THE BENNETT DUEL New York, Jan. 18.—"Tribune" reports speak of the Bennett duel afresh charging that May pulled the trigger be fore the word was given, but mis ed fire. Bennett raised his pixtol and cried scornfully, "I could kill you now if I wished," and pointing it into the air fired quickly. The duellists then saint ed one another, when, suddenly overcome by shaue and mortification, to the amazement of all present, May hurried P. If a young man, just starting in lite, say at the age of twenty one, and wish-ing to stock his farm, where to procure two thorough bred Jersey cows of differ-ent and and well-known butter-making ent and and well-known butter-making families, by careful attention to the breeding of his herd, and ordinary industry in his business he would, before reaching the prime of life, become the owner of a first-class herd of valuable stock, that would be far more profitable than the same number of sorub or native cattle. Laying the foundation of a herd of thorough bred Jersey cattle in a small way be this is not beyond the means of a large proportion of the young men. ed one another, when, suddenly overcome by shame and mortification, to the amasement of all present, May hurried away, unable longer to face his diagrace.
May was very nervous, but Bennett was collected and cool,
