time, and was found lounging in the show window, half an hour afterwards, when Mr. Peters appeared. "Have you put the box in order already?" was the gentleman's question.

"I didn't find anything to put in order; there was nothing in it but nails and things." "Exactly, it was the nails and things that I wanted put in order; did you do it?"

"No, sir, it was dark up there, and I didn't see anything worth going outside I thought I was hired to run errands."

"Oh," said Mr. Peters, "I thought you were hired to do as you were told."

But he smiled pleasantly enough, and at once gave John an errand to go down town, and the boy went off chuckling, declaring to himself that he knew how to manage the old fellow, all it needed was a little standing up for your rights. Precisely at six o'clock John was called and said the sun promised him for a day's work, and then, to his dismay, he was told that his services would not be needed any more. He asked no questions; indeed, he had time for none, as Mr. Peters immediately closed the door. The next evening the old sign, "Boy Wanted" appeared in its usual place.

Before noon it was taken down, and Chas. Jones was the unfortunate boy. Errands, plenty of them he was kept busy until within an hour of closing. Then, behold, he was sent to the attic to put a long box in order. He was not afraid of the mouse, nor of the cold, but he grumbled much over the box; nothing in it worth attention. However, he tumbled over the things, growing all the time, picked up a few straight nails, a key or two, and finally appeared downstairs with this message:

"Here's all that is worth keeping in that old box; the rest of the nails are rusty, and the hooks are bent or something."

"Very well," said Mr. Peters, and sent him to the post office.

What do you think by the close of the next day. Charlie had been paid and discharged, and the old sign hung in the window.

"I've no kind of notion why I was discharged," grumbled Charlie to his mother; "he said he had no work to do, only he saw that I wouldn't suit. In my opinion that he doesn't want a boy at all, and takes that way to cheat. Mean old fellow!"

It was Crawford Mills who was hired next. He knew neither of the boys, and so did his errands in blissful ignorance of the "long box" until the second morning of his stay, when in a leisure hour he was sent to put it in order. That morning passed, dinner time came, and still Crawford had not appeared from the attic. At last Mr. Peters called him.

"Got through?"

"No, sir; there is ever so much more to do."

"All right; it's dinner-time now; you may go back to it after dinner."

After dinner back he went; all the short afternoon he was not heard from, but just as Mr. Peters was deciding to call him again he appeared.

"I've done my best, sir," he said, "and down at the bottom of the box I found this," producing a five-dollar gold piece.

"That's a queer place for gold," said Mr. Peters. "It's good you found it. Well, sir, I suppose you will be on hand to-morrow morning?"

"This he said as he was putting the gold piece in his purse.

After Crawford had said good-night and gone, Mr. Peters took the lantern and went slowly up the attic stairs. There was the long box in which the rubbish of twenty-five years had gathered. Crawford had evidently been to the bottom of it; he had fitted in pieces of wood to make compartments, and in these different rooms he had placed the articles, with bits of cardboard placed on top and labeled thus, "Good screws," "Pretty good nails," "Picture nails," "Small keys, somewhat bent," "Pieces of iron whose use I don't know," "Picture books," so on through the long box. In perfect order it was at last, and very little that could really be called useful could be found in it. But Mr. Peters, as he bent over and murmured to the mice, "If we are not both mistaken, I have found a boy and he has found a fortune."

Sure enough the sign disappeared from the window and was seen no more. Crawford became the well-known errand boy of Peters and Co. He had a little room neatly fitted up next to the attic, where he spent his evenings, and at the foot of the bed hung a motto which Mr. Peters gave him.

"It tells your fortune for you, don't forget it," he said when he handed it to Crawford; and the boy laughed and read it curiously: "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much."

"I'll try to be, sir," he said; and he never once thought of the long box over which he had been faithful.

All this happened years ago. Crawford Mills is errand boy no more, but the firm is Peters, Mill & Co. A young man and a rich man. He found his fortune in a long box full of rubbish.

News of the Week.
The C. P. R. people have struck ten feet seam of excellent coal, at a depth of 350 feet at Blackfoot Crossing, half way between Medicine Hat and Calgary.

Judgment has been given at Osgoode Hall unseating John White as reeve of Milton, and ordering a new election, on the ground that being surety for the county treasurer it incapacitates him from sitting in the county council.

A petition signed by bankers and leading firms in the city, praying for a new Insolvent Act, having for its object the equitable distribution of the estates of insolvent debtors to be passed this session has been forwarded to Ottawa.

Lieut.-Col. Otter is the latest victim of bank thieves. He was in the Imperial bank at Toronto on Saturday and had $600 in the lower outside pocket of his overcoat. When he put his hand in his pocket for the money it was gone. Somebody had abstracted it while the colonel was engaged at the desk.

Apart from any mere question of promises unfulfilled, the local Government has a serious duty to perform in the matter of the establishment of a cemetery. Like the authorized "reader" that we have already had, we want authorized butler, and while we decidedly object to the former we shall welcome the latter.

The Edmonton Bulletin announces the formation of a joint stock company to operate the petroleum springs on what is known as Osborne Smith & Cameron location on Lesser Slave river, four miles above its junction with the Athabasca, fifty miles above Athabasca Landing, or one hundred and thirty miles in a direct line a little west of north from Edmonton. Samples of the gum found existing from the ground on this claim have been analyzed by several experts and pronounced by all to be crude petroleum.

Considerable of a sensation has been caused at Hamilton by the elopement of Mr. George McVittie and the wife of Mr. Archibald White. Mr. McVittie has been for years well and favorably known in connection with the cartage business of Messrs. Wm. Hendrie & Co., having been some years ago raised from the position of driver to that of foreman. He has always discharged his duties in a manner highly satisfactory to his employers, and he was the last man whom any one would suspect of such a base and dishonourable act.

This is the age of centennials, and the S. x Nation Indians on the Grand River reservation, near Brantford, are not going to be outdone by the palefaces. They propose to celebrate during next October the centennial of their settlement on the reserve, and will invite the Governor-General and Lady Lansdowne to be present. It was on the 25th of October, 1874, that Sir Frederick Haldimand declared that they (the Six Nation Indians) and their posterity should be allowed to possess and enjoy a tract of land six miles in depth on each side of the Grand River running into Lake Erie, being part of a large tract lately purchased by the Government from the Chippewa Indians. The ancestors of these Indians, under the leadership of Tyendinaga, Capt. Joseph Brant, have rendered valuable service to the British crown.

The Marquette Review grows romantically eloquent over the new discoveries of gold in the Canadian North-west. It says:—"Last week we took occasion to make reference to the gold fields of Kewatin. Rich as they are they are said to be surpassed by the new finds in the Rockies. Glowing accounts come from the west, of the inexhaustible mineral to be found in 'the backbone of America.' Several claims have already been developed, and the results have more than equalled the most sanguine expectations. A number of men are working the mines, and in the spring a horde of prospectors will no doubt over-run the land—or rather rocks. The North-west is evidently to be a land of gold before long—a land of the golden era, and what is better, a land of golden grain. With both these sources of wealth her future is assured."

Hitherto, owners or managers of mills and factories in Canada have been free to deal with their work people as they pleased. But on the first day of this year a new factory law came into operation for the work of children. A complete staff of inspectors has been appointed to enforce the following stipulations of the new law: 1. Children under 10 years of age must not be allowed to work in factories. 2. Workers from the age of 13 to 15 years must not work more than eight hours a day. Night work for children can only be authorized in establishments where the process of manufacture cannot have a bad influence on the health. Even if allowed, the work must not exceed four hours. 3. The work of children must be regulated in such a way as not to prevent their going to school three hours every day. 4. The owners of factories are obliged to admit inspectors and their assistants into their works at any hour of the day. We trust the Factory Act to be introduced by the Dominion Government will be guided somewhat by the above, in so far as concerned. The Hamilton city council will be asked for a grant of $3,000 to provide work for the local poor.

The council of the Ontario College of pharmacy will take steps to have the pharmacy Act amended.

A young Jewish lady of Quebec embraced Christianity and has turned man. She is to go into missionary work at Chateaufort.

A Mrs. Ferris, living near Hamilton, has been brought before the courts for ill-treating one of Miss Rye's little girls, whom she has adopted.

The Methodist clergy of the London district have re-arranged their circuits to meet the altered condition that will exist under the United Church.

Alfred Pausz, late inspector of the Credit Foncier, who is charged with forgery, was arrested in Albany, N. Y., and brought back to Montreal for trial. His defalcations amount to $30,000.

The Victoria Straw Works company, of Montreal, has made an assignment for the benefit of its creditors; liabilities $80,000, and assets nominally as much, mostly in machinery.

The city solicitor of Kingston decides that a suit may be entered to compel the water works company to furnish pure water, but that the company cannot be compelled to extend its pipe further into the lake.

While Rev. E. Murphy, of Scrood, was on his way to visit a member of his church who was dangerously ill, he was met by a sleigh load of Barrie roughs, who in a mere fit of wantonness made him turn back till he reached his own residence, though he explained to them his errand.

Collingwood Enterprise:— We have reason to believe that for the season of 1884 at least, the boats of the C. P. R. will run from Collingwood, and that the Syndicate will obtain control of the Northern Railway. The arrangement may not yet be completed but its announcement is daily expected.

Objections are being made by the Government to some of the returns asked for, on the ground that they would be too voluminous. Mr. Meredith has pointed out that no such objection is taken by the Government in the House of Commons, even though Mr. Blake is constantly asking for returns which a large corps of seasonal writers and clerks find it almost impossible to furnish.

There is a belief among many farmers, which is mainly born of laziness, that some kinds of stock do not need supplies of pure water in winter so long as the snow covers the ground. Let any farmer who thinks his sheep will thrive on snow in place of water try it himself. After every mouthful of snow the throat speedily becomes parched and dry, and if he continued to eat snow serious throat troubles would result. Eating snow and drinking ice-cold water is believed to be one cause of goatie in sheep.

The Elmira, N. Y., Farmers Club has been discussing the prevalent practice of blacksmiths in burning the hoofs of horses that they are shoeing. It strongly objects to the practice. S. M. Carr, one of the members, says he has shod horses since he was sixteen years old and is now nearly seventy, and objects to burning the hoof because it cools the hoof and narrows the heel. Blacksmiths like to burn the hoof because burning it makes it pare easier; but the practice should not be tolerated by owners of horses.

Notwithstanding that of the large number of enterprises started in and about the Lake of the Woods hardly one has proved successful, another has been started with at present very promising results. The new industry is to develop the fishing resources of the lake and convey the members of the fishy tribes to the markets of the southern and eastern states, where they are high priced and in great demand. The parties who have taken this business are Messrs. Colclough & Dana, both of whom are fishermen who have operated on Lake Superior grounds for a number of years past. They consider that the Lake of the Woods is far superior to their old fishing grounds, and that the fish are much better in quality and will command a higher price in the market. At present they are shipping about five hundred pounds daily to St. Paul and Minneapolis firms, who re-ship them to other points. A large supply of ice is being stored for the purpose of shipping two thousand pounds of fish per day in refrigerator cars. The method of catching the fish during the winter months is by dropping a net through a hole in the ice in some place where there is a current, the fish becoming entangled in the net which is drawn through the hole and again deposited after being emptied. It is highly probable that the Lake of the Woods will become known as a great fishing resort in the near future, the supply being considered almost inexhaustible.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs. None so trifling with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unseasonable exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured. "In 1851 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctor gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 52 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me." HORACE FAIRBROTHER, Roxbury, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute. "While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup. It seemed as if he would die. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and our delight is less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling child. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours, Mrs. EDNA GEDNEY, 150 West 125th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effective remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried." A. J. CRANE, Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL." JOSEPH WALDEN, Dublin, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles." E. BRAGDON, Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.
