By the confession of Emma Stillwell, who is dying of consumption at her father's house in Waterford, Knox county, the veil of mystery that has surrounded three murderers committed in the past ten years was on Sunday removed, and a terothle revelation of the crimes of a woman less than thirty-five years of age made. In brief, her confession made then, while the angel of death was hovering so near that her words came slowly and with terrible effort, was as follows - Emma Hord, (now Stillwoll,) daughter of a respectable family at Wooster, Ohio, married a German shoemaker named Sweibert. With her husband, brother and mother she removed to Marysville, Mo., where she, her brother, and mother in 1875 foully murbrother, by choking the child and hitting it in the back of the head. Great inconvenience is felt for the want of a bank in Rat Portage. It is surpris-ing that a bank has not been opened be-fore this, considering the amount of busi-ness carried on. One merchant alone turns over $100,000 per annum and now there is in course of erection two saw-mills, a paper mill and the lumbering industry; there is no doubt such an institution would not only be a convenience to the public, but would also be profitable for any bank which may choose to open a branch. It is hoped that a branch of a bank will pe opened before long.

A lean and hungry New York city tramp exhibited 10 cents to a passing stranger and piteously saked for five cents more that he might have a cup of coffee with the sandwich which his 10 cents would buy. The appeal was responded to, and the tramp departed. The gentleman followed and saw the same ruse successfully worked upon another gentleman. Then he collared the tramp and told him that he could either go to jail for obtaining money by false pretenses, or he could expend his two nickles for the purpose for which they were given. The tramp decided to buy coffee, and the gentleman stood by and saw that he paid for it.

On Saturday last the City of Brussels a large and powerful steamer valued as $800,000 with a cargo valued at over $350,000 got befogged in the Mersey and had to stop her engines to avoid disaster. She hovered around the light ship awaiting till the fog should arise. It was not long, however, ere the sound of an approaching steamer is heard and the fearful consequences of a collision stared all in the face; a large steamer only a few yards distant, and moving quickly through the water, loomed out in the fog. Al-most instantly, and before any steps could be taken to avert it, a tremendous collision was seen to be inevitable. The bow of the Kirby Hall struck the starboard bow of the City of Brussels with terrific force cutting her down to the water's edge and almost half through. The Kirby Hall was on her maiden voyage and left Glasgow a few hours before; and was calling at Liverpool to complete loading and embark passengers for the east.
