Carine May in the bucke

We are not only in the habit of futting our gia s too late, but we give it to a much sun, in our laste to main the job in one day. This course any seve labor, but it less sale, using Lot No. 36 in the 2nd concernment inneed. It is not very much of victoria, containing 200 area of land, 160 of which are cleared and under a high state give it to a much sun, in our laste to control and sever latter, but it lesses to easien of the rowship erope, in the country and the grass after the dew as of, and be it is until the middle of the acception, and then bunch it is the user's way. Let it remain in this cound in until the third day. Then sinke up the cocks a little with a fork, bringing the bottom to the top, and let it remain until the next day. If it storms the hay will not have much of the labor of telding and turning. There is but one rave are much of the labor of telding and the quality of the hay is very in connector than the sun-dried and hastily cured article. All the article and hastily cured article. All the are retained; and the cattle cut it is not the same dried and hastily cured article. An executive is with of a farmer kimperor of China, to the effect that walking by the side of a wheat field, he saw a stock of wheat much larger and riper than the rest of the field, and that he plucked it and saved the grains to be sowed, and from it desired a wait to be sowed, and from it derived a variety of wheat much earlier and more prolitic than the wheat in common use and thus conferred a great benefit uponhis p ople. What wheat is sown in dries, we can easily pass through the field and cut into a backet the heads that are the plumpest and first ripe, and beat out the genius for soul. In a day's time a greful man might thus willow several purks of send wheat, that would be as much better than the average of the field as the cars in count that we solved for such are to the than the average corn of the Koncrop. When we come to sow with the drill, only about a peck to the nore, this will not be so great a when it would now seem, when we any two buildeds to the hore. The next his course would be probably

We recently heard rather a good there on one of our city ministers. During last winter a revival was in progress in one of the country churche es near the city. Among the regular attendants on the meeting was a beautiful and estimable, but rather unsophisticated young lady, whose friends were very anxious to have her united with the church.

She seemed, havever, reluctant to do so, and the minister in question was requested to talk to her. This he did several times, on one occasion is fing in a localer manner. Miss Mean, if you join the church I'll marry you, meaning he would perform the ceremony.
