LIZZIE KADEN. CARRIE TRYING. Midland District Notes,

There is another split in the Salvation Army at Kingston. Several members totend petitioning the captain regarding the conduct of several sergeants, who, it is alleged, desire to run the army here. The sergeants complained of are those who had the difficulty with Captain Abbie, but who were reappointed before she left Kingston. How the affair will terminate is not known.

A peculiar accident happened on the Toronto, Grey & Bruce railway, which might have caused and remit, but fortunately was attended by no serious consequences. On Thursday evening an engine, with a snow plow ahead, was sent up as far as Orangeville to clear the track of snow. The eagins was on its way back to the city Friday afternoon, and had got a short distance this side of Carlton, when the bolt which coupled the plow to the engine broke. The plow started off down the grade at a terrific speed in the direction of the city. The engineer, fearing a collision, telegraphed to Mr. Preston, the master mechanic of the road at Parkdale, to look out for the runaway and throw it off the track. Pelore the dispatch reached Parkdale the snow plow dashed past the station on its way to the city. Mr. Preston telegraphed to the Queen's wharf, but the runaway was faster than the message. The track was clear, and the plow rushed on to the roundhouse at the Queen's wharf, dashed through the on to the reundheuse at the Queen's wharf, dashed through the closed doors, which were broken as if they had been pasteboard, and would have crossed the turn table and collided with an engine on Phonwhates and Calisaya do the opposite side, but the track of the turn-table was out about tweive inches. The runaway ran off the track and pitched into the pit. When the plow struck the doore of the round-house, a plumber was working on a ladder just inside, fixing some papes near the roof. He left the ladder trembling and grasped the pipe overhead. Just as he did so the ladder was whirled from under him, and he was left hanging in mid-air. There were about fifteen men in the round-house at the time, but fortunately none of them happened to be standing on the track, although some were within three feet of the time, but fortunately none of them happened to be standing on the track, although some were within three feet of it. It is simply miraculous that some-body was not killed. Had the accident happened an hour later a collision with the Hamilton train would certainly have occurred. No blame attaches to anybody, as a bolt is liable to break at any time, particularly during frosty weather.

Da Monday night an old carter named Robert Lee, of Kingston, did not arrive at home and his friends started out to leak for him, but he could not be found. Next morning some men went en the ice in the harbor to get water, when they observed a dark object in the water about a hundred yards distant, which proved to be Lee's horse and sleich. His body has not yet been found. It is thought that he was drunk and that the horse wandered on to the ice and walked into the open water. About four years ago, while Lee was drunk, his horse walked over a precipice, killing itself and breaking both of Lee's legs, and last summer his horse walked off a wharf. In the morning Lee was found clinging to a post and the animal standing in shallow water with the vehicle attached to it. Lee was a terrible drinker, and his death by accident was no surprise.
