A Mouse that Wore a Diamond

Several months ago a lady of Boston, Mass., took off a number of rings from her fingers and laid them upon her dressing-table. After washing her hands she returned to replace her rings, when to her astonishment, one of them, a diamond ring, was missing. She was certain that she took the ring from her finger, and equally certain that no one could have entered the room during the five minutes she had been in the bathroom. A most rigid search was instituted, but the missing ring, valued at $200, was not found.

A few weeks since the lady was much annoyed by mice. Almost nightly they held their revels. They not only destroyed her sleep but choice pieces were mutilated. The lady procured a trap, one of the old-fashioned kind, and, having baited it with a tempting bit of cheese, placed it near the scene of depredations. On the following morning she had three fine silky mice of various sizes. One of them was so peculiarly constructed it attracted her attention, as it appeared to have a string tied around its body. The servant girl was instructed to drown the captives and reset the trap, and she was about to throw the dead mice into the diet barrel when her eye was attracted by a sparkle from what proved to be the lost diamond ring, which was not perceptible when the mouse was alive, but which came to light after the severe soaking which the mouse received. It is supposed that in his haste to get away he ran his head through the ring, and subsequent struggles only forced it over his forelegs, where it remained.

Pity for the Prisoner

The New York Tribune lately told a tragic story of a young man who had escaped several years ago from the State prison, and under another name had lived honestly, working hard at a trade. Last summer he became engaged to a respectable young girl, and his conscience forbidding him to deceive her, he told her secret to her and her parents, insisting that he had been innocent of the crime for which he was imprisoned. The girl would have been faithful to him, but her father not only forbade her to marry him, but gave him to the police, and he was taken back to prison.

Another case, still more pitiable, occurred in New York a few months ago. A young man, who had been discharged from prison, resolved to lead a new life, and finding employment at his old trade as a carpenter, worked hard for a month, when he was suddenly discharged, the only reason given being that he "had been a convict, and was not fit company for honest men." For a year he struggled to live honestly, as soon as he was driven from one kind of work going to another, until he became one of a gang of street-sweepers. But even there the curse followed him, and he was turned off at the end of the second day, as "a jail-bird." God, whose child he was, only knows what misery he endured in the weeks that followed, or the savage cruelty shown to him by other men, also his children. All that we know is that he resisted the temptation to go back to his old thieving ways, until maddened with starvation and the utter hopelessness of it all, he threw himself into the North river.

In a letter which he left he told his story, adding, "I see that when a man once makes a slip he never can go back again."

Another instance is marked by even darker lines. During a recent trial in one of the Philadelphia courts it was proved that a certain thief was allowed for years to escape unpunished, on sharing his booty with the detectives. Finally he was caught in the act of burglary and sent to prison. On his release, he, too, struggled to lead an honest life, but was actually forced to steal by the detectives by threats of fastening some other crime upon him of which he was innocent.

These are facts, and facts of which every young man entering life in this country should know the full bearing. They show how widespread is the corruption of our official system waiting for him and his fellows to reform; they show what work waits for Christian men and women to do for the poor wretches who are daily discharged from our prisons; and above all they prove that if for a young man, it is easy to descend the broad slippery road to ruin, it is hard to climb up it again.

Rheumatism. This painful disease that so often cripples for life, arises from poison circulating in the blood, and often from an excess of acid. Inflammation is developed in the muscles, ligaments and joints, by cold, damp clothing, etc., but more accessible to relieve, among many, Haysard's Yellow Oil is prescribed. To eradicate the rheumatic poison from the system, nothing can surpass Haysard's Blood Bitters.—54-2.

The Country Newspaper

Referring to the country journalist, Geo. Peck, of Milwaukee, says:—"When we think of the hard drudgery that these enterprising, indefatigable workers do in a week, and the small amount of thanks and cash they receive in return, we feel as though something was wrong somewhere. Why is it that in many localities the people do not appreciate the importance of a good newspaper, and sustain it by a liberal patronage, thus making it a better paper, is one of the most unaccountable things in the world. When we have no urgent call now to say what we do; but we tell people in every locality where a paper is published, no matter how small and insignificant the paper may be, that every dollar they pay for it is a contribution to the support of the paper, and that every dollar they pay for it is a contribution to the support of the paper, and that every dollar they pay for it is a contribution to the support of the paper. We have figured on it and we know. It may not look so on its face, but it is very deceiving. Lots of schemes that look as though they had millions in them, line the man who is sure he can pick out the right card in three months, fail to return anything like millions, while other schemes that do not appear to amount to anything scarcely, pan out whole handfuls of nickels unexpectedly. And the country newspaper is of this class. Subscribe for your paper, and pay for it in advance, and if you feel at the end of the year that you haven't got your money's worth, then your fortune is made. You can go to a museum and get $5,000 a year as a curiosity.

A Terrible Fate

A party of twenty-five men and two women left Lawson's camp, four miles from Thunder Bay, intending to go to Burk's camp, where they had been engaged to work. The party separated, sixteen taking the ice for the short cut. This party again separated, four of the number striking out for the portage at Lawyer's Bay. They reached that point and met a number of Indians, but fearful lest the redskins might attack them, they retraced their steps. Two of the number had been drinking heavily, and, becoming exhausted, lay down and died, and their companions were obliged to push on and soon saw the lights shining in Mathew Brown's headquarters at Silver Harbor. The second man, who had drunk immoderately, was unable to proceed further and he lay down in the snow. Fearful lest the same fate should happen himself, Isaac Laurila, who was much stronger than his remaining companion pushed forward to Brown's headquarters to secure help, but there were only two occupants of the place, and they did not understand his language. He was so much exhausted that the heat of the place overcame him and he lay down and slept. When he awoke next morning he received the assistance of two men and started out on the lake to find the lost men. The bodies were found frozen stiff. Their names are Max Mattanen, Gats Garsel and Lenster Gellogagel. Two of the bodies were taken to Prince Arthur's Landing.

Never Neglect It

If you suffer from a cough, never neglect it, it is no trifling matter, and might lead to a speedily fatal disease of the lungs. Haysard's Pectoral Balsam will allay all irritation of the mucous membrane by its soothing healing power; it cures bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung complaints.—54-2.

A Cure for Headache

Thousands are suffering martyrs to this distressing trouble. If you have pure and properly vitalized blood coursing freely through your veins; if the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels act rightly, you will never experience headache. Burdock Blood Bitters will effect this desirable condition, if properly used. Try it.—54-2

A Good Investment

Twenty-five cents expended to your druggist for a bottle of Haysard's Yellow Oil will allay most pains and cure most diseases. Then many dollars spent for ordinary medicines would do. Yellow Oil cures rheumatism, burns, sores, frost bites, sore throat, croup, stiff joints, concentrated cords, and all lameness and inflammation.—54-2.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve

Cingalesis

Cingalesis is the name of a widely and favorably known hair restorer which is not recommended to do utterly impossible things, but then nothing is better for keeping the hair in good condition and restoring it when lost, if the scalp is capable of being toned up, to exert its proper functions. Sold at 50 cents per bottle by all druggists.—47-2mos.

Better be wise by the misfortunes of others than by your own

Take warning in time. Avoid quick nostrums by which thousands perish. Use only such remedies as are demonstrated above suggestion, foremost among which is Kidney-Wort. For torpid liver, bowels or kidneys, no other remedy equals it. It is sold in both dry and liquid form by all druggists.

The central idea in treating disease is to maintain the nutrition of the body

When the balance of gain and loss is preserved, the machinery of the organism runs until worn out by time. Impairment of health, no matter what the cause, results from failure of the source of vital force, the food supply. What we are after, to get well, is to make up the deficiency and fill the gaps made by disease. It is obvious, then, why you want Wheeler's Phosphates and Cellulose in all forms of debility, to supply elements embodying the potential energy of the nervous system, and essential agents of the gastric juice.
