

Odds and Ends.

It is the name of one of the oldest of the Chinese deities. His name got mixed in coming across.

Every moderate drinker could stand the intoxicating cup, if he could; every inebriate would, if he could.

The Mahomedan loathes the system as we do the scorpion or spider, and says of the Christian, "He is a dirty dog, for he eats oysters."

To be despised or blamed by an incompetent or unaided judge may give one a momentary pain, but ought not to make one unhappy.

A lady wishes some one would invent "legometer," to attach to men's pedals, so that wives may determine the distance travelled by their husbands when they want to just step down to the post-office of an evening.

Vallejo, Cal., according to the local paper, harbors men who have become so saturated with the oil of condensed dandelion as to commit an act combining all the horrors of a century of crimes into one.

The following touching epitaph is to be found on the tombstone of a Colorado deacon. When circumstances rendered it impossible for him to attend the stated preaching of the gospel, he made it a sacred duty to kill an Indian every Sabbath.

An up-country miner stopping at Stigall's hotel, Palo, California, awoke and found his bed for free. Slowly he arose and walked down stairs, remarking to the proprietor as he passed him: "I say, Stig, take some water up stairs and put that fire out; it's getting rather warm up there."

Mark Twain has this advice for young men with literary aspirations: "Write without pay until somebody offers pay. If nobody offers pay within three years the candidate may look upon his circumstances with the most implicit confidence as the sign that writing wood is what he was intended for."

A school teacher spelt out the word "p-r-a-c-t-i-c-e" and asked a scholar to pronounce it. He gave it up, when the teacher, to refresh his memory, asked him, "What did your father say this morning before eating breakfast?" The boy thought a minute and finally said, "Pa, said, 'D—these eggs, they're rotten!'"

Scene at a meeting in Preston, England: "Take thy hat off," said one fellow in the crowd to another in front of him. "What for? Why can't we see?" "Well," replied the other, "if we take my hat off thou'll be worse off than ever. My hat (hair) is thirteen inches long and it stands straight up. I've put my hat on it to keep it down."

There is a little railroad at Bayou Sara, La., that runs to Woodville on a very uncertain schedule. A stranger came in the other day and enquired how often that steam car made its trips. "Tri-weekly," was the reply. "What do you mean by tri-weekly?" "It goes up one week and tries to come down the next."

A publisher of religious works' advertisements, among others, "The Danger of Damnation," "Hell as it Really is," "Wrath of the Almighty," "The Way to the Bottomless Pit," "Total Depravity Proved by the Bible," "Doomed to Perdition," "The Free Pit as a Means of Grace," and other cheerful volumes with similarly captivating titles.

A party of respectable Chicago ladies have formed a society for reclaiming young men, and they go about the streets nights and pick up young men who show signs of dissipation, invite them to their homes, and treat them to tea, cream, chicken-salad, etc., and let them go home sober. Half the young men in the city lie around the streets nights to be taken in.

One of the greatest victims that has ever come to our ears emanated from the lips of a well known New England furnishing undertaker, who for a time entirely ignored by the marks of a commercial agent for a celebrated manufacturer of glue. Finally, desiring to terminate the interview, he replied: "It is of no consequence in my business whether your glue lastingly adheres or not; my customers never come back."

A colored member of the Louisiana Legislature said he could lead school-boys without dismounting from his horse. His wife said he looked awful queer with no head above his mouth. There is a woman in the Legislature, as well as one less pair of legs under the kitchen table. Somehow it don't appear to make a man know any more than usual to be elected to the Legislature down that way.

A nice, pious old man in Massachusetts thought his oxen laid out strength brushing away flies that might be used hauling the corn plow, so he tied ricks to their tails. The plow worked well until one of the ricks struck the old man on the head, when he was carried to the house on a door. He said he hadn't thought of this contingency. The oxen's tails are loose now, and the old man has had his brains soldered with silver.

A woman correspondent complains to a California editor that her husband is cross when she wants him to kiss the baby, and in offered the following recipe: "Mix arsenic with honey, and spread the compound thickly on the darling's lips, and tell him if he will kiss the little innocent once more you will never come feeling about him again when he is tired. He will smother that infant with cheerful alacrity, lick his lips with rapturous pleasure, and you will have no further occasion to worry a transcendently editor with your private nonsense."

Photography.

To the Inhabitants of LINDSAY and surrounding country.
HAVING bought out Mr. Searle's Photography, I intend establishing myself in Lindsay. I have fitted up my Studio with all the Latest Improvements! and intend making only
FIRST-CLASS PICTURES
I will introduce every valuable discovery in photographic science and spare no expense to make my work equal to any in the Province.
There is nothing in the discoveries of science in this year that has made such progress as Photography. By comparing the photographs taken some years ago with those made now it will be seen that the former were more uncertain than the latter. The vulgar, chalky faces of the past are superseded by those of artistic shading, and pictures made only to fade by those of permanence and durability.
I would say to all who want good pictures to give me a call.
SATISFACTION GIVEN!
or no pay, is my motto.

TOW PROPERTY
To enable persons of limited income to procure houses for themselves, this Association is prepared to advance money at low rates, over periods extending from three to fifteen years, upon the security of eligible building lots, to parties owning the same, or desirous of erecting buildings thereon. The instalments extending over the longer periods, would scarcely exceed the ordinary rental paid for similar houses, whilst the borrower would thus be enabled to acquire a free dwelling house for himself in perpetuity by paying little more than an ordinary rent. Loans will also be made on the security of first-class city or farm property of every description on the same terms.

FAIR PROPERTY.
Advances made on improved Farms, at low rates, payable in years, and half-yearly instalments of principal and interest, extending over periods of from three to fifteen years, whereby the whole is cleared up at the end of the term for which it is borrowed. The advantages of this system cannot be too fully realized. The borrower is, by easy payments, enabled to pay the debt which would fall too heavy if it had to be paid in one sum at the end of the term, and with a little care can with ease provide for the instalments as they become due.
WM. L. RUSSELL,
Agent for the County of Victoria.
