

Odds and Ends.

A standing joke—A cork leg. A skylark—A halloo ascent. The piece festival—A quilting party. Dried tongues—The dead languages. Cures for the heartburn—Swallow a fire-engine. The oldest woman's club—A bromistick. A dead reckoning—Calculating one's funeral expenses. The great financial question—Have you any money to lend? Lady's devotional him-book—Dinary with list of male acquaintances. Railway accident—When a train arrives at the time stated in the Guide. Age should always precede beauty—therefore let the old folks retire before ten o'clock. To get more than one hundred cents for a dollar—Invest it in a bottle of perjury. Why are young widows like a band of Kibbiziun minstrels? Because they do not stay too long in black. "Marriage," said an unfortunate husband, "is the churchyard of love." "And you men," replied his wife, "are the grave-diggers. A Southern paper is opposed to the education of women as surgeons. It says that, suppose one were put under the influence of chloroform by such a doctor, 'what is to prevent woman from kissing you?' We see by missionary statistics that there are only two missionaries to twenty thousand cannibals; those cannibals must be light eaters. Isn't it cruelty on the part of our missionary societies to keep them on such short rations? A well meaning, but dolorous clergyman, who wore a face of perpetual mourning, once visited the sick-room of a worldly friend, when the sick man started up and exclaimed, "Why, what's the matter? You look as if your religion didn't agree with you." A young lady took her younger brother, a little boy of three or four years, to church. The preacher was an earnest man and spoke very loud. During the sermon, he saw the little fellow in tears, and asked him what was the matter with him. He sobbed out, "That man is hollering at me." A youth cleaning up a San Francisco printing office found a keg of black sand. Another boy bet him the spruce gum that it was powder, he took the bet. A coal of fire was gently but firmly dropped into the keg. There was no insurance on the building. The two experimental youths are supposed to have gone into the country looking for the spruce gum. An irascible old gentleman was taken with sneezing in a railway carriage lately. After sneezing in the most spasmodic manner eight times, he arrested the paroxysm for a moment, and, extricating his handkerchief, he thus addressed his nasal organ, indignantly saying, "Oh, go on, go on—you'll blow your worthless brains out presently!" A poet who wrote in some tender lines addressed to his love, "We will hallow her grave with our tears," was surprised at a call from Henrietta's brother, next morning, armed with a club, who extended to him a stirring invitation to come down and have his head broken, which he declined. The local paper had made the line read: "We will hallow her grave with our steers!" The verdicts returned by our jurors are sometimes rather queer, as most lawyers have had means of knowing, but there was one recently returned by a Western jury, more laughable than any other we ever heard of read of. It appears that three young men were tried in that section for shooting and mortally wounding a dog, and the written verdict of the "three good men and true" was in the following words, to wit: All three guilty; plaintiff's damages assessed at six cents; and each of the defendants to have another shot at the dog!

There is a man in Camden, N. J., who is provoked. He is somewhat of a miser. A few weeks since he went out to drive his cow. Arriving at the pasture-ground, he found that the cow was gone, but the bell which should have been around her neck was lying on the ground. He placed it in his pocket and forgot all about it. Every now and then it would give a muffled jingle, and he would think it was his cow, and start off in a fresh direction. He followed that bell as he thought until twelve o'clock that night, and walked twenty miles. When he reached home, the cow had been there five or six hours, and his wife had been over to the city to advertise for him in the "Lost and Found" column of the Ledger. Perhaps he won't mind when he found that bell in his pocket! His wife thinks he was a little extravagant in talking about the affair, but then she may be mistaken. No Smoking allowed.—Old Dr. Stearns of New London, in his latter years kept a drug store. A gentleman one day purchased a cigar of the Doctor, and lighting it began to smoke. "Please do not smoke in the store," said Dr. S., politely, "it is against our rule." "But you sell cigars," rejoined the gentleman.—"Sell 'em to smoke, don't you?" "Yes, sir, we sell cigars," replied the doctor, a little sharply, "and we sell people; but we don't allow 'em to smoke in the store."

Photography. To the Inhabitants of LINDSAY and surrounding country. HAVING bought out Mr. Searle's Photography Business, I intend establishing myself in Lindsay. I have fitted up my Studio with all the latest improvements and intend making only FIRST-CLASS PICTURES. I will introduce every valuable discovery in photographic science and spare no expense to make my work equal to any in the Province. There is nothing in the discoveries of science in late years that has made such progress as Photography. By comparing the photographs taken some years ago with those made now you will see that the former were more caricatures than true pictures.—The vulgar, chaffy faces of the past are succeeded by those of artistic standing, and pictures made only to fade by those of permanence and durability. I would say to all who want good pictures to give me a call. SATISFACTION GIVEN! or no pay, in my motto. W. R. GAMBAY, Lindsay August 20, 1870.

He has the privilege, as he may find it convenient, of paying into the sinking fund over and above his regular contribution, any even sum over one hundred dollars, in the direction of his mortgage, and for which he is allowed six per cent. compound interest; such payments, of course, shorten the term of his settlement.
