. Williams delivered an eloquent and impressive discourse from the Saviour's parable of the sower, John Xili., 27-28: So the servants of the householder came and said unto him. Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? From whence then hath it tares? He said unto them, An enemy hath done this. The servants said unto him. Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up?" The rev. gentleman referring to the tares meaning the evil in the world, said whereas innumerable suppositions and theo ies had been advanced by learned men to account for the existence of evil, many were far wide of the truth. The theory that while man's soul was in the body there must necessarily be evil gained much credence from the world, yet according to it Je us Christ is brought down to a level with sinners, because he was in huma. form with all the necessities of a living man, yet was admittedly without sin. There cannot be one side to a thing without another. Can there be good, without evil? You say God is good, absolutely good. Granted; but as a mat er of fact we have before us a unive se in which sin is. We know not whence or how it came. God, for man's sake, is fighting evil. In reality he litself is in the moral qualities of a man. One who carries sin about with him carries hell, for its brings with it all the elements of hell, suffering and remorse. A man is a responsible being, one who can choose or reject. Many men object to this privilege, complaining that they cannot be saved agai at their wills. Because God respects you far too much to save as he would a babe. If because you have a mind, and He says, "Let us reason together" the difference is similar to that between one
