THE PAPER MILL.—The Lindsay paper mill started to make paper at the begin-ning of the week and is now in full opera ning of the week and is now in full operation. It is quite a sight to see the huge machinery working, some slowly and as quietly as possible, while other parts are working away at a lively rate. Not much straw board, which is the only manufacture they will at present work on, has been turned out as yet, but the make is pronounced to be first-class. The amount of straw that is used up daily is very large and although they have now several very long stacks it will be used up in a short time.
